BELFAST, May 22.—William J. Twaddell, a member of the Parliament for West Belfast, was shot dead in a crowded Belfast street this morning. He was walking in Garfield Street, to his business, a short distance away, and was followed closely by three men. When he was within about fifty yards of his premises, a large drapery establishment in North Street, several shots rang out and Twaddell fell wounded.

People in the street saw three men emptying their revolvers at their victim. Seven shots in all were fired and each entered Twaddell's body. The assassins then fled across Royal Avenue into lower Garfield Street, opening fire on their pursuers.

A constable opened fire on them, but his revolver jammed and the criminals disappeared, apparently unwounded, into the Smithfield quarter.

During the firing a woman was struck in the arm by a stray bullet and several other persons had narrow escapes.

Sir James Craig has issued a statement expressing his horror at the crime and announcing he has summoned a special meeting of the Cabinet and all authorities dealing with law and order.

Twaddell was at once taken to a hospital and died shortly after his admission. He was a well-known Orangeman and a leading member of the Belfast corporation. He was about 40 years of age.

Craig Demands "Just Retribution."

BELFAST, May 22. (Associated Press).—The killing this morning of W. J. Twaddell, a member of the Ulster Parliament, who was shot while on his way to business, caused the issuance of a manifesto by Sir James Craig, the Premier, announcing a special meeting of the Cabinet and the legal authorities. The Premier declared "just retribution" was called for.

The Premier, in his manifesto, said:

"My detestation of this horrible crime fills me with such indignation that I have summoned a special meeting of the Cabinet and all the authorities dealing with law and order. Such an event as this murder demands just retribution."

The manifesto says Mr. Twaddell was murdered for his loyalty to the empire and his devotion to the cause of Ulster and the welfare of the country. His colleagues, it was declared, will carry on and face the future, no matter what the future might hold for them.

"Justice and retribution rest with the higher authorities," the manifesto adds. "Let the people rally around the established Government, which will see that proper measures are taken without plunging our province or our capital into a welter of crime and bloodshed."

As a tribute to Mr. Twaddell's memory, the Premier said, the people of Belfast and the six counties would observe today and tonight with special reverence.

"I will deal with the whole matter when the Parliament meets tomorrow," Sir James said. "I feel satisfied that the public realizes the plans which the Government has made are sufficiently comprehensive to meet any eventuality that may arise."

The manifesto concludes by announcing that the Parliament will adjourn Tuesday after passing a vote of condolence with Mrs. Twaddell and the relatives of the murdered member.

Fifth Murder at Station.

John McLernon, a railway man, was shot and killed in the Belfast station this afternoon. This was the fifth murder in the vicinity of the station since Friday.

This evening a sniper in Seaford Street fired at three men returning from work in Bally MacCarett. One of the men, George Lawson, was killed. Another sniper fired into a York Street fruit store and wounded Mary Grant, 70 years old, in the stomach. The body of an unknown man riddled with bullets was taken to a hospital during the afternoon.

Inspector Nixon, testifying today in the case of Desmond Crean, an amateur actor arrested in a taxicab in Belfast with a loaded revolver, said he found the following letter on the prisoner:

"A meeting of the Northeast Advisory Committee in Belfast, May 11, unanimously decided to convene a meeting of the whole Advisory Committee for the purpose of devising a definite plan of campaign to be adopted by the Nationalists in the Northeast, whereby they can render impotent the so-called Government of Northern Ireland."

Thomas Boyd was shot dead this morning in Woodstock Road, East Belfast, and James Lindsay was seriously wounded.

A man on the top of a street car was shot and seriously wounded tonight by a sniper. The ambulance men while taking him to the hospital, found another lying in the street shot in the thigh.

Offers Vacuum Cleaner As Ideal Street Sweeper

The city will save hundreds of thousands of dollars, cut the mortality rate by the elimination of disease-bearing dust and free 2,000 "whitewings" for subway construction and other needed work if it will sweep its streets with vacuum cleaners, says an appeal transmitted by the Downtown League to Street Commissioner Taylor today.

W. A. Cochrane, Vice President of the Dewar Manufacturing Company, Inc., of Bush Terminal, is the father of the idea. He believes that a suitable motor-driven vacuum cleaner can be built at reasonable cost and that it can be operated economically. He says that the present system is as obsolete as the horse car.

GERRYS MAY SELL $18,000,000 REALTY

PARCELS IN HEART OF CITY

Include Properties Occupied by W. & J. Sloane, Stern Bros. and Columbia University Club.

If plans filed in the Supreme Court yesterday are approved, more than $18,000,000 worth of Manhattan real estate owned by Elbridge T. Gerry and the late Mrs. Louisa M. Gerry, his wife, will be sold to the Gerry Estates, Inc. Their sons, Robert L. Gerry and United States Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, have agreed to sell their individual holdings to the corporation, which will give it one of the largest groups of family real estate under corporate control in the city.

The petition, filed by Senator Gerry and his brother Robert, as executors under the will of their mother, and by the two brothers and Arthur M. Crane as trustees under a trust agreement made by Mr. and Mrs. Gerry in 1918, states that it is deemed advisable to exchange the Gerry real estate for stock in the Gerry Estates, Inc. for the reason that the corporation can better manage all the property under one control. Misses Angelica L. and Mabel Gerry, sisters of the petitioners, will also accept stock in the corporation for their real estate.

Included in the proposed sale to the corporation are a number of the most important parcels of realty in the city. Those in the deed of trust executed by Mr. and Mrs. Gerry consist of the corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-seventh Street and 14 East Forty-seventh Street, occupied by W. & J. Sloane; Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street to Forty-third Street, occupied by Stern Bros.; part of the Broadway block between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Streets, 1,115 and 1,117 Broadway; 8 to 16 West Twenty-fifth Street and 9 to 11 West Twenty-fourth Street, occupied by the Einstein-Wolff Co., and a corner at Seventh Avenue and Forty-second Street.

The property left by Mrs. Gerry to the executors, which goes to her husband during his lifetime and then to her trustees, consists of 500 to 506 Fifth Avenue; 5 to 10 West Forty-third Street, occupied by the Columbia University Club; the southwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Forty-third Street and 108 to 112 West Forty-first Street; 125 to 127 West Thirty-first Street and 130 to 132 West Thirty-second Street; the northwest corner of the Bowery and Prince Street; the northwest corner of Broadway and Warren Street; 89 Franklin Street, and 1,110 to 1,128 Third Avenue and 166 East Sixty-sixth Street.

The corporation has agreed to pay Mrs. Gerry's estate for her realty a total of $9,000,000, of which $6,000,000 is in common stock, $50,000 in prererred stock, and $3,000,000 in 4 per cent. bonds. For the Gerry trust property the corporation will give $8,750,000, of which $3,000,000 is in bonds and the remainder in common stock. Robert L. Gerry will be President and Senator Gerry Vice President of the corporation.

On the application of the executors and trustees Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel appointed George Z. Medalie referee to take testimony and report to the court his findings as to whether or not the application should be granted.

HALL LOSES OREGON LEAD.

Olcott Has 160 Plurality in Latest Returns of Primary Election.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 22 (Associated Press).—See-saw back and forth, the lead in the race for the Republican nomination for Governor swung between Charles Hall and Governor Ben W. Olcott today as additional returns were tabulated. The figures tonight from all but eighteen precincts in the State were: Olcott, 42,514; Hall, 354.

Observers say the result may not be determined until the official canvass is made in thirty days.

HOPE TO AVERT CRISIS ON JUNE 1 OVER REPARATIONS

BUT PARIS IS ANXIOUS

Chamber, Which Meets Today, Is Expected to Back Premier's Policy by Big Majority.

PARIS, May 22.—Today's review of the situation in the French capital after Genoa indicates that the approaching Franco-German "crisis" on May 31 was somewhat exaggerated on the Italian Riviera. Many things were overstated in the warm, if not heated, temperature of Genoa, where every political factor was used for what it was worth. But it seems that those who expect Foch to go gayly marching into the Ruhr or Bavaria bright and early on the morning of June 1 will be disappointed.

I do not mean to say that the French are backing down from their position that under the Treaty of Versailles France has the final, ultimate right to take military action alone if her allies will not act with her should Germany default in reparations. No Nationalist Premier, and such is M. Poincaré, could for one minute do such sacrilege. But to see the French tricolor fluttering further into Deutschland presupposes two conditions: First, that Germany voluntarily defaults, and, second, that in such case France's allies will act with her. Neither condition has yet been fulfilled.

The Reparations Commission decided that the German payments this year should be fixed at 720,000,000 gold marks, instead of 2,000,000,000 fixed by the London ultimatum, but on condition that Germany fulfill certain conditions, the most important of which was the balancing of her budget by raising a 60,000,000,000 paper mark interior loan and submitting to allied supervision of her finances. German statesmen have declared at home and at Genoa that they would never meet such conditions. But what are the facts?

What Germany Is Doing.

Germany is quite up-to-date on her payments, and for a week Finance Minister Hermes has been in Paris trying to find an arrangement which the Reparations Commission will accept before May 31 so that there will be no crisis. It is understood he will offer formally a plan for balancing the budget by interior loans and a small foreign loan, and while refusing to allow an allied commission at Berlin to run German finance, the Ministry at Berlin will agree to keep the Reparations Commission currently informed of the financial situation.

Another important factor in the beginning on Wednesday of this conference of bankers to consider conditions under which Germany could float an international loan chiefly for the purpose of paying reparations. Officially, Paris attaches much importance to this meeting, which will be attended by J. P. Morgan. It must be understood that all the bankers will do is to state on what terms they might undertake to float a loan for Germany, and then it would be up to the Allies, chiefly France, to say whether they would consent to the Reparations Commission surrendering certain of its hold on Germany to meet the bankers' conditions. Were a loan floated, France would be the chief beneficiary.

Thus on the 1st of June the situation will be that the bankers will be consulting over the conditions under which might be made a loan largely for France's benefit, and Germany will be in the position of having met her financial obligations under the new scale payments, although not having met some other conditions, such as acceptance of an allied watchdog of the German Treasury.

To suppose that under such conditions the French would cast aside all caution and at the first permitted moment invade Germany is to give them credit for little intelligence.

Some of these days the French Army may march into Germany to collect

Ex-Soldier Organizer Is Held as Embezzler; Lobbied for Bonus and Started Buddies' Club

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Marvin Gates Sperry, who made his début in Washington in 1919 as President of the Private Soldiers and Sailors' Legion, was arrested today upon charge of having embezzled $8,000 of the funds of the Buddies' Club at Baltimore, which he organized.

The arrest was made by Deputy United States Marshal George G. Henry of Baltimore. Sperry failed to obtain bail and was locked up at No. 1 Station House.

According to Marshal Henry, the club in Baltimore had been very prosperous, and Sperry succeeded in enlisting a great number of members. He suddenly disappeared, leaving Edward Smythe, a Canadian veteran, in charge of its affairs.

When creditors pressed for payment of bills Smythe confessed that the club's funds were exhausted. An investigation, it is said, disclosed that Sperry had departed with about $6,000 belonging to the club.

Sperry had a meteoric career. Shortly after the World War he had appeared in Washington, organized the Private Soldiers and Sailors' Legion, had himself elected President, and succeeded in collecting sufficient funds to make his propaganda for a large bonus for the World War veterans temporarily successful. When members of Congress learned that the movement represented his own conceived plans and that it did not have the support of many ex-service men, Sperry disappeared as a lobbyist.

Sperry asserted tonight that there was nothing to the charge which he will face tomorrow, mut that there would be serious charges preferred against Smith. He declared that he had affidavits of alleged misconduct on the part of Smith.

Revolution in Nicaragua Lasts Only 8 Hours; Threat of Our Marines to Act Is Effective

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—One of the quickest flash-in-the-pan revolutions on record in Central America took place in Nicaragua yesterday when revolutionists seized a Government fort, but gave it up to American marines, who returned it to the Government forces, all inside of eight hours.

General Arcenio Cruz was in command of the rebels, and the position they took, but failed to hold, is known as La Loma, a fortress commanding the city.

Unfortunately for the revolutionists, the American Government has a detachment of American marines encamped in the Campo de Marte, and, as soon as the commander of this detachment learned of the capture of La Loma by the revolutionists he warned them that the marine force would not hesitate to use its artillery for the protection of American interests, the American Legation and the city.

A conference was arranged by the American Minister and the marine commander between the rebel and Government leaders, after which the captured fortress was returned to the Government forces and the revolution collapsed.

The Nicaraguan Minister here, General Emiliano Chamorro, was without any direct advices from his Government tonight on the incident. He said the reported revolution was a complete surprise to him. The State Department, however, received dispatches confirmatory of news dispatches through a confidential communication from the commanding officer of the marine detachment at Managua, Nicaragua, to Major General Lejeune, head of the Marine Corps.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 21 (Associated Press).—The American Minister has communicated by wireless with Rear Admiral Cole of the United States Navy, who has replied that he is within 300 miles of Nicaragua and will arrive at Corinto tomorrow with 400 marines.

At the conference between the rebels and the Government it was agreed that the civilians implicated in the revolution should be pardoned and that the military participants should be imprisoned for thirty days.

BUCKETING BROKER CONVICTED AS THIEF

COTTON TRADING 'AFFINITIES'

'Finger-Crossing' Also Described at Trial of American Cotton Exchange.

A jury in Judge Johnstone's part of General Sessions yesterday established a precedent when it convicted Howard E. Stanley, 38 years old, a broker, who said he lived at 420 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn, on a grand larceny indictment for bucketing orders. The maximum penalty for the offense is ten years' imprisonment. When Nellson Olcott, Assistant District Attorney, notified Mr. Banton of the jury's verdict, the District Attorney said: "I have contended right along that bucketing is a polite word for stealing. This conviction bears me out."

Stanley when indicted, in the early part of the year, was a member of the firm of Miniter, Norden & Co., 20 Broad Street. The indictment on which he was convicted charged him with grand larceny in the first degree for the theft of $4,700 on stock speculations from Joseph M. Keiser, a chemical manufacturer of 480 Summer Avenue, Newark, N. J.

Frank Miniter, a member of the firm, and who was indicted with Stanley, was the principal witness against him. Miniter pleaded guilty to the indictment in the early part of last week, and is awaiting sentence. Miniter testified that the firm had about thirty customers, mostly bootblacks and domestic servants. He organized it with a capital of $500 a little more than a year ago, and said that the customers lost about $60,000 through the bucketing of their accounts.

First Check "Come-On Move."

In reply to questions by Assistant District Attorney Olcott, Mr. Keiser, the complainant, explained that in September last he placed $700 with the firm for the purchase of stock. A few days later, he said, he received $250 from the brokers, with the statement that the check represented his profits. In his summation of the case Assistant District Attorney Olcott referred to this as the "come-on-move."

Mr. Keiser said that soon afterward he deposited $1,500 in Liberty bonds with the brokerage firm and ordered the purchase of 100 shares of Mexican Petroleum, which should have returned him a profit, according to the books of the firm, of $3,200. He made a demand for the money, Mr. Keiser said, and Stanley gave him a check for $1,500 in part payment, which later was returned by the bank with the statement that the firm had not sufficient funds to meet it.

When Keiser said that he was going to call the attention of the District Attorney to the matter, Stahley disappeared. Miniter was arrested a few days after the return of the indictment, and offered to aid the prosecution. The jury had the evidence under advisement less than two hours. When the verdict was announced, Judge Johnstone remanded Stanley to the Tombs for sentence on June 1.

As he was about to be removed to the Tombs the police discovered that in the early part of 1921 Stanley was convicted in General Sessions and sentenced to six months by Judge Koenig on an indictment charging him with criminally receiving securities stolen from De Coppet & Doremus, a Stock Exchange firm at 42 Broadway.

Cotton Bucketing Trial.

The trial of the American Cotton Exchange on an indictment charging it with permitting its members to bucket the orders of customers began yesterday before a jury in Justice Marcus's special criminal term of the Supreme Court. Two witnesses called by the prosecution testified that brokers made fictitious purchases and sales of cotton each day and received commissions on them, although the purchase and sale prices were the same.

Considerable interest centres in the trial because it is the first under the law dealing with corporations engaging in bucketing practices. While the corporation alone is being tried on the indictment, the following Directors of the exchange are awaiting trial on the same charge: Randolph Rose Sr., former Vice President of the exchange; G. W. Pratt, Secretary and Treasurer of the Exchange; Angelo F. Jennings, Martin Geulin, Edward L. Patton and Raymond Palmer. The exchange has a membership of between 700 and 800, most of them resident in the South.

LADY ASTOR'S ADIEU A PLEA FOR EUROPE

Again Asks the United States to Enter the League of Nations.

SAILS FOR ENGLAND TODAY

Farewell Address Made to 1,900 Members of League for Political Education.

Lady Astor, M. P., made her farewell speech to America last night to 1,900 members of the League for Political Education at the Hotel Astor, closing her address—in which she said she was alternately "Virginian" and "Member of the House"—with a plea to this country to play the Samaritan and not the Levite toward Europe.

Once again, a frequently recurring theme in her six weeks' tour of her native land, she urged this nation to enter the League of Nations. She referred to the fact that only recently the Administration had called upon Great Britain, through the league, to protect American oil interests in Mesopotamia. She recalled that Washington had lately refused to join in the plan to aid in an inquiry "into atrocities against a Christian population."

"I ask you," she said earnestly, and her question provoked prolonged applause, "which is more important in the end—all concessions or bleeding humanity?"

When John W. Davis, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James's arose to succeed Clara B. Spence, of the Spence School, as introducer of "Nancy," he found himself in between "the House of Representatives and the House of Commons," an allusion to the fact that on one side was Alice Robertson of Oklahoma and on the other Lady Astor. Mr. Davis paid a warm tribute to the first of her sex in the "Mother of Parliaments," and declared that in filling her place in the Commons she had established a precedent for all women in politics. Mr. Davis said that Lady Astor had "carried on her post with dignity and with fearlessness that has won the respect of all peoples."

Dawn of Women in Politics.

"These representatives, Miss Robertson and Lady Astor," he said, "have taught one of the greatest lessons needed in politics—courage. They have not flinched to speak the truth as they saw it and if this is the dawn of women in politics, then I say let us thank God that we made the great adventure."

When Lady Astor arose she disclosed that forty speeches in six weeks and a constant whirling from place to place had not made inroads on the vibrant vitality she betrayed on the day of her arrival. She appeared to be as fresh as a schoolgirl, and the simple white dress she wore—simplicity and lace describes it—added to the effect. She was wearing the pearl necklace that she never forsakes, a large diamond barpin sparkled at the blue sash girdle, and twin emerald bracelets flashed when she attempted an occasional gesture.

Prior to Lady Astor the Oklahoma Representative had told the story of her entry into politics, her fight, election and appearance in the House. She had said that woman needed, as the primary political lesson, to be taught to "get into the home—know your neighbor and get out and work for the vote."

And it was the first lesson for the woman voter that caught the attention of Lady Astor when she arose, after a stirring reception, to speak.

"I've a great temptation," she remarked with a laugh, "to forsake my notes and say something about what Miss Robertson has told you. But I stayed up until 2 o'clock this morning—My Lord and I—preparing this speech and I'm not going to forsake any speech that I work over as hard as that. But this I will say: Miss Robertson has told you the big fact; she has summed up all you need to know—'know your neighbor and get out and work.'

After Lady Astor had spoken Lord Astor spoke briefly. Both left at noon today on the Aquitania. In the course of his remarks Lord Astor read a cablegram that disclosed that at Cliveden, the Astor country place, six young persons were eagerly waiting the return. This was the message from Lady Astor's six children:

"Lady Astor,
127 East Seventy-third Street,
New York City:

Bobbie, Billy, Widgie, David, Michael and Jackie."

Dangers of Education.

"Education is a dangerous thing unless it is started on the right lines. To start educating yourself for yourself is certainly one of the most misleading or mistaken forms of self-improvement. Real education should educate us out of self into something far finer—into a

W. S. WARD ADMITS KILLING IN $100,000 BLACKMAIL PLOT

New Rochelle Police Commissioner Forced to Pay $30,000 to Ex-Sailor and Two Others.

LAST DEMAND FOR $75,000

Victim Then Met Conspirators in Lonely Road and Used Pistol When Leader Fired on Him.

SEEK 2 BLACKMAILERS HERE

Mystery Thrown About Nature of Hold Conspirators Had on Son of Baking Co. President.

Walter S. Ward, 31 years old, son of George S. Ward, President of the Ward Baking Company, admitted yesterday that he was the man who shot and killed Clarence Peters, 19 years old, a former sailor, on a lonely road near White Plains early last Tuesday morning. Ward surrendered to Sheriff George J. Werner of Westchester County yesterday morning.

In a statement to the Sheriff, Ward said he shot Peters in self-defense after the latter had fired at him, and that he drove off two companions of Peters after a sharp pistol battle.

According to Ward's statement, the shooting was the culmination of a blackmailing plot of which the three men had made him the victim. He said they had hounded him for two months, forcing him to pay them $30,000, in amounts of $1,000 to $5,000, in order to keep some secret that they knew about him. Neither Ward nor his attorneys nor the Westchester County authorities would make public the nature of this secret.

Ward said a final payment of $75,000 had been demanded of him last Monday night, and that the lives of himself and his wife and family had been threatened if he failed to hand over the money.

Ward Held in $10,000 Bail.

Supreme Court Justice Seeger held Ward for the Grand Jury in $10,000 bail on a technical charge of homicide after he had told his story. He put up cash bail and was released in the custody of his counsel, John F. Brennan of Yonkers. Mr. Brennan is associated in the case with Rabenold & Scribner of 61 Broadway, Attorneys for the prisoner.

Ward lives at 69 Decatur Road, Sutton Manor, New Rochelle, and is Vice President of the Ward Baking Company. He has been Chairman of the New Rochelle Police Commission for the last three years. His wife was formerly Miss Beryl Curtis. She is the daughter of Mrs. N. Willard Curtis, 151 Arlington Avenue, Brooklyn. They have two infant children.

Peters lived in Haverhill, Mass. He served in the navy after the armistice, and at the time of the alleged blackmailing was thought by his family to have enlisted in the marines at Paris Island, S. C. Dispatches from Boston last night said he was arrested there last year for the theft of an automobile and was accused of small larcenies in Haverhill. He served three months in a Massachusetts reformatory.

Search for Blackmailers Here.

The two men said by Ward to have accompanied Peters to the spot where the rendezvous was kept were known to Ward as "Charley Ross" and "Jack." From the description given by Ward, Sheriff Werner said he believed "Charley Ross" to be a notorious confidence man, well-known about the race tracks and sporting circles of the country. "Jack" apparently was a chauffeur and gunman.

In Broadway cabarets, restaurants and cafés last night and early this morning Ward, accompanied by Sheriff Werner and four deputies, and Detectives Charles Dennison and Joseph Fitzgerald of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, made a search for two members of the alleged blackmailing band.

Having visited, without success, every place mentioned by Ward as a former haunt of the two men, the party drove in automobiles to the lower east side, where restaurants, coffee houses and former saloons, were searched. No trace of the men was found.

Detectives Dennison and Fitzgerald received a telephone call early in the evening from Sheriff Werner, who said he wanted to "make a search of certain places in Broadway" in the hope of finding the two blackmailers. The detectives told the Sheriff to drive to the

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Appointments of Postmasters in Georgia started a hot exchange in the Senate today between Senator Watson, Democrat, of that State, and Senator Phipps of Colorado, a Republican member of the Post Office Committee, with the result that business was disrupted for several minutes, after which the two Senators took their controversy into the corridors, with the Georgia Senator offering personal combat.

"If you say a word out of the way, I'll knock you down," Senator Watson said he told the Colorado Senator, after they left the Senate chamber. Senator Phipps declined to see newspapermen to discuss the incident.

Senator Watson, discussing the dispute, which began while the Senate was discussing an army bill, said Senator Phipps declined the challenge to personal combat, mentioned calling a Senate sergeant-at-arms, and then walked away. Incident closed.

The Georgia Senator explained that the dispute involved three Postmaster nominations—Jack Curran to be Postmaster at Savannah, Ga.; J. H. Crane at Dixie, Ga., and Lawson Pritchard at Tennille, Ga. All were "personally objectionable" to him, Senator Watson said, and he so notified Senator Phipps.

Mr. Watson stated that Chairman Townsend of the Post Office Committee had allowed him to name a subcommittee to consider the three nominations and that he, Mr. Watson, had chosen Mr. Phipps on the subcommittee.

Senator Phipps has been in correspondence with the nominees since, although Senator Watson said he himself had received no letters from them. Last Saturday, Senator Watson said, Mr. Phipps gave him some of the correspondence and asked him to look over the papers. Today Mr. Watson said he went to Senator Phipps and told him he would not examine the papers and demanded to know whether his opposition to the three nominees who were "personally objectionable" was to be recognized, as is the Senatorial custom. Several persons in the Senate corridors witnessed the clash between the Senators, being attracted apparently by the loud discussion which broke into a speech on the floor by Senator Wadsworth of New York, before the Senators went outside.

Senator Watson said he proposed to prevent confirmation of the three nominees, all of whom, he asserted, had made derogatory statements about him.

Complaints of the disturbance were made, according to Senator Curtis of Kansas, Chairman of the Rules Committee, by several Senators, and in the absence of a rule Senator Curtis said he arranged to talk with Senator Watson and try to prevent a further recurrence of the incident.

Wehde, India Plotter, Freed By Clemency of Harding

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Albert H. Wehde, art dilettante, one of the four persons convicted before Judge Landis in 1917 of attempting to foment a revolution in India, will be released at once from Leavenworth Penitentiary, his sentence having been commuted today by President Harding.

Wehde was sent to prison about a year ago to serve a three-year term with Gustav Jacobson, reputed leader in the plot. Jacobson was released last Christmas.

A few days ago the Rev. Jacob Fistner, pastor of St. Paul's German Lutheran Church, interceded with Attorney General Daugherty in Wehde's favor. On his plea that it was unjust to hold Wehde after Jacobson had been released, the Attorney General recommended clemency.

Survivors of Egypt Reach Paris With Stories of Heroism and of Mutiny Among Crew.

PARIS, May 22.—No more survivors from the Peninsular and Oriental liner Egypt have been picked up by the search ships since the disaster off Brest Saturday, and though there is hope that some may have been rescued by a Portuguese ship which was in the neighborhood, that hope is slight.

Confirmation of the report that two American women, Mrs. M. L. Sibley and Miss V. M. Boyer, missionaries returning to India, were missing came today from R. F. Bevan, the only other American on board. The estimated death list remains above 95 out of the 500 or more on board.

Some survivors reached Paris today on their way back to England, bringing with them tragic stories of heroism and a clearer account of the last moments, which show that in great part the mortality was due to the upsetting of the lifeboats when they were rushed by the Indian crew.

Some passengers and crew, it appears, were killed or injured in the crash of the collision with the Seine, and most of these must have gone down with the ship. The impact of the two vessels is described as having been so great as to throw will off their feet. A big hole was torn in the side of the Egypt just between the funnels. She began to make water immediately and took a list to starboard. The boats were ordered stationed at once, and the passengers, some in evening clothes and some almost undressed, climbed as best they could up the damaged companionways.

Wireless Man Dies After Rescue.

From his cabin the wireless operator immediately sent out the distress call, and stuck to his post until the vessel was near the final plunge, when he jumped overboard. An hour later, when picked up by the Seine, he was utterly exhausted and died on board.

On deck there was a panic for the few precious minutes the Egypt remained afloat. Most of the crew and firemen, as is always the case on India-bound steamers from England, were Lascars, and they poured up in a stream from below as the water rushed in on them. They struggled wildly with the white crew and the officers seized the boats. It was only after a stiff fight that discipline was restored and the boats lowered. By that time the ship had heeled over badly to starboard and seemed in danger of sinking each minute. Many of the crew and some passengers threw themselves in the water with life belts.

Of that tragic moment one story is told that equals any tale on record of gallantry at sea. The ship's printer, a man named Genner, of Dover, England, believed to be a married man with children, was on the point of throwing himself into the water in his life belt, when a woman pushed up to him, crying to be saved, for she could not swim and had no life belt. Stripping his off, Genner fastened it around her, saying, "God help me, I don't know how to swim either, but here's my belt." A few minutes later he went down in the plunge of the ship, and no trace of his body has yet been found.

MORE LETTERS PRESENTED

LAMENTS THE UNPAID FEE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Basing a renewal of charges against Attorney General Daugherty upon two additional letters which he presented in relation to the release of Charles W. Morse from the Atlanta Penitentiary, Senator Caraway of Arkansas asserted in the Senate today that in helping to procure Morse's release Mr. Daugherty violated the confidence of President Taft. He further asserted that Mr. Daugherty was retained in the case, not because he was a good lawyer, but because he enjoyed the confidence of Mr. Taft, and that when the Government discovered that Morse's pardon had been procured by fraud Mr. Daugherty and Thomas B. Felder entered into an agreement with Harry Morse, son of Charles W., to perpetuate that fraud by preventing the revocation of the pardon and the reincarceration of the former convict.

Of the two letters, which were read into the Record after having been printed in The Washington News this afternoon, the more important was a long letter from Mr. Felder to Leon O. Bailey of New York, which purports to give a full history of the proceedings leading up to the release of Morse from the penitentiary and the efforts of Mr. Daugherty and Felder to collect a fee of $25,000 from Morse for procuring his pardon.

This letter pictures Mr. Daugherty as made angry by Morse's failure to pay the $25,000. It refers to alleged evidence the Department of Justice had obtained that Morse, to deceive the examining physicians, swallowed soap suds and chemical preparations, which acted on the kidneys in such a way as to make it appear that he was suffering from Bright's disease.

Why They Didn't Sue Morse.

Mr. Felder commented that Mr. Daugherty and himself had not sued Morse, because it was thought the suit might cause the Government to take action to have Morse remanded to prison.

Felder remarked at another point that "both Mr. Daugherty and myself feel that we had had all the notoriety and newspaper publicity that we should have reason have in connection with this transaction."

Mr. Felder referred to Mr. Daugherty in the letter as a man who stood as close to President Taft as any man in the United States and that when he interested him in the case he agreed to "divide with him any compensation that I might receive." In one of their talks with Morse, Mr. Felder says, Morse told Daugherty and himself that if they succeeded in getting him out of prison he would "make you both rich" and would pay them in addition to the fee mentioned in the contract ($25,000) an extra $100,000.

The order for Morse's release followed, it is stated, the intervention in the case of John R. McLean, then publisher of The Washington Post. Ira E. Bennett, editor of The Post, according to the letter, brought the pardon from the White House to the lawyers, who received it in Mr. McLean's office.

The second letter read into the record was one from F. L. Seely of The Atlanta Georgian to Mr. Felder, wherein the writer, who first espoused Morse's cause, tells how he enlisted the aid of Felder in the case.

Just one Republican Senator went to the defense of Attorney General Daugherty, Senator Moses of New Hampshire. He charged that the attacks on the Attorney General were "smoke screens" to hide "the misdemeanors of Democratic Cabinet officers who served under the last Administration." He did not name the Cabinet officers he had in mind.

Felder's Letter to Bailey.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12, 1921.

Hon. Leon O. Bailey,
Hanover National Bank Building,
New York:

My Dear Sir:

I am in receipt of your favor of recent date advising me that Grafton Johnson had turned over to you for collection or adjustment $25,000 of common and preferred stock in the Morse Securities Company which I gave him a year ago as collateral security for a loan which I obtained.

You ask me to acquaint you with the facts of this transaction before you take the matter up with Mr. Morse and to tell you why interest upon these stocks has not been paid, and why they were transferred to him. To begin at the beginning, permit me to say that after Charles W. Morse was sent to the penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., under a fifteen-year sentence, and after his attorneys and family had exhausted every resource that they possessed or ingenuity could suggest, Hon. Fred L. Seely, then the editor and proprietor of The Atlanta Georgian, who had, as I understood it, a benevolent and charitable interest in the fate of Morse, and who had been for some years therefore a client of mine, came to my office and stated to me that I had convinced him of my resourcefulness and my capacity to "do things," and, while the Morse situation seemed hopeless, because the President had refused on the best showing that could be made, either commutation or pardon, yet he had desired me to examine thoroughly the record and if in my judgment anything could be done he would cause me to be employed in the case and would see that I was substantially compensated for services rendered in proportion to their value to Mr. Morse.

I read the record, studied the case thoroughly, got in touch with Mr. H. M. Daugherty of Columbus, Ohio, who stood as close to the President as any other lawyer or citizen of the United States, and interested him in the case, agreeing to divide with him any compensation that I might receive. We took the matter up with the Attorney General and with the President, stating to them that the record disclosed that in refusing to extend Executive clemency reasons were given which were not borne out by the record and we requested that the case be reopened.

We were informed by the President and the Attorney General that the act of the President rendered the matter a closed incident" for the present, but if we would bring the matter to their attention again just before the term of office of the President expired in March, 1913, the matter would be reopened and perhaps a diferent action taken in respect thereto.

This decision was communicated by Mr. H. M. Daugherty and myself to Mr. Morse, who had agreed to pay $6,000 cash to cover expenses (this sum was paid) and $25,000, conditional upon our obtaining his release from the penitentiary.

Alleged Promise of $100,000 Fee.

When this result was reported to Mr. Morse he stated to us in the presence of the penitentiary guard that if we would renew our efforts to obtain his release he would pay us, in addition to the amount agreed upon, the sum of $100,000, and exclaimed: "Gentlemen, I will make you both rich if you will get me out of here."

At this conciliative conference with Morse I thought that I discovered in him a very marked deterioration since the last conference I had with him. So after leaving the penitentiary I called upon Dr. A. L. Fowler at his office in the Candler Building (this doctor having been the prison physician at the time of the inception of Morse in the penitentiary) and asked him to inform me as to the state of Morse's health at the date of his inception in the penitentiary and thereafter during his incumbency as prison physician.

Dr. Fowler referred to his reports and advised me that his initial examination disclosed castes in his urine which denoted incipient Bright's disease; that this disease was progressive, that the mental condition exercised a powerful influence over the physical and accelerated its ravages, and that he entertained no doubt that if Morse was left in the penitentiary for any considerable length of time this disease would progress rapidly and result in his death.

With this cue, Mr. Daugherty and myself took up the matter de novo. We returned to Washington and discussed this phase of the case with the Attorney General and with the President. We received an intimation that if a physical examination of Morse by experts verified our suspicions that his continued incarceration would prove fatal, he would be released. A board of medical examiners was appointed at our request, an examination was made and the three physicians reported that Morse's condition was not serious. Thereafter a board of military doctors was appointed, who conducted an examination and reported that his condition was serious. The application for pardon or clemency hung fire" several weeks. Pending developments, Morse was removed from the penitentiary to the hospital at Fort McPherson.

During all of those weeks Mr. Daugherty and myself spent practically all of our time in New York, Cincinnati and Washington working upon the case.

The day before the pardon was granted and as we were hourly expecting it, some very unfavorable developments occurred, resulting from undesirable newspaper publicity, and we requested those responsible for it to desist until they "quieted down." We had been expecting for a week or ten days to get the order for Morse's release.

Move Release Was Finally Won.

It did not come, so on the day the release was granted we called at the office of Hon. John R. McLean, a warm personal friend of Mr. Daugherty's and an acquaintance of mine, also a friend of both the President and the Attorney General. Mr. McLean took the matter up actively. He called the editor-in-chief of The Washington Post, Mr. Bennett, over the phone, sent his automobile for him and had him brought to his office, where he had a long conference, going thoroughly over the situation. As a result thereof Mr. Bennett was dispatched to the office of the Attorney General, where he was joined by Attorney General Wickersham, and the twain called at the White House, and after a protracted conversation between the President and Mr. McLean over the telephone Mr. Bennett returned to the office of John R. McLean and delivered to us the order discharging Charles W. Morse, and the same was transmitted to the head official of the Atlanta Penitentiary.

A few days thereafter I called upon Mr. Morse for a settlement of his obligation. He seemed to be profoundly grateful and expressed his deep appreciation for what he was pleased to characterize my splendid efforts in his behalf," stating that as soon as he returned to New York he would send us a check for $25,000, and would very shortly thereafter pay the $100,000, and acknowledged that he had said he "would make us rich," and this he proposed to do.

A few days thereafter he went to New York, and instead of sending a check for $25,000 or any other amount he sailed for Europe on an indefinite leave of absence.

As soon as I read in the press that Morse had gone to Europe without making any reference to his obligation to us I immediately communicated with his son, Harry Morse, who had apparently directed his father's affairs, requesting an explanation. I received a very prompt reply to my letter, stating that the condition of his father's health was such as to require his immediate departure for some mineral spring in Europe; that his condition was such as to preclude his transacting any business before his departure, but he knew his father would effect a settlement with us upon his return to the States.

Immediately after Morse's departure for Europe there appeared in the press of the country numerous sensational articles to the effect that there was nothing the matter with Morse's health; that his release from the Federal penitentiary had been secured by fraud, and officials were urged to take immediate steps to have him remanded to the penitentiary.

An investigation was instituted, and Mr. Daugherty and myself, as Morse's counsel, were advised that steps would likely be taken to have Morse remanded to the penitentiary to serve the balance of his sentence. Ella Morse, a daughter, requested Mr. Daugherty and myself to meet him and his brothers in Washington for a conference.

Move to Prevent Remanding of Morse.

We met him and his brother, who then resided in Baltimore, at the Willard Hotel. We conferred at length in relation to the matter, and a decision was reached that we should get in touch immediately with the Department of Justice and forestall, if possible, any efforts to carry out the threat.

We made an appointment with the Attorney General, discussed the matter with him at length. We took the position in this conference that an executive order having been signed and promulgated commuting the sentence of the said Morse, it was not within the power of the Executive to, either change, modify or revoke the same. That if said order had been obtained by fraudulent means and artful practices, and the department desired to test this question, it would be necessary to take Morse into custody and submit the question to a court whose exclusive province it was to pass upon the issue of fact.

We were requested to submit a brief upon this subject. I returned to Atlanta and devoted several days to the preparation of an exhaustive brief upon the subject. Returned to Washington and submitted the same to the Attorney General. In addition to this, while in Atlanta I obtained additional evidence to show that Morse was in fact insane, that Bright's disease, etc. At the last-mentioned conference with the Attorney General he indicated that no immediate steps would be taken, and that if later any action looking to Morse's return to the penitentiary was taken, we would be duly advised.

We have never been reimbursed for the expenses incurred in connection with the services rendered as above set forth, and no effort of any kind or character has been made to compensate us for these, although we were assured by the Morse brothers at the Willard Hotel that these expenses and a reasonable fee would be promptly forthcoming.

Attempts to Collect Fee.

Some weeks or months elapsed before Mr. Morse returned to America. When we received information through the columns of the press, and not from him, that he had returned, I made several efforts to arrange a conference with him in New York. I finally arranged for a meeting, advised Mr. Daugherty, and we met pursuant to the appointment at his office in the city of New York.

He stated on this occasion that he had no money or property that he could convert into money with which he could compensate us; that he deeply appreciated our tireless but successful efforts in his behalf, and that it was his desire to do something then for us, which would enable us to obtain some funds immediately and that as soon as he could "get on his feet" he could be depended upon to do the right thing.

He exhibited to us certain stocks in the Morse Securities Company, stating that they were owned by his sister, Miss Jennie Morse, who, upon his representation that he was very anxious to pay or secure us, had consented to allow him to use these stocks. I told him that we could not utilize the stocks unless they were valuable, and if valuable, it seemed to us that he could raise the money on them as well or better than we could.

He stated the stocks had no market value, but an actual value of par; that they would undoubtedly pay 6 per cent. dividend, as I now remember, and perhaps more, the stocks were undoubtedly worth par, and it would only be a short space of time before par could be realized for the stocks, and as soon as it could be, he would redeem the stocks. Indeed, he thought he would be able to redeem them within a very short time with the proceeds of the sale of some livery stable property that he either owned or was interested in and which was then in the hands of some real estate agent who was negotiating the sale of the property.

Says Daugherty Left in Anger.

On this occasion Mr. Daugherty complained very bitterly of our treatment by Morse, became very angry and left the office before the negotiations were conducted. After he left Mr. Morse requested me to take the stocks up to the McAlpin Hotel, where we were stopping, and to urge Mr. Daugherty to take a different view of the matter—to either accept the stocks in payment of our $25,000 demand or as collateral security to be redeemed by him at a very early date, stating that he would come by the McAlpin during the afternoon on his way home.

I left his office about noon, went to the McAlpin, lunched with Mr. Daugherty and explained the circumstances to him. He positively and emphatically declined to take the stocks either in payment or as collateral security, although I urged him to do so, stating that I had confidence in Morse's integrity and faith in his purpose to make good his numerous promises.

About 4 o'clock that afternoon Mr. Morse and his son Harry appeared and came to my room; Mr. Daugherty came in. An animated discussion followed, in which Mr. Daugherty denounced Morse in unmeasured terms, declining emphatically to accept the stocks tendered, either as collateral or payment.

In this humor he left the room. After some further discussion with Mr. Morse he asked me to hold the stocks until he could make some other arrangements in respect to them. I told him that I could not use the stocks, but he left the room and left them on my dresser, and when I left the city that night for my home in Atlanta, Ga., I took the stocks along in my valise.

During the years that have intervened I have had some correspondence with Mr. Morse about these stocks. I have had about two or three conferences with him about this obligation to us. He has never in writing or orally claimed or asserted that these stocks were given to us as payment of his obligation. He has always reaffirmed his promises to pay us and renewed his assurances to satisfy us in every particular when he got able to do it.

In the year 1914, just after war was declared in Europe, I called upon Mr. Morse in New York and urged him to do something for us, stating that I had bought a good deal of property, owed a good many notes that were maturing and that I needed the money. In this conference he stated to me that he was getting on his feet" and didn't think it would be very long before he could take care of his obligation to us. I found it necessary to raise a little money, so I hypothecated these securities with Grafton Johnson, the present holder, for this purpose.

In conclusion permit me to state that I have not been more aggressive in my efforts to force Morse to pay his obligations to us for the sole and simple reason that I have always felt apprehensive that if we brought suit or agitated the matter that immediate steps would be taken by the Department of Justice to secure an annulment of the Executive order and the return of Morse to the penitentiary.

I have not been unmindful of the damaging evidence secured by the Department of Justice in the prosecution of its investigations to ascertain whether or not a fraud had been perpetrated upon the Government by Morse in his efforts to obtain his freedom, and while I knew that if a fraud had been perpetrated, the Hon. H. M. Daugherty and myself were not only not connected therewith, but were not even suspected of being connected therewith, but that the disclosure and publicity would be disagreeable, if not embarrassing, to everybody concerned.

What He Heard Morse Did.

We were informed that the department was in possession of evidence going to show that after physicians were appointed to examine Morse, and before they appeared on the scene, that soapsuds or chemicals or something would be taken by him to produce hemorrhage of the kidneys, and as soon as the examination was over the patient would recuperate rapidly.

As I were stated, we have not brought suit or instituted any proceedings in the matter, because both Mr. Daugherty and myself felt that we had all the notoriety and newspaper publicity that we should in reason have in connection with this transaction.

As a matter of fact, during the years that have intervened I have had frequent intimations that the matter would be reopened and I have always promptly taken steps to stop it. I had recently heard a well-authenticated rumor that steps are likely to be taken at any moment to have the matter investigated to that certain interests in New York were demanding that this be done.

I have made up my mind to use no further efforts to prevent it, having reached the conclusion that the investigation will not hurt, but will help Mr. Daugherty and myself. So if the bringing of a suit by you to collect these securities will have the effect of precipitating matters, why so far as I am concerned, they will just have to come. In a recent conference of Mr. Daugherty we agreed that the fullest investigation will conclusively demonstrate that if fraud was committed, we had no connection with it.

When we were employed by Hon. Fred L. Seely to represent Morse in the case, his situation was utterly hopeless. His family, friends and lawyers had exhausted every effort to secure a favorable consideration of his case. If Hon. H. M. Daugherty and myself had not been employed, he would have been today in his grave or in the penitentiary serving his sentence. Through our efforts he was released. We were promised substantial compensation. We have never received it.

In addition to this I have heard whisperings and rumors to the effect that Morse had said things which reflect upon Mr. Daugherty and myself, such as that we "pulled into the case," and that we rendered him no beneficial service; we were "trying to blackmail him."

I cannot believe that he could have given utterance to any such expressions because he knows, as does every member of his family, that these statements are false. He knows that we were approached by Hon. Fred L. Seely, who represented him, and that our contract was made as a result of negotiations with Mr. Seely.

He knows, his family knows, Mr. Bennett, editor-in-chief of The Washington Post, knows that his release was secured by and through the efforts of Hon. H. M. Daugherty and myself and by no other individual, corporation or group of individuals living, and by no other individual or corporation, living or dead, on the earth or beneath it, standing on their heads or on their heels, sitting up or lying down.

"Richly Earned" What Morse Offered.

We have richly earned what Morse agreed to pay, viz., the expenses, the $25,000 and $100,000 and whatever is involved in his assurance, "I will make you both rich." I don't want him to "make us both rich," I dont want the $100,000 he agreed to pay, but I do want the $25,000 that he contracted in writing to pay for securing his release from the penitentiary, and I do want compensation for services rendered him, by engagement of his son, Harry Morse, for coming to Washington and presenting to the Department of Justice through a brief filed and by oral argument, reasons why he should not be remanded to the penitentiary, and I propose to have this and have it at a very early date. I have written at length so that you, as attorney for Grafton Johnson, who holds these "soap wrapper" securities, which were reported to us as being worth par, may know all the facts.

I am mailing a copy of this letter to Charles W. Morse at Pier 32, New York, and to Harry Morse, whose address I do not know, but at the same address also a copy to Hon. H. M. Daugherty and a copy to Hon. F. L. Seely.

I am not mailing a copy to Mr. Bennett of The Washington Post because I have recently gone over the matter with him and he confirms my statements in respect of what happened within his knowledge both in letter and spirit.

If I can be of further service to you, command me.

I beg to remain yours very truly,
(Signed) T. B. FELDER.

Seely's Letter to Felder.

Following is the letter written by F. L. Seely of The Atlanta Georgian to Mr. Felder:

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 16, 1917.

Mr. Thomas B. Felder, Towne, Bailey, Felder & Thompson, Woodward Building, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Felder:

I have just received your letter on the 18th, and have carefully read the copy of the one to Mr. Bailey, and can only say that every statement in your letter with which I am familiar is substantially correct. You know, of course, that I had no connection with, or knowledge of, what transpired after Mr. Morse left the prison.

To be specific, after Morse had tried every possible avenue of relief, I suggested to him that he employ you, explaining to him that your firm had been my attorneys for a number of years and that I believed you of unusual ability to assist him. Upon his request, I took you to the United States Penitentiary and was present at your conference with him.

You are aware, of course, that I visited Mr. Morse for a long period at least once a week, and when his health broke down I was there sometimes as often as every day. So I was familiar with his condition and there is no question but that he was not far from the end of his rope, nor has there ever been any question in my mind but that he would have died in a few more weeks.

I did not know Mr. Morse previous to his going to prison, and was asked to visit him by a New York World correspondent, who came down with him on the train. I made no effort to secure his release until I saw that his health was nearly gone. I made no appeal to the President nor to any one with any political connections.

It was my belief that if Mr. Morse deserved release it should come through legal channels, and my activity in securing you was perfectly natural and businesslike, because you had been my attorney and I believed he needed additional legal assistance.

I have never given expression to my feelings over Mr. Morse's failure to pay this debt, and I would dislike extremely to have to be brought into any controversy. As you know, I have seen very little of you since Mr. Morse's release; in fact, I have seen much more of Mr. Morse than I have of you, but if necessary I am prepared to testify at any moment that it is my belief Mr. Morse owes his liberation and his life to your and Mr. Daugherty's efforts, and it is very unjust that you gentlemen should have been kept out of your remuneration.

You are well aware that my interest in Mr. Morse was purely a philanthropic one. I spent a lot of time and not a little expense in my endeavors to help him while his term lasted, but I have never permitted any remuneration of any kind.

I trust Mr. Morse will pay you, but, after so long a time, am frank to say that if he doesn't you should compel it, if possible. Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) F. L. SEELY.

Caraway Comments on Letters.

It was a few minutes before 5 o'clock when Senator Caraway came into the Chamber. He was immediately recognized, and said:

"I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record two letters. These letters deal with the procuring of commutation of sentence of Charles W. Morse. One is a letter, written by F. L. Seeley to Mr. Felder, commiserating with him because Morse had not paid his fee according to contract.

"The other is a letter written by Thomas B. Felder explaining the entire transaction of the procuring of the commutation of sentence. It goes further than that. It tells that he understood that after the commutation had been granted the Attorney General had learned that fraud had been practiced upon the Government in procuring the commutation, and it was the understanding of Felder that the Government had evidence that each time before Morse was brought before the board of doctors to determine whether he was afflicted with Bright's disease some kind of chemical was given him to make his kidneys bleed, and thereby they deceived the doctors.

"The letter says the reason why Daugherty and Felder did not get Morse when he failed to pay them the fee they were promised was because they were afraid the Attorney General, through the President, would set aside the commutation, and it would be very hurtful to him and to Mr. Daugherty, and they had had about all the notoriety in that matter that they wanted to get.

"Felder says more than that, and the significance of one article in the contract with Morse becomes apparent. In the contract with Morse, which was put in the Record Saturday and which Felder said on Sunday was genuine, they made Morse contract that he would submit absolutely to their suggestions; that whatever suggestion they might make he would acquiesce in.

"I presume in anticipation of the fact that they were going to have him die apparently of Bright's disease, they made him agree that if they wanted him to be sick he would be sick. That is the significant part of the apparent reason for putting in that clause, because Felder said in the letter that when they agreed to get Morse a pardon or commutation for $25,000, they failed first, and Daugherty and Felder went to the penitentiary and told Morse that they had failed.

"However, they said, the President had stated, or the Attorney General, I don't recall which, but the latter will show, that just before his term expired they might come back again and there might be a different result.

"When they told Morse that, he was very much disturbed. He said, 'If you will get me out of here, I will give you $100,000.' He made that promise, as Felder said, in the presence of a witness. In addition to that, he added a rather vague expression: 'And I will make you both rich.'

"Felder says: 'As we talked, I thought I noticed that Morse was not looking as strong as he did the first time I had seen him.' So they went to the office of Dr. Fowler, who had been the physician when Morse came, and asked him to tell them what Morse's condition was when he came. Fowler looked at his record and said: 'My examination, when he was first admitted, convinced me that he had incipient Bright's disease and that it was a progressive kind, and with mental anxiety his condition would be aggravated.'

"With this information, Daugherty and Felder came immediately to Washington and saw Taft and Wickersham, the Attorney General, and got a promise that if an examination showed that the life of Morse was endangered by confinement he would be released. They went back and got a board of doctors, and they want over Morse and did not find anything wrong with him, or nothing serious. Then they got a board of army doctors and had Morse removed, and those doctors found out that he had Bright's disease and was in a very precarious condition.

"Just after that occurs this rather significant statement that Felder now makes when he wrote this letter, that 'We understand the department has since got hold of evidence that each time before Morse was examined by this board of experts he took either soapsuds or some kind of chemicals that made his kidneys bleed and therefore fooled the experts.

"Here is the significant part on something else. He said that as soon as he heard that the department had gathered this evidence after Morse had been released he communicated with Mr. Daugherty and Mr. Daugherty and he met the sons of Morse at the Willard Hotel in Washington, and they agreed to pay an additional fee if they would keep the department from setting aside the commutation; that Daugherty went to the Attorney General; that he and Daugherty went to the President and tried to persuade him (and I think possibly did finally); that since the commutation had been made the President had no power to revoke it or to modify it; that it was a final transaction.

"Here is what I call attention to. Taft in 1914 told the truth when he said that this case was one that shook his confidence in expert opinion. Taft knew that he had been imposed upon. The Attorney General knew he had been imposed upon. The Attorney General was preparing to have the commutation of sentence revoked and Felder and Daugherty came here and persuaded him not to do it.

"Here is the thing I complain of. Daugherty came into this case not because it needed a lawyer; it needed a doctor. Dr. Fowler, who came into the case because he had the confidence of the President of the United States. He abused that confidence and he and Felder got this man's sentence commuted. After the fraud was discovered they came here and engaged in argument and submitted briefs to keep the President from righting a wrong.

"If Mr. Daugherty was a friend to the President and the President was a friend to Mr. Daugherty and had not had anything to do with this fraud; if he had only learned of it after it had been perpetrated, he would have been the first man to go to Mr. Taft and say: 'Mr. President, I induced you to pardon Morse under the belief that he was afflicted with a fatal malady. I have discovered that he practiced a fraud on you. If there is any way for you to right that, go ahead and do it. I wash my hands of it right here.'

"But instead of doing that they engaged for an additional fee to prevent the Attorney General from asking that the President set aside the commutation of sentence."

Senator Moses here interrupted:

"My opinion is that the searching of ancient files and the use of bad grammar, either in writing or by witnesses, had nothing whatever to do with the real merits of this case. It is my opinion that the whole performance, which has gone on the other side of the chamber in this matter, has not proceeded because participants in it cared a rap about Morse or about Scalfe or about Felder or much about Daugherty; but they are interested, as I believe, Mr. President, in another Attorney General of the United States—one who served under the previous Administration."

Senator Caraway answered:

"If that is an intimation that I have an interest in any other Attorney General, the Senator is absolutely not correct."

"So far as the Senator from Arkansas is concerned I accept his statement," replied Mr. Moses, "but there are those connected with the subject who are furnishing the documents, who are searching the files, who in my opinion do have that interest and who know perfectly well what the present Attorney General of the United States is now doing in connection with the Morse case and in connection with the other case which has been cited here, namely, the Bosch Magneto case."

Mr. Moses declared that the efforts of Attorney General Daugherty to prosecute war fraud cases "will seriously embarrass the former Attorney General of the United States in one case and the former Secretary of the Treasury in another," and these unnamed officials "are likely to find their records seriously impugned if the President Attorney General and Department of Justice are permitted to go forward with their contemplated proceedings."

Senator Caraway replied:

"I wish the Senator would say who he thinks furnishes this information and where it comes from."

"I have no idea who furnishes it or who it comes from," answered Mr. Moses, "but I know it must come out of somebody's private letter files to which access can be had only by the men to whom the letters were written or somebody who was privy to the matter in the direct instance."

To this the Arkansas Senator retorted:

"It is very courageous to charge somebody with a wrong doing and say you do not know who he is. It takes a lot of courage to do that."

Mr. Caraway referred to the statement of Senator Watson of Indiana, in the Senate that the Attorney General had told him that he (the Attorney General) had never received a cent for getting Morse out of prison and had not had anything to do with the case. Another Republican Senator added Mr. Caraway, has since told him that Daugherty made the same statement to him.

Attorney General Daugherty refused tonight to comment on the new charges made today in the Senate. His secretary said that he might give out a statement tomorrow.

2 AMERICAN WOMEN PERISHED ON LINER

in the few boats launched. For a time he and the ship's second officer struggled to keep themselves afloat by clinging to a little raft, but Brenner could not stand the strain, and before help reached them from the Seine he suddenly let go his hold, crying out to his companion, "Good-bye, old lad, I'm finished."

One of the saddest of all the cases is that of a Mr. Bado, who was traveling with his wife and two children. He managed to find places for them in one of the boats, but as it was being lowered the fear-crazed Lascars rushed aboard and overturned it, so that all the passengers threw themselves into the water. Bado dived into the sea in an effort to save his family, but none of them was ever seen again, and the unfortunate man, in a half-crazed state, is being cared for at the Brest hospital.

A very few survivors managed to save either money or valuables and all the baggage was lost. According to the ship's Captain, there was $1,500,000 in gold on board that went down with the ship in fifty fathoms of water. The cargo, too, was a valuable one, and of the mail only one bag was saved. Some of the passengers were dressing for dinner at the moment of the collision and when picked up and landed by the Seine were wearing only their underclothes. Yesterday morning's procession of survivors through the streets of Brest was a pitiful sight. Many of them were clothed in sailors' blankets from the Seine, for whose gallantry and experience in picking them up there was nothing but praise.

BREST, May 22 (Associated Press).—The thickest fog in years around the Finistere-Ushant Light alone was responsible for the catastrophe to the British steamship Egypt, according to Captain L. Barzic, commanding officer of the freight steamer Seine, in his report to the Ministry of Merchant Marine. The Seine rammed the Egypt Saturday night and nearly 200 persons lost their lives in the disaster.

"The fog was so thick," says the report, "that the Captain on the bridge was unable to see the bow of his ship. On Saturday at 4:30 P. M. the fog became so thick I gave orders to slow down to fifty revolutions a minute, thus maintaining an average speed of six knots. When at 7 o'clock I heard a fog horn quite close, and immediately a huge bulk appeared at right angles crossing our bow. I gave orders to reverse the engines. But too late. A terrible crash occurred, my ship striking the other amidship.

"The fog whistle was sounded and I finally succeeded in catching sight of a great liner, which was listing badly to starboard. At 7:40, the ship which later was identified as the Egypt, went down by the stern.

"I ordered all the boats lowered and scoured the sea for hours picking up several dead and also many in whom life was not extinct. I gave up about 11:30 and returned to Brest."

The disaster occurred a few miles from Green Rocks, where the Drummond Castle was wrecked in June, 1896, with a loss of 247 lives.

Captain of the Egypt in a Daze.

LONDON, May 22.—"If it had not been for the lascars and natives rushing for the boats all the women would have been saved." This declaration is made in a signed statement given to the correspondent of The Evening News at Brest by Joseph Durf, a Septchman, who was a passenger on the Egypt.

The correspondent declares that there is ample confirmation of a panic, although both passengers and officers of the ship are extremely reticent. He says Captain Collyer walking about today as if in a daze. All he would say of the tragedy was: "I am the Captain of the Egypt, and she is now lying at the bottom of the ocean."

Robert J. Bevan, an American survivor, explained that the great list the Egypt took immediately after the collision made it difficult for the passengers to approach the lifeboats. He admitted there was a certain amount of panic.

A. W. Harwick, the senior wireless operator, was not on duty when the collision occurred, but he rushed to the wireless cabin and took the place of the operator on duty, sticking to his post until the ship sank and, after, with his hand on the key sending out the signal S. O. S. Harwick recently was on the Russian icebreaker Lenine, and saved the lives of two Germans when it ran on the rocks.

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 22.—Mrs. Minnie L. Sibley, reported missing after the British steamship Egypt went down Saturday night off the island of Ushant, near the French coast, was a Congregationalist missionary returning to her post at Bombay, India, after a year's furlough spent in Toledo.

Mrs. Sibley was a widow and made her home in Toledo with a sister, Mrs. Evelyn C. Woodruff. She left here April 6 and sailed May 4 from Boston.

PITTSBURGH, May 22.—Miss Virginia Boyer, reported missing after the P. & O. liner Egypt went down off the coast of France early Saturday night, was a Lutheran missionary returning to India after a furlough spent in Pittsburgh. Miss Boyer was an orphan who had been reared in the Lutheran Orphans' Home at Zelienople, near here, and later was a nurse in Passavant Hospital. Her station in India was at Rahimatpur. Her latest visit to this country was occasioned by ill health.

GILLEN DENIES PART IN MORSE DEALINGS

GIVES RECORD IN OFFICE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Martin J. Gillen of 120 Broadway, New York, who was executive assistant to John Barton Payne and Admiral William S. Benson when they were chairmen of the Shipping Board, and was among the thirty-odd persons indicted by the Federal Grand Jury in New York for misuse of the mails in connection with Charles W. Morse's shipbuilding operations, left today at the White House for President Harding and sent to many others a statement "concerning the charges against him. Gillen says in his statement that it shows every fact bearing on his relations with the Morse interests.

Copies of the statement were sent to Attorney General Daugherty, the members of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary and the members of the Shipping Board. Copies were sent also to eleven persons who, Mr. Gillen says, are material witnesses. If they had been called before the Grand Jury, he says, they would have been able to have testified to all the material facts bearing on his connection with the Morse shipbuilding affairs before the Shipping Board. The names of these witnesses, he charges, were known to the Department of Justice officer who laid the case before the Grand Jury. In a letter addressed to those to whom the statement was sent Gillen says:

"I herewith respectfully submit that a special officer of the Department of Justice and others not officers of the department—with full knowledge of all the material facts and of the eleven distinguished and material witnesses who would support the facts—used the sacred and powerful machinery of the Department of Justice and the Federal Grand Jury to indict an innocent man by withholding from the Grand Jury all the material facts, the eleven material witnesses and the material public documents.

"Permit me to point out that it will not take two days to investigate this matter, and I herewith hold myself in readiness to appear and assist in bringing the witnesses and documents at your immediate call."

Denies Connection With Morse.

Mr. Gillen asserts that he never met Morse or any of his representatives prior to his official connection with them when he was an officer of the Shipping Board, and that afterward he never had any business relations with the Morse family, interests or companies. All the talk and scandal affecting Morse, Mr. Gillen says, have grown out of the contracts made by the Morse interests during the war, and the time to have passed on Morse's financial integrity and whether the Government should do business with him and his companies was on June 15, 1917, when Chairman William Denman of the Emergency Fleet Corporation gave a contract to the Morse interests for twelve wooden ships, and on other subsequent occasions. These subsequent occasions, Mr. Gillen says, were on Aug. 11, 1917, when Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board gave them a contract for six steel cargo ships; Dec. 7, 1917, when Chairman Piez gave them a contract for twelve steel cargo ships, and April 20, 1918, when Chairman Piez gave them a contract for six steel ships.

These contracts, said Mr. Gillen, amounted to about $55,000,000. They were under way when John Barton Payne became Chairman of the Shipping Board. Chairman Payne canceled the contract for the twelve wooden ships, and later, when representatives of Morse appeared before him on Sept. 15, 1919, concerning troubles at the Virginia Shipbuilding Company, a Morse concern, he stopped the contract involved, amounting to $22,000,000, for building twelve other ships, and sold to the Morse interests for the full amount the Government had paid in progress payments to date, $13,500,000. Mr. Gillen says that this saved the Government from investing about $8,000,000 more in the Morse contracts and compelled the Morse interests to raise through their own means all money that would be needed to carry out their building program at the plant of the Virginia Shipbuilding Company.

Under this arrangement, says Mr. Gillen, the situation remained at the plant of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation up to April, 1920, when, on account of the failing financial condition of the Morse interests, a hearing was requested before the Shipping Board by the Morse counsel, Joseph P. Cotton. An open hearing was held on that date before Mr. Gillen as Trustee for the Shipping Board; Robert Dean, general counsel; Alonso Tweedale, general controller; Robert Hague, Director of Construction, and several assistants. It was decided, says Mr. Gillen, to recommend to the Shipping Board that $600,000 be advanced to the Groton Iron Works, a Morse concern, upon the following conditions:

Gives Conditions for Advance.

That full title to about $4,000,000 worth of unfinished ships at the Virginia Shipbuilding Company be placed in the Government in addition to $13,500,000 in ships already delivered; that final payment of $500,000 in cash and $325,000 in ship materials be withheld from the Groton Iron Works until a complete audit was completed; that large net operating revenues from seven ships of the Morse interests be taken over and applied to his building contracts; that the Virginia Shipbuilding Company and the United States Steamship Company guarantee the Government against any loss on the Groton contract.

At the open hearing, says Mr. Gillen, Mr. Cotton, counsel for the Morse interests, requested a copy of the written memorandum covering the agreed points. This was granted. The indictment of Mr. Gillen, the statement says, was for delivering a copy of this agreement to the Morse interests.

Mr. Gillen alleges that Fletcher Dobyns, representing the Department of Justice, and Elmer Schlesinger, the present general counsel of the Shipping Board, withheld from the Grand Jury all the pertinent facts and the evidence of eleven material witnesses to the agreement to furnish counsel for Morse with the memorandum. Mr. Gillen also states that Mr. Dobyns interviewed John Barton Payne, Robert L. Dean, W. S. Nottingham and Guy D. Goff of the Shipping Board, who confirmed to Mr. Dobyns that Mr. Gillen was innocent. It is alleged by Mr. Gillen that in spite of this Mr. Dobyns thereafter withheld these and other material witnesses from the Grand Jury.

Mr. Gillen says that Mr. Dobyns has since asserted that the memorandum was drafted by Mr. Gillen for the purpose of aiding the Morse interests to sell stock. To this Mr. Gillen replies that the written memorandum shows that the Virginia and Groton companies were in failing financial condition, and were both confronted by a receivership; that it proposed that the Shipping Board take from the Virginia Shipbuilding Company title to all the ships, completed and partly completed, and ship material at its plant; that the Shipping Board withheld from Groton Iron Works $500,000 in cash and $325,000 of shipping material; that the Shipping Board compel the Virginia Company and the United States Steamship Company to subject all their remaining equities to a lien of guarantee for the completion of the Groton contract, and that the Shipping Board, by contract take all the net operating revenues of the Virginia ships, leaving only a shell to the stockholders of the Morse interests.

Mr. Gillen asks two questions:

1. Why did not Mr. Dobyns seek an indictment of Messrs. Dean and Nottingham of the Shipping Board, who signed the memorandum, and Mr. Cotton, counsel of the Morse interests, who requested the memorandum in behalf of these interests?

2. How can any honest, intelligent investigating legal mind come to the conclusion that the open hearing, the gathering of new information and the taking from the Morse interests of every remaining equity was otherwise than what the memorandum fully implied, namely, the proper protection of the United States Government?

SUBMARINE RAMS SCHOONER

Virginia Olson Reaches Dock in Los Angeles and Then Sinks.

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—The new steam schooner Virginia Olson was rammed by the Navy submarine D-7 in a dense fog off the breakwater outside the harbor here today and, racing at full speed with a hole in the bow, sank just after reaching dock in the harbor here.

Captain John Johnson reported that the submarine proceeded on its way seaward after the collision. He said he did not know whether it was damaged or not.

BULGARIAN REVOLT RUMOR DISCREDITED

SOME COMMUNIST RIOTING

Conflicts Have Occurred Between Bulgarian Reds and General Wrangel's Soldiers.

PARIS, May 22.—The French Foreign Office tonight was without any confirmation of the reports which reached here yesterday to the effect that a revolution had broken out in Bulgaria, and that King Boris had fled. The Bulgarian Legation, moreover, has issued a denial of the reported revolution.

Although no press dispatches coming directly from Sofia were received in Paris today, those of yesterday told of the approaching Peasant Congress of 50,000 delegates scheduled to convene in the Bulgarian capital May 28, and no mention was made of revolutionary activities. The dispatches merely stated that the Government had mustered large forces of police to maintain order during the peasants' gathering.

Representatives of peasant parties in Jugoslavia, Rumania and Poland are expected to attend the congress, which will be presided over by Alexander Stamboulisky, Bulgaria's picturesque Premier and peasant political leader.

VIENNA, May 22 (Associated Press).—Apparently no revolution has taken place in Bulgaria. Belgrade advices and also the Bulgarian Legation minimize the reported troubles. There have been conflicts only between the Communists and the Wrangel soldiers, after a resolution was adopted by the Communists demanding the expulsion of the soldiers.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The conviction that there was not the slightest foundation in fact for reports of a revolution in Bulgaria and of King Boris fleeing to Varna was expressed today by Stephan Panaretoff, Bulgarian Minister to the United States.

The Minister in support of his conviction pointed out that, while the reports came from Vienna and were based on rumors from Belgrade, an Associated Press dispatch under date of Saturday made no mention of any revolution and, on the contrary, showed that peaceful conditions existed there.

"Why should the King fly from Sofia to Varna?" asked Mr. Panaretoff. "It would be as if he had fled from Philadelphia to Harrisburg; if he were compelled to run away at all he would certainly try to get out of his own country."

Mr. Panaretoff said he knew that Premier Stambulisky, who is declared in Vienna to have led the revolt, was on the best of terms with King Boris, and that the Premier did not favor the Communists and would be the last man to further a revolution which in the nature of things would have to be directed against his own Government.

The Minister said the Bulgarian Government had been embarrassed by the presence of 20,000 Russian soldiers of General Wrangel's army, who constituted a menace, as the Bulgarian Government was forbidden by the peace treaty to keep more than a total of that same number of its own soldiers in the whole country. As the Bulgarian army was required to be purely a volunteer force, it had not been found practicable to recruit it to its full authorized strength, and so far only 7,000 Bulgarians had been willing to enter the ranks, he said.

"There is not the slightest danger of a communistic uprising in Bulgaria," said the Minister. "Seventy per cent. of the population is agricultural, and it is well known that the farmers are never sympathetic with communism. Being intensely devoted to the idea of personal possession, they do not take to the suggestion that they should share their cows and pigs with any one that comes along. Moreover, they are very fond of their King, who is the most popular of monarchs."

The Minister was in conference today with the officials of the State Department, and found that they also were without any knowledge of a revolution in Bulgaria.

SAYS FRELINGHUYSEN MISLED HARDING

Opponent in Jersey Primaries Blames Senator for Employment of Women at Night.

George L. Record, who opposes Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen for the Republican nomination for Senator in the September primaries, made public yesterday a letter to Senator Frelinghuysen in which he sneers at the Senator's "lavish" entertainment of the President and accuses Mr. Frelinghuysen of having misled the President into "apologizing by inference" for the failure of the Republican Party to keep a platform pledge to abolish night work by women in New Jersey. The pledge was broken, Mr. Record charges, because "enough of our Republican Senators were controlled by the lobby of industrial slave drivers."

The letter continues:

"This leads me to point out the fact that you are yourself responsible for the practice of night work in this State in the place where it is most extensively and inhumanly practiced, to wit, the Botany Mills in Passaic. These mills were taken over by the Government during the war on the ground that they were owned by Germans, and are still under the control of directors appointed by the Government. Those appointees are your personal selections, such as ex-Governor Stokes, Mr. James Logan, editor of The Sunday Call, and other political friends. It is in their power, and therefore in your power, to stop this dreadful practice of forcing women to work in these mills at night in order to pile up more profits for these millionaires who will ultimately regain possession of the mills.

"You have it in your power to force this discontinuance of this horrible practice of night work of women in these particular mills until the efforts of humane and courageous women and men shall arouse a public opinion in this State which will compel the passage of a new law putting an end to this hideous practice."

MEXICAN REBELS DEFEATED.

Government Forces Win Two Battles and Execute Two Officers.

MEXICO CITY, May 22 (Associated Press).—General Serrano, Secretary of War, arrived in Villa Hermosa, the capital of Tabasco State, yesterday afternoon, and an active campaign against the rebel leader, General Carlos Greene, was immediately started, according to official advices.

Nicasio Vazquez and Donaciano Escalante, former majors in the Federal Army, were executed yesterday after their capture by Government forces under General Manuel Arenas in the Huasteca district, near Tampico.

Both Vazquez and Escalante belonged to the rebel forces of General Manuel Larraza, who has been operating in that region. An official statement says that the rebels were dispersed with heavy losses, and that the two former majors, who were in command, were court-martialed and executed on the field of battle.

Another force of rebels was defeated yesterday at Aquismon. These victories are regarded by the War Office as important.

Without referring directly to Señor de la Huerta's trip, El Democrata calls attention to the vital importance of any agreement made with New York bankers. "The lesson of Genoa is eloquent," says the paper. "We must never forget that financial affairs are not treated at Versailles, San Sebastian, Spa, Geneva, San Remo, London or Paris, but in New York, New York holds the purse strings of the world. Neither must we forget that if we are to live as neighbors with a nation of capitalistic organization, we must pay what we owe, and a trifle more."

Prominent men in banking circles said that they did not believe the rumors of the abandonment of Señor de la Huerta's trip, although it was pointed out that Augustin Legorreta, manager of the Banco Nacional, is already on his way to New York and might be empowered to act for the Government in certain matters looking to financial adjustment. Señor Legorreta is said to have the complete confidence of the Government, and some months ago was invited to proceed to New York to conduct preliminary negotiations with Thomas W. Lamont.

WELCOME ZITA TO SPAIN.

Royal Family, Premier and a Military Guard Greet Her in Madrid.

MADRID, May 22 (Associated Press.)—Ex-Empress Zita, accompanied by her children and her mother, the Archduchess Maria Theresa, arrived here today. King Alfonso, the Queen Mother, the Princes, the Premier and the Foreign Minister, met her at the station. A detachment of the Leon Regiment, of which former Emperor Charles was a colonel, acted as a guard of honor.

TOMKINS HEIRS LOSE MOVE TO QUASH SUIT

The conduct of the late Calvin Tomkins, Dock Commissioner under the Gaynor Administration, was described as "incompatible with that good faith which a fiduciary owes to those who trust him" by Supreme Court Justice Richard P. Lydon yesterday, when he refused an application for the dismissal of a complaint against the Tomkins estate. The opinion of Justice Lydon referred specifically to the late Mr. Tomkins's conduct when the latter was President of the Albert Manufacturing Company.

The complaint which the executors of the estate sought to have dismissed was filed by Louisa M. Jongers, owner of 1,100 shares of the Albert Manufacturing Company, who brought action for an accounting. The executors of the estate are Mrs. Kitty M. Tomkins, widow, and Calvin Tomkins Jr., son of the former Dock Commissioner. They were represented by Warner & Kolb, 302 Broadway, who said they would appeal from the decision.

The complaint of Mrs. Jongers set forth that Mr. Tomkins owned 1,298 shares, or a little more than one-third of the 3,500 shares of the Albert Manufacturing Company, and controlled a majority of the stock of the Newark Plaster Company. It further stated that Mr. Tomkins entered into an oral agreement in 1916 with Charles J. Osman, Treasurer and manager of the Albert Manufacturing Company under which Tomkins was to purchase in quantity all the products from the Albert Manufacturing Company which he then resold to the customers of that concern and to the Newark Plaster Company, of which Tomkins was President and a Director.

The complaint said the Albert Manufacturing Company, incorporated in New Brunswick, had been doing business for eighty years, and that one of its stockholders was Joseph Tomkins, 90 years old, of Hillsborough, New Brunswick, who has 1,101 shares. The company controls large deposits of gypsum rock, used in the manufacture of its wares.

Purchases of rock, cement, plaster and other products are alleged to have been made by the Newark Plaster Company and by other customers from the Albert Manufacturing Company at prices established under the oral agreement by which the late Mr. Tomkins reaped large profits. Referring to this agreement, Justice Lydon said:

"I am of the opinion that this was an unusual contract to make and that it should, in the ordinary and usual course of business enterprise, have been submitted to the board of directors for consideration. Sound business prudence would have directed this course. Obviously, Osman, the Treasurer and manager, could not make such a contract without express authority from or confirmation of the Board of Directors, and even if it be assumed that it was one that the President of the Albert Company had authority to make in the usual course of business, nevertheless the defendant Tomkins was barred from making such a contract, as President of the Albert Company, with himself.

"It was his duty to sell the Albert Company's products to the best advantage. Instead of doing this he entered into an oral agreement whereby he and the company that he controlled derived large profits to the detriment of the Albert Company, which he was President. It is too clear for argument that such conduct is incompatible with the good faith that a fiduciary owes to those who trust him. His fiduciary relationship placed him under a disability to take a contract for the sale of merchandise at a high price, in his own name, and fill them with products of the Albert Company, obtained at a lower price, and take the profit to himself.

"It is clearly apparent to me, from all the allegations in the complaint herein, that the defendants' testator, Tomkins, made use of relations of trust and confidence in order to promote some selfish interest, and the facts are sufficiently averred to set a court of equity in motion, and to require an answer from the defendants in regard to the facts."

Calvin Tomkins was ousted as Dock Commissioner in April, 1918, by Mayor Gaynor who said it was "necessary to have full co-operation and help of the Dock Commissioner in the work we are doing in the relocation of the New York Central Railroad tracks as they come down through the city, and in the location and construction of the new long docks." Mr. Tomkins died on March 4, 1921.

BOLIVIA'S REQUEST IS FLATLY REJECTED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Bolivia's plea for admission to the deliberations of the Tacna-Arica conference, now meeting in Washington in an effort to settle the long-standing dispute between Chile and Peru, was today again formally denied.

Both the Chilean and Peruvian delegates to the conference replied to the Bolivian request by notifying Adolfo Ballivian, the Bolivian Minister, that they possessed no authority to entertain the plea for a place in the conference.

The decision of Chilean and Peruvian delegates was made on their own responsibility on the basis of their understanding of their credentials and the views of their Governments, but without any reference of the appeal to their respective home Governments.

The Chilean and Peruvian delegations held a very brief joint conference this morning, lasting less than twenty minutes, and adjourned to meet tomorrow. No communiqué was issued. There appears to have been no change in the conference situation. It is believed that no important decisions were reached in today's meeting.

LIMA, Peru, May 22.—Several thousand Peruvian citizens, among them numerous former residents of Tarapaca, held a demonstration here last night. Amid great enthusiasm they organized a parade and a patriotic mass meeting in the central plaza of Lima, listening to speeches and demanding the reunion of Tacna and Arica and Tarapaca with Peru.

BOY DODGING AUTO KILLED.

Another Lad Critically Injured in Street and a Man is Slain.

Alfred Gerener, 6 years old, of Hudson Heights, N. J., was killed in Anderson's Avenue Cliffside, N. J., last evening by an automobile driven by John Collane of Grantwood. The boy dodged behind one car and stepped in front of Collane's. Collane was held on a technical charge of homicide.

The police of the Fourth Avenue Precinct, Brooklyn, are trying to find trace of a big automobile truck which killed Andrew Anderson of 5,822 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, late yesterday afternoon. Anderson was in a small automobile which collided with the truck. He was thrown under the wheels of the truck. Children who witnessed the accident described the truck and the driver, who sped away after the accident. Anderson leaves a wife and two children.

Eugene Elekus, 5 years old, of 324 West Fifty-first Street, was knocked down by an automobile last night in front of 315 West Fifty-first Street. He was taken to Roosevelt Hospital by Anthony Putignano of 3,824 Fort Hamilton Parkway, Brooklyn, operator of the automobile. The boy received internal injuries. His condition was critical.

BOY HELD IN $20,000 THEFT.

Police Say He Admits Robbing Home of Horace De Lisser.

After trailing for nearly a month Frank De Vito, 18 years old, of 274 Morton Street, a telephone switchboard operator, detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street Station arrested him last night and said he confessed that he entered the apartment of Horace De Lisser at 200 West Fifty-seventh Street with a passkey on the night of April 17 and stole $20,000 in jewelry, including a $15,000 marquise ring, a pearl scarfpin, a gold brooch set with diamonds and a gold watch and chain. The detectives recovered the jewelry in the Morton Street room occupied by the prisoner.

De Lisser is President of the Ajax Tire Company of 1,796 Broadway.

MADRID, May 22.—An official communiqué from Morocco today reports that two columns of Spanish troops under command of Generals Sanjurjo and Marzo conducted successful operations yesterday against the Moors in the vicinity of Sumata and Beni-Sef. General Sanjurjo's troops proceeded through the valley of Bukrus and General Marzo's forces went through the valley of Telata. The Spaniards occupied the two positions after slight resistance.

The total number of Spanish casualities was forty-two, the communiqué states. The natives have also surrendered 364 rifles and one field gun.

SENATORS WRANGLE OVER QUARRY TILES

Majority Defeats Amendment to Cut the Duty to 20 Per Cent.

FIGHT ON DYES POSTPONED

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Senate returned today to its struggle with the Tariff bill, resuming night sessions, but making comparatively little progress. Most of the time was given to consideration of minor amendments, the dye fight being postponed again, this time until Wednesday, because of the illness of Senator King of Utah, who is to lead the Democratic fight on both the license embargo and tariff duty provisions.

The chief controversy today centred on the committee amendment to make the duty on red or brown quarry tiles 5 cents a square foot and 30 per cent. ad valorem, which was approved after the rejection, 24 to 36, of an amendment by Senator Sheppard of Texas to fix the rate at 20 per cent. ad valorem.

In opposing the committee rate Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska declared the American people were "tired of having their pockets picked" and wanted to see further price reductions. He argued that, instead of reductions, there would be an increase if the pending bill were passed.

Senators Frelinghuysen of New Jersey and Sutherland of West Virginia supported the committee rate, arguing that this duty was necessary to protect the American industry which grew up during the war. Democratic Senators contested this view, pointing to small imports and high ocean freight rates on this commodity.

Remarking that this tiling entered into the construction of homes, Senator Underwood of Alabama, the Democratic leader, said the issue was fairly joined on this item, Senator Frelinghuysen proposing a tax that would equalize the difference between the cost of production in this country plus the manufacturer's profit and the cost of laying down the foreign goods in this country, without taking into account the importer's profit. That would mean a prohibitive tariff, he argued.

A move to put crude petroleum and fuel oil on the dutiable list was made today by Senator Harreld of Oklahoma, who offered an amendment to make the rates 35 cents and 25 cents a barrel, respectively. His amendment went over and cannot be brought up for some weeks.

Petroleum was placed on the dutiable list by the House Ways and Means Committee, but the House restored it to the free list and the Senate Finance Committee recommended that it stay there. Producers in this country urged the committee to protect the domestic industry, particularly against oil from Mexico.

CARROUSEL IN FLIGHT.

Court Praises Policeman for Rescuing Children in Runaway.

With six children clinging to the backs of as many wooden camels, lions and horses in a merry-go-round housed in a wire-netted wagon drawn by a horse, the animal took fright at 149th Street and Morris Avenue, the Bronx, last night and ran away. The children screamed as the wagon swayed in its flight and pedestrians fled to safety.

Patrolman Charles Vicchio of the Alexander Avenue Station, who was on duty in East 147th Street, near Morris Avenue, heard the shouts and gave chase. As he neared the horse he made a leap and caught the bridle, and after being dragged fifty feet, brought the runaway to a stop. The children were not hurt.

The Magistrate fined Tobuerino $10 or two days. The latter said he had not taken in $10 and "guessed he would do the two days." The Court praised Patrolman Vicchio and said he would call attention of the Police Commissioner to the stopping of the runaway.

CONGRESS WINS RACE TO RENEW RENT LAW

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—President Harding tonight signed the act extending the District of Columbia rent law two years. The House, after six hours of filibustering, led by Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas and Representative Millspaugh, Republican of Missouri, passed the bill with amendments which were accepted by the Senate.

Some opposition was made by Senators Overman and Poindexter but at 8 o'clock the slight Senate filibuster gave way and the legislative action was completed.

President Harding was waiting in the executive offices for the bill and signed it immediately upon its receipt.

Many obstacles to prompt action had been set up in the House. Speaker Gillett last week refused to entertain a motion to suspend the rules and was absent today. His absence made it necessary for the House to pass a resolution authorizing the acting speaker to sign the bill.

Representative Blanton conducted an all-day filibuster against the bill and forced the House time and again to go through the routine of a rising vote. About fifty of these votes were demanded by Blanton, the result generally being 102 or 103 to 4 with Blanton, Millspaugh, Sproul of Illinois, Republican, and Gilbert of Kentucky, Democrat, constituting the four.

Once or twice Blanton gained the floor in order to speak against the bill. He said it was unfair for Congress to control the rights of a property owner, and that in the majority of cases it was not the landlords who profiteered, but the sub-lessors.

Landlords had expected that the filibuster would be so strong as to prevent the bill from becoming a law tonight and they were prepared to eject thousands of persons who would be without the protection of the rent law.

MINISTER DEFENDS FLAPPER

The Rev. Almer Pennewell Predicts Fine Generation of Women.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The modern flapper was defended by the Rev. Almer Pennewell, pastor of the Covenant Church at Evanston yesterday in a sermon in which he approved short skirts, bobbed hair and knickerbockers.

"Flapperism is not a disease, but a diversion," he said. "Bobbed hair, short skirts and knickerbockers are not signs of sin, but a declaration of independence. The girls are a jolly lot, and they will give us the finest generation of women the world has ever known.

"We are passing from the man age, a rough age, and emerging into the age of culture, the women's age. That is why the flapper exists today. The new age will be one not ruled by women but one in which their influence will be felt. Girls in the past have been pretty little birds in cages of husky beasts of burden."

ARE YOU A JUDGE OF PAPER?

As one looks at a sheet of Crane's Bond, and notes its fine texture, its uniform color, its crisp, delightful feel, its smooth, even surface, so perfectly designed to be a background for carefully-written, self-respecting business letters, one wishes that more men of affairs were judges of paper.

In writing paper, as in many other things, there is no sharply defined line separating the different from the indifferent. They range down from the best through the "good enough," the almost as good, and the fair to middling, to the very poor—and each grade has its legitimate uses.

But surely your business is worthy of the paper about which there is no argument, no difference of opinion—the one that is unquestionably and admittedly the best.

W. S. WARD ADMITS KILLING IN PLOT

West Forty-seventh Street Station. When Werner arrived he told the detectives he wanted them to "accompany him to make the arrests."

"We make no arrests," the detectives said they replied, "unless Mr. Ward makes a positive identification of the two men you are seeking."

After a lengthy discussion of this point Sheriff Werner telephoned Mr. Ward at the latter's home, and Mr. Ward, accompanied by a friend whose name was not made known, drove up to the station sometime later. Then the search began.

From time to time Sheriff Werner consulted a pencilled memorandum, and the searchers stopped near the address mentioned by him. With Ward walking between them and the Sheriff and his deputies following close behind, the detectives entered place after place along Broadway and its side streets.

After a close scrutiny of the faces of all the men in an establishment visited Ward would shake his head, whereupon the detectives and others would go elsewhere.

From time to time Sheriff Werner consulted with Ward, but no men answering the description of the two men the sheriff was seeking was found. It was long after midnight when the party returned to the West Forty-seventh Street Station.

Mystery Concerning Blackmail.

Attempts by reporters to penetrate the mystery surrounding the motive of the blackmailers and the nature of the sword they kept suspended over Ward's head met with no more than hints from the authorities and the prisoner's counsel.

Allen R. Campbell of the law firm of Rabenold & Scribner, when seen at his Bronxville home last night, admitted that the lawyers had a large package of blackmailing letters which had been sent to Ward, but refused to disclose their contents.

"Did the blackmailing plot involve a woman?" Mr. Campbell was asked.

"I don't think I should answer that question," he replied.

"Did it start, as reported, at a race-track?"

"I think it did."

"Did it involve Ward's war record or his claim for exemption from the draft?"

"No. I can assure you that it did not."

At his home in New Rochelle, overlooking an inlet of Echo Bay, Mr. Ward last night said he had been instructed by his lawyers not to discuss the case. He said all the threatening letters he had received had been turned over to his attorneys. Asked about his plans, he said he intended to go on attending to business and hold himself in readiness to answer any call the authorities might make upon him.

"Did your wife know of the blackmailing plot before today?" he asked.

"Well," he replied, "that is something that I cannot answer."

Mr. Ward, who is tall, thin and handsome, with regular features and light hair, was in an affable mood and smiled as he discussed the case. His wife, who answered the telephone later, was asked how long she had known about the case before her husband surrendered himself.

"Not very long," she said.

"I'm with my husband and I want to do everything I can for him," she went on. "I have the utmost confidence in him. Inasmuch as the lawyers have told us not to talk about the case, however, I am sorry that I cannot answer any other questions."

The young woman's father, a wealthy lumber dealer, died suddenly three years ago. Her mother is traveling in Europe.

Ward's Story of the Killing.

Mr. Ward left New Rochelle for New York late last night and Mr. Campbell started here from Bronxville. Sheriff Werner also came here from his home at Rye. It was reported that a conference was to be held. Mr. Campbell accompanied his client when the latter surrendered himself in Sheriff Werner's office at White Plains. According to the Sheriff and Ward's lawyer, the following is the prisoner's version of what happened on the night of the shooting:

The three men who had been extorting money from him under threats of death determined upon the night of Monday, May 15, as the time for a "clean-up and getaway," as Ward's counsel termed it. They demanded that Ward meet them at a certain spot on the road between Fort Chester and White Plains, beyond the Kensico Reservoir, with $75,000 to hand over to them in cash.

Ward drove to the appointed place in his Pierce coupe. He was alone. He says his intention was to "temporize" with the men and put them off with whatever excuse they would accept for the non-payment of so large a sum of money at that time.

It was almost 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning when they met. Peters, known to him as "Pete," was in a red Stutz roadster with Charley Ross and Jack. The last named man was driving.

Threatens Ward With Pistol.

Peters jumped out of the Stutz and ran over to the left side of the Peerless, stepping on the running board and putting a pistol against Ward's left side.

"Now, you drive where we tell you to. Go right ahead!" Peters commanded.

Ward went ahead, and Ross and Jack followed him. They proceeded in this fashion for about three miles, driving toward White Plains. At a fork in the road Peters ordered Ward to stop. This he did. Then the Stutz passed him and pulled up about twenty feet ahead of him.

The fact that Ward is left-handed had an important bearing on what followed. Except for this fact he probably would not have been able to use the strategy with which he bested Peters. Ward also is a crack shot and as Chairman of the New Rochelle Police Commission has a permit to carry a pistol.

Fight with Blackmailers Begins.

Peters opened the right-hand door and started in after Ward. Springing to meet the intruder, Ward with his right hand seized Peters by the right wrist. His pistol hand caught in this way, Peters fired a shot, but it went wild. It bored through the left side window of the coupe and imbedded itself in a tree, where it was found after Ward told his story.

Ward being left-handed, Peters did not know his opponent was armed. Grappling with Peters, Ward caught him off his guard and fired a single shot which caught him in the chest and spun him around so that he fell off the running board face downward on the road. The bullet took a downward course and came out of his back eight inches below the place it had struck.

Jumping from his car, Ward ran toward the two men in the Stutz ahead of him. The Stutz had a top up and Ross and Jack remained behind it as an ambuscade. Six or eight shots were fired before the driver of the Stutz started his machine and sped away toward White Plains, leaving Peters dying or dead beside the road. Ward was not hit. He says he thinks he hit Ross.

Ward re-entered his car, turned it around in the road, and drove home. Later in the day he went to his father, who had just returned from Europe, and told him the whole story. On Wednesday they called in Mr. Campbell, a personal friend of the Wards, and retained the law firm. Mr. Brennan was engaged as a Westchester attorney and will be the trial counsel if the case comes to trial.

Although it has been reported that the Westchester County authorities were informed of Ward's connection with the case as early as Thursday, Sheriff Werner says he knew nothing about it until Saturday, when lawyers for Ward told him the young man would surrender himself on Monday. Werner agreed to this arrangement and waited for Ward to surrender. The Sheriff did not explain why he did not order Ward's arrest as soon as he received information that he was involved in the case.

Puts Up Bail in Cash.

After Ward made a complete statement of the facts of the shooting to the Sheriff he was taken before District Attorney F. E. Weeks, to whom he repeated his story. The District Attorney agreed to his release in $10,000 bail, and Justice Seeger ordered such disposition to be made, District Attorney Weeks said last night that it might be a week or more before the Grand Jury could reach the case. There are five murder cases to come up during the present week.

When the bail bond was fixed Ward drew a fat roll of bills from his pocket and posted $10,000 with the clerk of the court. It was stated on the bail bond that he was held on a charge of homicide and manslaughter in the first degree.

Sheriff Werner said he had no doubt that Ward's story of the blackmailing was true. He said that he believed Charley Ross was the leader of the gang. According to the Sheriff, Ward described Ross as about 25 years old, good looking, well dressed and with an appearance of good breeding. It is not known whether he used his own name or an alias. The authorities said that Peters and "Jack" appeared to be merely gunmen employed by Ross to execute his orders and perform the dangerous work. Ward said that Jack looked like a typical New York taxicab chauffeur.

According to Sheriff Werner, Ward told him only enough details of the blackmailing plot to give him an outline of the case. The Sheriff said the motive for the blackmailing was as much of a mystery to him as to the reporters.

Gambling Theory Is Advanced.

One of the theories advanced in White Plains was that race track gambling was at the bottom of the mystery. Ward was said to have frequented the Jamaica track and to have met Ross there. Ross is supposed to have come upon information which caused him to engage Peters and the chauffeur to assist him in bleeding Ward.

The first payment Ward made was $1,000. A few more payments of the same sum were made. Then he was asked for $2,000. The next payment was $3,000. Finally, the blackmailers were getting $5,000 at a time. The ease with which they got the money caused their determination to make a final killing and, it is believed, leave the country with the $75,000.

It was reported in New Rochelle that Ward recently cabled for money to his father, who was in Europe, and that his father cut short his European trip to make a hasty return on the Majestic. Mr. and Mrs. George S. Ward were passengers on the biggest ship in the world when it arrived here on its first voyage last Tuesday afternoon, the day of the shooting. Another report in New Rochelle was that Mr. Ward had given his son a check for $40,000 after his arrival here. Neither of these could be verified. Mr. Ward Sr. was not at his home in Spuyten Duyvil last night.

Surprise at Delay in Surrender.

Much surprise was expressed in New Rochelle that Ward had waited for almost a week before surrendering himself, especially as he was known as a strict disciplinarian in his position as Chairman of the Police Commission. Ward has lived in New Rochelle since 1911, when he went there from Pittsburgh. He was appointed Chairman of the Police Commission in 1919 by Mayor Frederick H. Waldorf. Two weeks ago he was re-elected at a reorganization meeting of the Police Board.

Former Mayor Waldorf said he appointed Ward at the request of John J. Roach. Mr. Roach, formerly a member of the Police Commission, said he recommended Ward because he thought he was qualified for the job, "but he double-crossed us at the beginning of the Administration and soon afterward I resigned. I haven't spoken to him since."

Ward married Miss Curtis at the Trinity Episcopal Church in Brooklyn in 1916. He was called in the draft in 1917, but applied for exemption on the ground that he had a dependent wife. He said his salary would cease if he went to war and that his wife had no property or income other than his.

Eldridge Peters, the father of the boy who was killed, is a respectable citizen of Haverhill, Mass. He said he could not understand how his son had become entangled with such bad company. The father and a brother received two letters from Clarence about the first of May. They were written on Knights of Columbus stationery from Paris Island, and gave the impression that the boy had enlisted or was about to enlist in the marines.

The body arrived at Haverhill yesterday and will have a military funeral. Peters was a member of Company K, 181st Infantry. The flag of the State Armory was lowered to half-mast when news of his death was received. Members of the company will act as pallbearers at the funeral from the home tomorrow, and a firing squad will escort the body to the family lot in the Riverview Cemetery.

It was not known until four days after his death who Peters was. His body was found in King Street, at the head of Kensico Reservoir, eight miles north of White Plains, with nothing in the clothing to identify him. He had cards, dice, cigarettes and $1.06 in his pockets.

Identification was made through the comparison of his fingerprints with records of the Navy Department. Sheriff Werner said that his prints were identified out of 575,455 on file in Washington.

Following the comparison of the prints, the lad's family in Haverhill was notified, and Earl Hardy, an uncle, went to White Plains, identified the body and shipped it home.

The authorities and Ward's attorneys are now searching for Charley Ross and the chauffeur. It is understood that the New York police have been asked to join in the search and that a general alarm has been or will be sent out.

A statement issued by Ward's attorneys said they did not know whether the three alleged blackmailers had any other confederates. It charged that Peters had had a bad conduct discharge from the navy.

WANTS ITALIANS IN SOUTH RUSSIA

OLD OBSTACLE CROPS UP

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENOA, May 22.—MM. Tchitcherin and Krassin are the only members of the foreign delegations left in Genoa and they will remain a few days longer till the negotiations for the Italo-Russian commercial agreement are concluded. Considerable difficulties are being encountered and Senator Schanzer, who was to have departed Romeward tomorrow, announced today that he would be staying in Genoa probably till the end of the week.

These negotiations are within the letter, though perhaps hardly within the spirit, of the agreements reached by the powers at Genoa. They are within the letter inasmuch as it was agreed that the separate arrangements with Russia under discussion at the time of the breaking up of the conference might be continued, but not in the spirit, inasmuch as many of the questions now being discussed between Signor Schanzer and M. Tchitcherin encroach on questions to be discussed at The Hague.

It is known that an Italo-Russian treaty as well as the most-favored nation clause and other matters usually contemplated in commercial treaties will provide for the cession to Italy of certain zones for exploitation in Southern Russia. These include both agricultural and oil zones.

Exactly the same difficulties as were met during the discussion of the general agreement with Russia in the Genoa conference are again cropping up here. The Russians propose that Italy should send large numbers of workmen with all necessary tools into Russia and begin building roads, factories and houses. Signor Schanzer is quite ready to agree to this, but before signing the document pledging him to send these workmen, wants to know to whom the houses, factories and roads will belong after they are built.

M. Tchitcherin answers with the old argument that no such thing as private property exists in Russia, and it is inadmissible that foreigners should be treated better than Russians.

Schanzer and Tchitcherin are now busy evolving one of the usual "formulas" of which we heard so much during the Genoa Conference which would safeguard the interests of foreigners without infringing on the sovereign right of Russia.

Schanzer and Tchitcherin seem to be fully alive to the responsibility they are assuming in the present negotiations, realizing that whatever they do now will tie them down to a definite line of action at The Hague, because it would be impossible for them to agree to a certain set of conditions in a private compact here and then insist on a totally different set of conditions in a collective agreement at The Hague.

Despite the difficulties Signor Schanzer remains a confirmed optimist. He said today he hoped the negotiations would be ended within a few days. The Russians also seem hopeful and announced that everything probably would be decided one way or the other by Wednesday night.

The Russian delegation also denied a report that M. Tchitcherin will go to Rome to visit the Pope, saying that as soon as their business was finished in Genoa the whole delegation would proceed immediately to Berlin.

ITALIANS ATTACK ARABS.

MALTA, May 22 (Associated Press).—Rumors were received here today from Tripoli to the effect that Italian troops were carrying out a great offensive against the rebel Arabs in Tripolitania, where revolutionary activities broke out in March of this year.

The Italian forces are understood to be composed largely of local levies, supported by some Italian regiments under command of General Badoglio. The Italians, according to reports reaching here, are using a considerable number of bombing airplanes and have inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy.

SOVIET 'SURRENDER' ON PROPERTY RIGHTS

Decree on Which Russia's Future Dealings With Capital Depend Is Adopted.

STRING TO CONCESSIONS

Government Can Void Any Agreement Which "Obviously Is Directed to Harm the State."

MOSCOW, May 22 (Associated Press).—A fundamental decree recognizing property rights within certain limits, and upon which Russia's future dealings with American and other foreign and local capital depend, unanimously passed the Executive Committee today.

While wide latitude is given capitalistic and industrial effort, the decree nevertheless provides that everything must be limited to the Soviet laws and gives the Soviet the right to void any agreement which "obviously is directed to harm the State."

A special clause was added to the law on motion of the Communistic faction at the last moment which makes it nonretroactive. It specifically denies rights under the law to previous owners whose property was expropriated on the grounds of revolutionary law up to the time of the issue of the decree and does not give them the right to demand return of the property.

Foreigners under the decree have the same rights as Russian citizens, if they previously have secured permission from the proper authorities to operate in Russia. The right of the protection of the Russian court is given to persons abroad suing on contracts and other matters in Russia, only in the event that Russian citizens similarly have access to the courts of the nationals who sue in Russia.

Soviet officials today told the Associated Press they considered this decree largely meets the condition of Secretary of State Hughes for American trade in Russia. They further declared that the law expressed the maximum of surrender to capitalism Russia is ready to make, and that its limits define the limits of retreat which Nikolai Lenin in a recent speech mentioned as having ended.

Regarding the ownership rights in buildings not nationalized up to date, M. Kursky, Commissar for Justice, told The Associated Press that virtually all large structures in Russia had been nationalized, thus leaving few of them affected by the new law.

The committee also unanimously passed the Government's new land policy, reiterating the principle of State ownership of all lands, but providing life tenure for peasants working it. The measure provides that none may buy or sell land, but that it may remain indefinitely in the possession of those cultivating it.

In addition to the above the new land law provides persons may be deprived of land if they leave it voluntarily and fail to cultivate it for three consecutive years; if they try to sell or pawn their holdings; they they emigrate, or if the plots are wanted for State purposes.

Peasants temporarily unable to cultivate the land themselves may lease it for a maximum of the two sowing seasons. Comunes working the land themselves are permitted in certain cases to hire labor.

WINDFALL FOR WILLIAM.

Rumor That German Government Will Grant Him 200,000,000 Marks.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 22.—The Socialist newspapers are much agitated by rumors that the German Government proposes to send immediately 200,000,000 marks to the ex-Emperor in Holland as part payment of the Hohenzollern claims to private property, which have already been disallowed by the same Government. These papers maintain that the present Finance Ministry has upset the earlier ruling that the Hohenzollerns' claims to art treasures should not be allowed as not being private property.

As a result of this the Socialists fear that Germany will lose immensely valuable art works now in German museums and State theatres. They ask heatedly if the nation will let itself be robbed of its art treasures and will close the museums and State theatres for the benefit of the fugitive Imperial family.

MAY AVERT CRISIS OVER REPARATIONS

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

German Question Before Chamber.

PARIS, May 22 (Associated Press).—The French Parliament is reconvening tomorrow in an atmosphere of anxiety, due chiefly to the prospective use of military force to bring pressure on Germany, but augmented by the Russo-German treaty and other complications growing out of the Genoa Conference.

The German question will be foremost in the Chamber of Deputies, however, during the first week of the renewed sessions. M. Poincaré, called upon to declare his intention, will tell the Chamber the Government intends to parley no longer with Germany, but to bring to bear the pressure authorized by the Treaty of Versailles.

The Cabinet is regarded by the best posted members in Parliament as sure of a big majority, thus making its policy of energetic action against Germany that of France. Some apprehension is felt lest this situation make still more acute the difference which has arisen in the Entente.

It has been observed that such a vote by the Chamber may be regarded as tying the Premier's hands so he will not be free to discuss the situation with the Allies, but on the other hand it is said that M. Poincaré's intention is not to discuss the authority or advisability of action, but merely try to convince the Allies that they should act with France.

M. de la Croix, former Premier of Belgium, Chairman of the Bankers' Committee, has arrived in Paris and has invited his fellow-members to dinner to meet for the first time tomorrow evening. The other members are Signor d'Amelio, Vice Chairman, of Italy; M. Trip, of Holland; Sir Robert Kindersley, of England; M. Bertant, of France; J. P. Morgan, of the United States, and Mary Bergman, former Under-Secretary of Finance of Germany.

Inquiries made today brought out the information that the financiers will meet without having been limited by the Reparations Commission as to the form or extent of their work. One idea that seems to be general among the members of the commission is that the committee may take up the whole subject of reparations and recommend where the line shall be drawn between the total amount of cash payments and the payments in goods.

The endeavor then would be to submit a plan for meeting the cash payments partly by an international loan and partly at a later period by Germany alone through her own resources. Payments in kind would be left where they now are, with the Reparations Commission and the Governments concerned.

Everything at the moment concerning the plan and terms of the proposed international loan is vague, and will remain uncertain until the members of the committee have had full opportunities of discussing whether any loan is feasible and on what terms.

So many questions are likely to be raised that the committee, if it undertakes fully the work that appears necessary, may be in session several weeks or even months.

Some of the questions that quite possibly will arise would concern first lien on all German resources, including customs and internal revenue, as well as matters relating to the trustees for international bondholders and consent of the allied Governments to conditions that might seem in part to replace the Treaty of Versailles. Some of these questions might even require parliamentary approval. One that may take much time will be the collection of the enormous quantity of information which the committee will need, possibly necessitating the making of some original studies of the German situation.

Consequently, the acute moment of tension in the relations of the Allies to Germany at the date of the expiration of the allied ultimatum, May 31, may be relieved until the committee has completed its work or until it is seen that it can find no solution of the problems that would be acceptable to the countries supporting the loan.

Should the committee find it feasible to recommend an international loan, only part of it, it is assumed, would be issued this year, of which, roughly, it is supposed the United States might take half, Great Britain one-fourth and the remaining fourth might be subscribed by Holland, Switzerland, France and Spain. It is assumed also that a good deal of the German money that has been accumulating in neutral countries and in England might flow into this loan if the rates of interest were sufficiently attractive and if it became evident that the future of the reparations question was fairly clear.

COMMONS TO DEBATE GENOA.

Lloyd George to Answer Criticisms and Give Explanations.

LONDON, May 22 (Associated Press).—Austen Chamberlain, Government leader in the House of Commons, today told questioners in the House that a Blue Book on the Genoa economic conference was being prepared and would be available tomorrow.

Mr. Chamberlain said steps were taken informally through the American Ambassador in Rome to inquire whether an invitation to participate in the coming work at The Hague would be acceptable to the United States Government. The views of the United States Government were contained in a message which had been communicated to the American press, and the British Government had no further information.

Asked whether a reply had been received from Washington before an invitation was issued, Mr. Chamberlain said no invitation had been sent. To a further question as to whether he would ask the American Government on what terms it would co-operate, Mr. Chamberlain replied "No."

Mr. Chamberlain said the Foreign Office vote would be set down for Thursday, in order to enable discussion by the Commons on the Genoa conference. Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, the War Minister, would open the discussion on behalf of the Government. Mr. Chamberlain added, and make a general statement concerning the result of the conference. The Premier would be in his place to answer criticisms and to give any further explanations the House might desire.

Your Office Dollar
What do you get for it?
OFFICE expenses have increased so rapidly in the past fifty years as to alarm the student of business economy. What can we do about it? We can't fall back upon the methods of the past. They were inexpensive, but they were also inefficient. What we can do is to extract from each dollar that we spend its full par value.
One of the most striking examples of this lack of economy is in the keeping of business records. What do you get for your Office Dollar? One hundred cents' worth of service—or only fifty? If your records are hidden away in books or blind card-files you probably get the fifty. You certainly don't get the hundred.
KARDEX saves 50% to 75% of the time now spent in keeping your books—requires no change in your present forms—ensures absolute accuracy—makes recording simple and fool-proof. KARDEX does all that book systems and box files fail to accomplish.
KARDEX makes an open book out of your present records
KARDEX means visible records—every title always in sight. KARDEX pays—pays one hundred cents on the dollar. Without rewriting or changing your present business records, you can place them in a KARDEX Steel Unit and have the title of every record stare you in the face.

TAKE FINGERPRINTS OF POSTAL WORKERS

MAKE RECONNOITRING TRIP

Inspect All Offices Here With View to Constructing Defenses Against Bandits.

The campaign to fortify the Post Offices against banditry from outside and peculation from inside, as the result of recent thefts of bonds from the registered mails, was begun yesterday under the direction of Postmaster General Hubert Work.

Dr. Work, who is in St. Louis, authorized officials here by telephone to begin finger-printing and photographing all employes of the department in New York, in order to weed out men with criminal records, and to make possible a bureau of identification for solving future thefts.

First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett, who is Acting Postmaster General during Dr. Work's absence from Washington, was the first man finger-printed yesterday. He was followed by W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General; Postmaster Edward M. Morgan of New York and Chief Inspector William E. Cochran, while the cameras and moving picture machines clicked in Postmaster Morgan's office. After taking the prints of the officials James A. Boyle, the Bertillon expert of the department, began on the rest of the 15,000 employes, taking the registry division first because of its importance.

Mr. Morgan said yesterday that after the lower Broadway hold-up last Fall he had caused all new employes to be finger printed to help prevent any collusion between employes and robbers.

Plan Alterations for Defense.

Mr. Bartlett and Mr. Glover, who came here from Washington over the week-end when the arrest of a group of men charged with the theft of $1,477,000 in bonds from the registered mail revealed a plot to hold up the registry division of the City Hall Station, inspected the old City Hall Post Office yesterday afternoon in company with Postmaster Morgan. The officials also visited the departmental garage to consider what changes could be made in the construction of the buildings to make them impregnable to attacks by robbers.

The inspection party paid particular attention to the location of entrances and exits to registry divisions at the City Hall and other stations. Mr. Bartlett said he intended to suggest changes that would make it physically impossible to execute any such hold-up as had been planned by the men under arrest. It will also be made impossible, he said, to repeat the trick of July 18, when the men now held are alleged to have slipped a bag of registered mail out of the registry division.

One of the most important objects of his visit to the City Hall Station, Mr. Bartlett said, was to study out a plan to eliminate the possibility of information leaking out as to the contents of any individual mail pouch assigned to any particular truck for transfer. It was the leak of such "inside" information that made possible the $2,000,000 mail truck hold-up on lower Broadway last October.

Mr. Bartlett announced that the permanent assignment of United States marines to guard the mails would be taken up with President Harding on his return to Washington.

After conferring with Dr. Work by telephone yesterday, Mr. Bartlett announced that the department would put an order into effect at once to increase the pay of clerks handling registered mail and money orders for the purpose of attracting the ablest and most reliable men to these duties.

"It has been feared in the past," he said, "that the inducement to go into the Registry Division was the possibility of stealing something."

Praises Work of Detectives.

Mr. Glover, who investigated the lower Broadway hold-up last Fall, praised the detective work done by Post Office inspectors in solving the July 18 robbery and in forestalling the conspiracy to hold up the City Hall Station.

"The real detective work of this man 'Mutt' (the name by which one of the inspectors was known to the robbers whose confidence he won) reads like the detective stories we were familiar with in our younger days," Mr. Glover said. "Enough praise cannot be given to the Inspector in Charge, William E. Cochran, and to Inspector J. J. Dolan, who have had direct charge of this case since the loss of the pouch was discovered."

Mr. Bartlett returned to Washington last night, leaving Mr. Glover in New York.

The eighteenth arrest in connection with the recent mail thefts was made yesterday. A man who said he was Ruby Gurewitz, 21 years old, with no home, was arrested by Inspector Frank Shea charged with having in his possession a Liberty bond stolen from the registered mails, and with having got possession of a Post Office inspector's official badge and retained it for his own use. The prisoner was held in $10,000 bail by United States Commissioner Hitchcock for a hearing tomorrow.

According to the complaint, the man got the badge on April 29.

TAXI DRIVER'S WIFE NAMES EVELYN THAW

Separation Plea Says Plaintiff Actually Was Introduced to Other Woman.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was named in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday as one of the causes for Mrs. Evelyn Schneider of 388 South First Street, Brooklyn, seeking a separation. The husband, Harry Schneider, operates a taxicab, and makes his headquarters at Fifty-second Street and Broadway, Manhattan. Besides accusing him of entertaining a friendship for Mrs. Thaw, Mrs. Schneider charges Schneider with abandonment and cruelty, and says that he gambles away his money.

Nathaniel D. Hamer of 309 Broadway, who appeared for Mrs. Schneider, asked for $35 a week alimony, pending trial of the suit, and for $500 counsel fees. He told Justice Fawcett that Schneider earned more than $100 a week. There was no opposition to the motion. Justice Fawcett reserved decision.

Mrs. Schneider is 23 years old, and her husband 28. They were married April 9, 1917, and have one child. In her affidavit the wife says that their marital troubles began when her husband entered the taxicab business in July, 1920. She asserts that "the defendant for a long time has been and still is friendly with one Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. This Thaw woman resides in an apartment on Fifty-second Street, west of Broadway, opposite the corner where the defendant parks his car when it is idle."

Mrs. Schneider says that her husband told her of his friendship for the other woman, and actually introduced his wife to Mrs. Thaw. She also says that on or about April 20, 1922, her husband received a letter from Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, then in Atlantic City, inviting Schneider there to meet her; that her husband read the letter to her and asked her to get money for him so he could go. When she refused to comply, Mrs. Schneider alleges, he beat her, left the home, and has not returned since.

Palisades Park Unable to Meet Demands of Metropolis, Commissioner Finds.

SECOND CONFERENCE OPENS

Special to The New York Times.

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y., May 22.—At the opening of the second national Conference on State Parks at Bear Mountain Inn here today, Frank W. Hopkins, Vice President of the Palisades Park Commission, traced the development of the park systems of New York and New Jersey.

One of the first moves, he showed, was the effort made to stop quarrying along the Palisades by J. P. Morgan, who contributed $125,000 to buy a quarry and thus halt spoliation of the scenic Hudson. Then Mrs. E. H. Harriman donated to the commission a ten-thousand-acre tract in the vicinity of Bear Mountain. Next the Rockefellers and others contributed $2,500,000 to develop a great park system, matching a similar amount voted by the State.

Mr. Hopkins said the public now has access to seventy large group camps and that the commission needs thirty more to supply the demand from the metropolitan district.

Dr. L. H. Pammel, Chairman of the Iowa State Conservation Board, told of efforts being made in that State to create State parks.

Addresses of welcome were made by Lieutenant Governor Wood and John Barton Payne, President.

The National State Park Conference originated in January, 1921, when Mr. Payne, then Secretary of the Interior, and W. L. Harding, Governor of Iowa, called a conference of Governors at Des Moines.

Among those attending the conference here are Mrs. William Thaw Jr. and Harry K. Thaw, representing the Civic Club of Allegheny County, Pa.; Mrs. George Sealy, Galveston, Texas; Frank A. Waugh, United States Forest Service, and Mrs. Stella M. Leviston, representing California.

Professor C. E. Jackson, Durham, N. H., Ecological Society of America; A. B. Moore, Arkansas; Frederick Law Olmstead, Boston; John Hilder, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Joseph D. Grant, San Francisco; United States Senator and Mrs. Peter Norbeck of South Dakota; George C. Diehl, Buffalo; F. C. Richmond, for Utah; Clifton Moore, for Arkansas; Mrs. James Weider, for Texas; William McGarry, for Minnesota; George B. Ward, for Alabama; Alexander McDonald, Chairman, New York State Conservation Commission.

Tomorrow the delegates will tour the Great Storm King Highway through West Point and Cornwall to Washington's headquarters at Newburg, returning to Bear Mountain through Central Valley and the Palisades Park Commission's camping centre at Twin and Summit Lakes and over the long mountain road.

selfishness which links us with all humanity. Political education should do the same. The more I see of life the more I see that the only way is the narrow way and broad view.

"When I landed here in New York about six weeks ago I expected to make two speeches and then go to Virginia and renew my youth. I have made altogether forty speeches—I spent only eleven days in Virginia and my youth has obviously not been renewed. However, in spite of talking, I have learned a lot—I have found out what a glorious thing it is to belong to two countries and try to be prejudiced against none. I've learned, too, how well all countries and all States think of Virginia, and well they might. It was in Virginia that the first laws of the best law-makers in the world were put into practice on this North American Continent—the common laws of England. It's a wonderful tribute to these laws when one thinks of how well they have worked away from the little island on which they were started. Changed and improved, if you will, but always the same. Here we see all kinds of people from all kinds of countries, living uncommonly well and peacefully under those common laws. They seem almost like the Divine law in that they embrace all sorts and conditions of men.

Says Law Can't Make Man.

"The great merit of these common laws is this: They enable every one to work out his own salvation in his own way. Now, we know that neither the law nor the State can make a man. But a good law and a good State can go a long ay toward helping a man to make himself. We must have law, humanity and Christianity to make a perfect State. I think we—and tonight I speak as a Virginian, not a British M. P. (so bear with me, as my time is growing short and I won't speak as a Virginian again for some time)—we can feel that we have built this country on those three—a good deal of law, some humanity and some Christianity.

"Think of what America has taken on to her shores in the last hundred years! Now, it was not only humanity or Christianity which made us welcome the immigrants any more than it was the search of these two qualities which brought them. They have come from necessity and we welcomed them from necessity. They brought much to the country and some have taken much away. It's amazing to see how many returned to their native countries after a period of about twenty-five years. In the meantime they have helped develop the country and if your common law and common humanity and common Christianity has been brought into action we will have helped to develop them and when they leave these shores they will carry away more than mere money. When we look at Europe today we almost wish we had sent more.

"Many of these immigrants make fine citizens. Just think what Mr. Straus has done for the infant welfare of this city. Many never leave the country again. But many of them—until they learn better—just make a mass of illiterate voters who are used by our less fine citizens for political purposes and their purposes are not for the betterment of our country or any other country, but too often for a richer and a fuller life in the worst sense of the word.

Both Parties Have Dark Sides.

"Now, I am getting down to political education—a thing of vital importance for every citizen of this country. This is a very interesting thing and something that we can be proud of. Both of our great parties, like most great parties in all countries, have their dark sides. It seems that all countries must go through periods of political corruption. Some countries linger in that state longer than others. We have suffered constantly from politicians of political crooks, but we have so managed that no party has ever dared nominate or bring forward any man but an honest man as President—they haven't all been Sir Galahads or George Washingtons or Abraham Lincolns—but they have all been like Caesar's wife—above suspicion. That we may recall with pride. That's what I point out—when I hear people fearing that certain of our less desirable citizens will get high office. They just don't.

"People are so apt to feel apathetic or indifferent about local politics. So long as the taxes don't go too high and the local 'bosses' don't get too rich too quick—we shrug our shoulders and go. I don't blame the local bosses. After all, it's what happens all through life—unless you are constantly watching and on guard, whether it be to keep your character or anything else. Some one will be on the lookout to take it. We are seeing clearly day by day that it is our thinking which really matters as this determines our actions.

Hope America's Salvation.

"This is an extraordinarily interesting age. But between spiritualists who see what the dead think and the psychoanalysts who see what we don't think, we like to be up and doing. So it is in everything—in religion, in business, in games and in politics. If we are content only to have our Presidents fine men, to have less fine local politicians and we are making it awfully hard for a President to do fine things. We are also making it possible for less fine politicians to do anything they like. I don't pretend to be an educated woman, but I have a slight understanding of human nature and a positive nose for certain politicians. Political education should begin with the A B C of politics. It should begin right down low, and for many of us it should begin right now. We have here one of the greatest countries in the world—it's a country which differs from any country in Europe—not only on account of its size and nature and natural resources, but because of its hopefulness.

"Pandora never let loose a better angel thing than when she let loose the angel of hope. The three things that have struck me most about America are its hope, its spirit of confidence in the future and its varied mysterious opportunities. It has an active and hard working people, but added to this it has no outside cares, it has no great and powerful neighbors and no anxiety as to what they are going to do. You have no idea what an obsession these things are in Europe. In Europe the soil is limited and over populated; nations have to depend upon their foreign trade to find employment and food for themselves. All the time they are consumed with fear lest they should be attacked and their bone taken from them.

"France is naturally afraid of Germany; Germany of Russia; and England, though not afraid of her neighbors any more than America is, is perpetually anxious lest the whole of Europe should sink into chaos. Not only would this intensify unemployment and bad times, but think of the added misery of those already suffering people! In England we can almost hear the cries of the starving children of Europe. You here are far away from all this, and for that and your innumerable blessings be thankful. No one asks you to give up a single blessing, no one even envies you any of them, but one can say this—when you realize your blessings and know what Europe is, what will you do?

"Will you—will we—be like the priest and the Levite that pass by and say that starving, bleeding man is no concern of mine—it's probably his own fault—until he gets up and makes an effort it's not my job to help him. 'It's a revolting sight and simply spoiled my day.'

"The other way is the way of the Samaritan. We can help him up, clean him up, heal him up and let him share some of our blessing. I have no doubt which is the right policy—which is in the end the most paying policy.

"Europe needs America. I am not so sure that she needs America's money, but I am convinced that she needs her moral help. I see Mr. Hoover is going to bring pressure on the mine owners not to let profiteering go on during the coal strike. They say he is going to use moral persuasion. That's just what I feel would have helped at Genoa, and I hope will help at The Hague.

United States and League.

"I'm not concerned to say whether the United States should join the League of Nations as it exists—this is a question of comparative detail—but I am convinced that America can help Europe enormously in ways which will commend themselves to all clear thinking and kind thinking Americans if they want to do so. I believe they do. They need not fear to enter a league of peace, but had better fear not entering if they desire peace. Desire is prayer. Hundreds of Americans, some with the faith of their forefather and some with a lingering love for their old homes, and all with a real kindliness, which is one of the outstanding characteristics of this country, must and will find some way into a league. America won't stand by and say Europe is hopeless. I don't blame her for feeling that way, but I know, as she knows, that it's not the way to help either people or nations. The hopeless cases are just the ones that need our help.

"The other day I saw that the American Government asked the British Government to help protect her oil interests in Mesopotamia through the League of Nations. I am glad to say she did it. Soon after I saw that the Allies sent a note asking America to join them and inquire into atrocities against a Christian population. America refused. I ask you which is more important in the end, oil concessions or bleeding humanity.

Condemns Appeal to Prejudice.

"Now, I don't want to leave here having said anything to hurt any person or party. All persons and all parties have been much too kind to me. There's enough trouble in the world to make one dread adding an ounce to it. But I should like just to say before leaving that I think the politician who, because of lack of principle, feels that he must appeal to prejudice, or hatred, class, national or international, is playing a losing game. They have missed the new spirit, and I believe as firmly as I ever believed anything that there is a new spirit abroad. It may be that this World War has set us thinking. It may be that women are the leaven in the lump, but as certainly as the Kaiser found might was not right in 1918, the politicians or parties who think that they will win out on prejudice or anti-British, or anti-German or anti-what you will, propaganda are doomed to failure. They may not fail at once, but fail they will. A mind that hates is a mind which is sick, and a mind which boasts of itself is as a frog which puffeth itself up. Only the mind which is genuinely out to help all humanity is the kind of mind which deserves and will get the support of all the right kind of people.

"Playing politics may be all right when there is nothing seriously wrong with the world. Just now the human race needs human beings and not boss politicians. Quacks are failing all the world over and fundamentals are winning, and that's safe policy for politicians and nations is not to do others, but to do unto others as you would they should do unto you."

To accommodate the 1,850 persons who attended the dinner, one of the largest ever held at the Astor, it was necessary to throw open the Laurel Room and the Rose Room, two rooms at either end of the big ballroom. Thus it was that the tables extended through from Forty-fourth Street to Forty-fifth Street, with the galleries of the ballroom jammed by the time that Lady Astor was introduced. At the guest table were:

VOTE MACHINE ROW HAS ALBANY RIVAL

COMMISSIONER'S MESSAGE

"Something Rotten Somewhere in Denmark," He Writes to the Secretary of State.

David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, made public yesterday a letter he had written to Secretary of State John J. Lyons, declining an invitation to come to Albany tomorrow to testify in the voting machine hearing. In the letter Hirshfield said:

"It is not now a question whether any one does or does not want voting machines installed, or whether or not machines will save annually any money, or whether voting machines are reliable and foolproof. The question, rather, is whether or not the City of New York should be mulcted to the extent of more than $3,000,000 for voting machines, which yield a profit to the voting machine corporation and its friends of more than $1,500,000, and whether you, as a State official, should lend yourself as a party to such a transaction.

"You said in your statement that you will make an investigation. Pray, what will you investigate? It is conceded that the Jamestown corporation, which is asking the City of New York to pay $940 per machine, f. o. b. Jamestown, sold the same kind of voting machine in 1918 to the City of Syracuse for $730 and to the City of Rochester for $775 apiece, and that under present conditions the price per machine ought to be much lower than in 1918, and that therefore, under the circumstances there must be something rotten somewhere in Denmark.

"In my opinion that proposal by this Jamestown concern was submitted purposely to have it thrown out and thus give that corporation the opportunity to deal with you, instead of with the city, and thus escape the audit of its bills by the New York City Department of Finance and possible investigation as to honesty, by the Commissioner of Accounts. You should not do anything which would result in assisting this corporation to profit by its alleged bid in New York."

In conclusion, Commissioner Hirshfield demanded that Secretary Lyons come down here to investigate and that he require William J. Lausterer, President of the Jamestown concern, and Samuel C. Hamilton, its business representative, to come also and testify.

"Just as I expected," said Secretary Lyons when he saw a copy of this letter. "Hirshfield has no proof of anything wrong, but has been trying to throw a lot of mud in the hope that some of it might stick. In a fake inquiry on voting machines he has rambled all over the map for several weeks. He went to Chicago, and now I see by his letter he finds 'something is rotten in Denmark.' But he hasn't got the nerve to come to Albany and make his charges like a man."

The hearing on Wednesday will be held as I announced. If he's been on the level with this inquiry of his, he will be there. Hirshfield must put up or shut up."

ULSTER M. P. SLAIN IN BELFAST STREET

Griffith Also Expresses Horror.

DUBLIN, May 22.—The reports from Belfast are read with horror in Dublin. One hears in all quarters the question: How long is it going to last? There are fears it will spread even to wider dimensions. Such fears are reinforced by the deliberate murder of W. J. Twaddell. The murders of ex-policemen and soldiers in other parts of the country recall pre-truce conditions.

Nothing more is heard of the three British officers kidnapped in County Cork, and it is generally accepted that nothing more will be heard.

In the village of Newport, County Tipperary, ex-Police Sergeant Walsh was murdered by three men in his own house and in the presence of his wife. Ex-Head Constable Ballantine met a similar fate in Raphoe, County Donegal. A soldier was also shot dead in a street in Newport, County Tipperary, last night.

"I desire publicly to express my horror at the shooting of W. J. Twaddell in Belfast. Belfast lately has been shamed by many crimes in which religion has been made the excuse for political vendetta. Those in Belfast who have been responsible for public order have not repudiated them. Twaddell's murder strikes at the foundation of representative government. The honor of the Irish nation is concerned in this matter. In its name I desire to express my deepest sympathy with those who mourn in this hour of their sorrow."

In response to Winston Churchill's invitation Griffith will go to London immediately.

CHURCHILL ASKS IRISH TO EXPLAIN AGREEMENT

He Tells Commons Collins-De Valera Compact May Affect the Treaty.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 22.—Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that he had invited the Irish leaders to come to London immediately to discuss with the British Government the agreement signed on Saturday between the Provisional Government and the followers of Eamon de Valera. He considered, he said, that the agreement affected not only the character and validity of the elections to be held under the treaty, but also the treaty itself.

In asking the Sinn Fein leaders for an explanation Churchill is merely reflecting the growing anxiety as to events in Ireland which is felt here quite irrespective of party. Up to the present, despite the angry mutterings of the Die-Lards, there has been general agreement that the Provisional Government must have time. The enormous difficulties facing Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins have been realized, called upon as they are to restore order in the face of de Valera's opposition and the conspiracy of the transport workers' union and a number of unemployed youth who have learned in the last two years to regard secret assassination as legitimate warfare. But there have been hopes that Collins was beginning to stiffen in his resolution and was about to take a firmer stand.

Saturday's agreement, however, gave a sharp shock to this optimism. If it carried out, it is felt it will prevent the Irish people giving any indication whatever of their true views on the treaty and the draft of the constitution.

It was on the belief that the election would give Griffith a conclusive majority and authority to use the force necessary to restore order that public opinion here has been building. Moreover, the situation in Ulster is becoming so terrible that it may at any moment precipitate outrages on Southern Irish and loyalists. The murders of ex-constables have aroused intense feeling in Englishmen to watch, compelled by a self-denying ordinance not to interfere. These horrors after all, could be explained at, unfortunately, inevitable in the process of Irish evolution, but the Ulster situation is another matter.

The Westminster Gazette, which has always been prominent in its advocacy of Irish conciliation, says: "Large quantities of rifles and ammunition have lately, it is believed, been imported into the six counties by Republican forces, and it may well be said to be contemplated coincident with the elections which are to take place in the South next month."

The raids of Friday night with the burning of Shanes and Old Court castles and the storming of police barracks seemed to substantiate these rumors. If such attacks continue it is feared here it will be only a question of time before the British Government is again involved. A strong force of British regulars is stationed in Ulster and may be called upon sooner or later to defend life and property in spite of the official policy of leaving all police work in the hands of the Ulster police and specials.

If the British regiments were in a pitched fight against an organized revolutionary band, the reaction upon Southern Ireland would be incalculable. So newspapers most kindly disposed to Ireland are expressing the gravest anxiety. Thus, The Daily Chronicle, in discussing the outrages in Ulster, speaks of "the activities of the Sinn Fein in the North, which will arouse to burning indignation the Protestants of Belfast and Ulster's strength and the statesmanship of the Northern Government to the utmost."

In commenting on the Griffith-De Valera agreement it says: "We, for our part, are not concerned with the internal policies of Southern Ireland, except to this extent: that we cannot consider that the signatories of the peace terms have fulfilled the pledge in virtue of which we have evacuated Ireland until they have held an election on the issue of the treaty."

The Daily News says:

"That the agreement now arrived at between Collins and De Valera and accepted by the Dail will meet a happier fate and produce peace in Ireland none but a very bold man would venture to say."

The Westminster Gazette says:

"The intensity of the struggle between the Sinn Feiners and the Orangemen will almost certainly increase during the coming weeks and may culminate in an effort to expel every Catholic from Belfast. Such developments will inevitably produce dangerous reactions in the South and in the Coalition Government. All we can be sure of is that Ireland is just now more distressful country than ever before."

The Daily Chronicle's political correspondent, in explanation of the British official views regarding the Collins-de Valera agreement, says:

"Technically, and perhaps constitutionally, no objection can be raised to the agreement; but the spirit of the treaty agreement as understood by the British Government was that the first Southern Irish elections should show whether or not the South is in favor of the Irish treaty. For after those elections the Irish Provisional Government is to bring forward a Free State Constitution and the Imperial Parliament, after determining that it is within the terms of the treaty is to ratify and enact it, thereby presenting a new Constitution for the Free State. The South was then to hold their second elections under the Constitution, this time to set up their Constituent Assembly.

"By this new Irish coalition agreement, the British Government may be put in the extraordinary position that since the first elections will not declare the true opinion of the south, whether pro-treaty or pro-republic, a Constitution may be presented to Southren Ireland by the Imperial Parliament and may be rejected in Ireland by the second elections. Indeed, the Irish Coalition Ministry before the second election might break upon this issue.

"The proposed Free State Constitution has, I hear, been drafted by the Sinn Fein leaders and Arthur Griffith is bringing this preliminary draft with him this week. The Canadian precedent is broadly followed, but there are certain details on which grave considerations arise.

"Rightly or wrongly, the British Government was under the impression that a free vote was to be taken in Southern Ireland at the first elections, which would declare Southern opinion on the treaty, and also, by confirming the Provisional Government in power, give them great authority. By the Collins-de Valera agreement, however, the Ministry of the Dail Eireann will be a coalition ministry, and, although the Provisional Government will continue, theoretically, to exist, its authority may be diminished. Also, a member elected at the first elections will owe very divided allegiance to these two bodies. The de Valeriets will regard themselves simply as members of the Dail."

LABOR WILL CONTEST SINN FEIN ELECTIONS

Farmers' Union May Also Put Up Candidates—Bigger Majority for Griffith Forecast.

DUBLIN, May 22 (Associated Press).—The Labor Party has a list of twenty-one candidates for the June election, but thus far no other candidates have been announced. Before Saturday's agreement was reached, the Farmers' Union was considering putting forward candidates. It is thought there will be many uncontested seats. The expectation, however, that the whole election will, like that of 1920, consist of unopposed returns, is not entertained at the Publicity Department of the Dail Eireann.

In any event the supporters of the treaty will see some increase in their majority in the new Dail, for the election will include four members of Trinity College, who favor the treaty and who are not members of the present Dail. Any independent candidates who may succeed would, it is generally thought, also be for the treaty.

At both previous assemblies of the Dail the oath of allegiance to the Irish Republic was taken, but it is not certain that there will be any oath at all in the third Dail. The oath was in the Irish language, in which the word for republic was given as "Saorstat," which means Free State. All members could take the oath in that form, but the Trinity College men would hardly take the Republican oath.

The Dail will include members for the Ulster seats, and under a provision of the agreement they will be treated as uncontested returns and add to their present holders. All these, with the exception of one, hold seats also in the Southern Parliament, so that the point concerns only John O'Mahuny, member for Fermanagh.

The Ard Fheis is expected at tomorrow's meeting to approve unanimously the Collins-de Valera agreement, which reserves for the present Sinn Fein solidarity and will keep the organization in the strong position of being the only organized body of electoral opinion.

By the terms of the treaty, the election to the Free State Parliament must be held within twelve months of the signing of the treaty, and an exact expression of the averags public opinion will have to wait until then. In the Ard Fheis the Sinn Fein clubs of Ulster are strongly represented. At the last meeting they raised the question of the position of the Nationalists in the six-county area. The agreement for a Coalition Cabinet now forces reconsideration of the Ulster problem. It must be decided whether the United Dail Cabinet will accept the Collins-Craig compact and endeavor to withdraw all Sinn Fein activities in Ulster, or whether it will adopt an attitude of conflict.

There are some who think that an undertaking might be given that no Sinn Feiners from Southern Ireland would in the future interfere in the six counties, thus leaving the northern Sinn Feiners to fight their own battle with the northern Government within its jurisdiction.

YOUNG WIDOW SHOT, TELLS OF INTRUDER

Woman's Scream and Pistol Report Heard Over Telephone by Operator.

POLICE HURRIED TO HOUSE

They Find Wounded Victim, Who Says She Surprised a Man In Hallway.

Mrs. Amy Pettit, 28 years old, a widow, living with her parents at 11,220 St. Ann's Avenue, Richmond Hill, near Kew Gardens, Queens, was shot under mysterious circumstances at 8:30 last evening in the hallway of the second floor of her home. Mrs. Pettit told Captain Frank Morris and Detective Sergeant Charles Krummell of the Richmond Hill Detective Bureau, that she was shot in the left arm by a roughly dressed man whom she surprised as he was about to enter her room.

She said that nobody was at home when she returned from a shopping trip and discovered the man. His back was turned to her, she added, when she saw him as she reached the top of the stairs leading from the ground floor. When she demanded "What are you doing here?" she continued, the man, without a word, turned and fired.

Mrs. Pettit was unable to explain how the man got out of the house. Captain Morris said there was no evidence of the house having been disturbed by an intruder, and nobody had been seen leaving the house after the shooting. He said the discovery of the shooting was brought about through the alertness of an operator in the telephone exchange at Richmond Hill.

The operator called up Police Headquarters in Jamaica and said that a few seconds before, when the receiver in Mrs. Pettit's home was off the hook, she head a woman's screams and then the muffled report of a shot. Captai Morris immediately was notified and he and Detective Krummell hurried to the house in an automobile.

They found Mrs. Pettit lying on the floor of the second story with a bullet wound in the left arm near the shoulder. She was hysterical, the detectives said, and they were unable to obtain a connected story from her until she was removed to the hospital. When they sought to obtain a good description of the man at the hospital, however, Mrs. Pettit again became hysterical and pleaded with them not to ask her any more questions.

The detectives said they were unable to find a pistol in the house. Neighbors said that Mrs. Pettit's husband died about four years ago, and that the woman's 4-year-old daughter lived with her. Captain Morris said he would question other members of her family about the shooting when they returned to their home. Physicians at the hospital said the widow's condition was not serious.

GALLO-ROMAN RUINS DISCOVERED IN AMIENS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 22.—Between the post-war commercialism that is gripping France and the great housing shortage, the country has narrowly escaped losing one of the finest Gallo-Roman ruins yet discovered.

In the course of the replacing of houses which were destroyed by the German bombardment in the Rue de Beauvais in Amiens, workmen discovered bas-reliefs on ancient tombs, sections of columns and pieces of sculpture, all in a good state of preservation. Local archaeologists who examined the find pronounced the place the site of an ancient Gallo-Roman edifice of great dimensions.

The owners of the property then interrupted the researches and ordered the building work continued. This was done despite the efforts of the archaeologists, and the ruins were quickly buried beneath a bed of concrete.

The archaeologists then presented a plea to the Mayor of Amiens, who transmitted it through the Prefect of the Somme to the Minister of Fine Arts. The work of building was ordered stopped, and it appears now that the State will take charge and see that the ruins are excavated.

EX-CAPTAIN HELD AS THIEF.

James Morrison, 65, Arrested in Drug Store.

James Morrison, 65 years old, a former Captain in the French Army, a linguist and scenario writer, was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Smith in the Yorkville Court yesterday, for stealing a bottle of mouth wash worth $1.75 from Hetherington's drug store, Forty-second Street near Vanderbilt Avenue, last Wednesday evening. Morrison, of aristocratic appearance, seemed shocked when his denial of guilt proved unavailing.

Miss Stein, a clerk in the store, said Morrison took the bottle from the counter and then he returned it after he was questioned by Mr. Barthou, the manager.

He denied having been arrested before, but Magistrate Smith was told that on Dec. 12, 1919, Judge Moss found him guilty of petty larceny and suspended sentence. He lives at 542 West 125th Street.

AUTOIST SURRENDERS.

His Car Killed Jersey Policeman and He Acts on Nugent's Advice.

John Spooner, a contractor, living at 253 Parkside Avenue, Brooklyn, surrendered to the police in Newark yesterday, admitting that he drove a car which ran down a motorcycle policeman, Cedric J. Peterson, in Newark on Wednesday night. Peterson died in City Hospital there on Sunday.

Spooner said that after taking Peterson and another policeman who was hurt to the hospital he started to move his car from the driveway to make way for an ambulance, and then decided to keep on going. On Sunday, he said, he asked James R. Nugent, the Democratic leader, who was at Elberon, for advice, and Mr. Nugent arranged for him to surrender to County Prosecutor Bigelow.

Spooner was arraigned on a charge of manslaughter and released in $2,500 bail, provided by Nugent.

BATTEN

Brown in Boston— White in New York

PUBLIC buying habits take queer streaks.

In Boston the housewife insists on big brown eggs and will pay an advance price for them. Mrs. New Yorker must have white eggs, and the wily dealer sorts his eggs and extracts several cents a dozen more from his patrons for his pale-face eggs.

Thus an old notion handed down from generation to generation forms public opinion as to eggs. It regulates egg commerce.

Any woman on cross-examination will probably admit that an egg is an egg the world over, be it brown or white. The next day she will go out and insist on having either white or brown eggs.

Certain manufacturers who advertise enjoy the same advantages over their competitors as does the little brown hen that lays the big brown egg for Mrs. Boston. They have sensed the fact that the public buys with unreasoning insistence the product with familiar markings, even though it does not know why. Many advertised articles occupy a pedestal because of superior outstanding qualities. But there are unquestionably advertised goods, largely purchased, which have no striking advantage over other goods of equally high quality, except that they are better known and more accessible.

Brown eggs or white eggs are better in public opinion according to what the public has been led to believe. So it is with merchandise. Favorable public opinion for a commodity usually exists in proportion to the insistence and persistence with which the product is advertised.

So, Mr. Manufacturer, do not feel that you cannot advertise profitably because your goods are only as good as the best in the market, and without striking characteristics which are their exclusive possession. If your product is as good as the best, it is good enough to tell the public about—and the public is waiting to reward you with its confidence.

ONCE a month, or more frequently, we issue a publication called Batten's Wedge. Each issue is devoted to a single editorial on some phase of business. If you are a business executive and would like to receive copies, write us.

called to the stand by Assistant District Attorney Wintner he identified a bundle of reports of daily transactions by brokers in theexchange. He said that there were fifteen members of the clearing house, and added that the reports were issued each day to compute the Government tax of two cents on each $100 in sales. He said that a sale followed on the same day by a purchase in equal amount would entitle both brokers to commissions and the same time bring a fee to the clearing house. Under further questioning, Mr. Healy admitted that under the system the broker could pocket the margin supplied by his client.

Trades Evened Up.

Mr. Healy read into the record from Clearing House reports that on Nov. 5, 1921, A. T. Jennings & Co. had bought from Ormsbee & Landecker thirty bales of cotton for March delivery at 18.22 cents a pound, and on the same day Ormsbee & Landecker bought the same quantity of cotton from Jennings & Co. at the same price.

"If it appeared from the sheets that two brokers dealt only with each other for a period of a year it would indicate nothing to you?" asked Mr. Wintner.

"No," replied the witness.

"Yes."

"Did you ever see one broker dealing exclusively with another over a period of a month there?"

"No," the witness admitted.

He said that he never had seen the petition circulated by members of the Exchange calling for the prevention of cross-trading and bucketing, but admitted that he had heard that such a petition had been circulated.

When Samuel Landecker was called to the stand by Mr. Wintner he said he was a member of Ormsbee & Landecker when he was a member of the exchange. The average day's business of his firm, involved, he said, trades of about 3,000 bales of cotton. He admitted that his firm had an "affinity" arrangement with Jennings & Co. And that as many as nineteen "affinity" trades were engaged in by the two firms in one day.

Trouble With His Affinity.

He said that Mr. Jennings, head of the other firm, had complained to him that he was having trouble with his "cross-bucketed" trades and explained that "cross-bucketing" consisted of telegraphing customers that cotton had been purchased at the latest New York Cotton Exchange quotation, when, as a fact, no cotton had been bought. It was necessary to have an "affinity" broker to complete the transaction, Landecker said. He said each of the sales was made with the fingers crossed, but the sales were fictitious and were indulged in to deceive any customers that might happen to be present in the exchange at the time. He declared that all the members of the exchange practiced bucketing.

"Were there some active brokers anxious and willing to do legitimate trading?" the prosecutor asked.

"I think there were a few of them," Landecker replied.

He said that in October last he asked Augustus Graham, President of the exchange, to eliminate bucketing and seek to improve conditions in connection with the exchange generally. The witness also stated that in 1921 his firm had several "affinities," some of which he named.

Mr. Wintner here read into the record many instances of cross-bucketing transactions from the Clearing House sheets, and the witness declared that in no instance was it intended to deliver cotton. He said that in not one of the transactions between his firm and Jennings & Co. in November last was there a bona-fide sale or purchase. Double commissions were obtained on "cross-bucketed sales, but in legitimate transactions only one commission was earned.

Rival Agents in the South.

Landecker said that the exchange charged a commission of one cent a bale on all sales, and brokers received $12.50 on each transaction involving 100 bales. Traveling agents, approved by the American Cotton Exchange officers were sent through the South, he declared, to obtain business for members of the exchange. Brokers usually split their commissions with the agents, he said.

He said that members of the exchange who attended a "panic meeting" in September last admitted that they were facing insolvency since they had to pay customers on bucketed orders. He added that the practice of bucketing was resumed after the meeting, however. The brokers who were against the practice, he said, had to return to it, because all orders were for purchases of cotton, while none was offered for sale.

Mr. Massey submitted the witness to a severe cross-examination in connection with Landecker's failure to produce the books of his firm. Landecker said the books were in New Orleans with Ormsbee, his former partner.

"Was there anything in them that you didn't want us to see?" Mr. Massey inquired.

"Not that I know of," replied the witness.

"Suppose in these so-called fictitious sales your customers had asked for a delivery of the cotton."

"I wouldn't know where to start to look for it," said Landecker. "Fortunately, my customers didn't ask for it."

TELL OF AMERICANS ROBBED IN GERMANY

ANOTHER STRIPPED OF CASH

Customs Officials Also Seized Traveling Man's Samples—Charge Tourists High Prices.

Recent cable dispatches from Berlin reporting the robbery of Americans traveling in Germany by hotel thieves and the "robbery" of the same travelers by hotels, restaurants and merchants in general have been confirmed by New Yorkers who have recently returned from abroad or have received letters from there.

Milton J. Rosenberg, manager of the Miller & Co. brokerage office at 212 Fifth Avenue, yesterday told of the robbery of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hirsch, at the Park Hotel in Mannheim on April 27. Mr. Hirsch is head of L. C. Hirsch & Co., metals, of the Bush Terminal, Brooklyn.

"They had had dinner with Mr. Hirsch's parents in honor of his father's seventieth birthday," said Mr. Rosenberg. "Returning to the hotel, my son-in-law laid his dress studs, cuff links, watch and chain, &c., on the dresser, together with $207 in American money, 1,400 francs, several thousand marks and check books of the American Express Company and the Lincoln Trust Company.

"In the morning everything had disappeared and there was evidence that a thief had entered the room from a balcony. My daughter's jewelry was on top of the same dresser, but was not taken. She had happened to put her hat over the jewelry."

Mr. Rosenberg said that his information bore out the charges that German merchants had two sets of prices—one for Germans and another for American travelers—and that the latter were unmercifully "stung" in living expenses.

The treatment accorded Americans in Germany was described yesterday by Harry R. Dreyfus of 151 West 110th Street, who said:

"I have spent three months in Germany and was robbed of my money there, causing me great inconvenience for a week before money was cabled from home. At the Holland-German border the customs officials confiscated all personal gifts and samples of merchandise with which I had hoped to do business.

"They even confiscated my tooth paste because it was a new tube. I offered to pay at that Custom House whatever export tax was necessary, but was told I would have to return to Berlin. As I had already booked my passage, the boat leaving the next day, it was impossible to get the 'Ausfurbewilligung' (export license). They refused to allow me to continue on the Holland train until the officer in charge released me. As a result I arrived in Rotterdam almost too late to catch my boat.

"I was charged at the hotels in Berlin three times the amount the natives paid. They recognise Americans by their pointed shoes."

FIRE MARSHAL STARTS ATTELL INVESTIGATION

Boxer and His Partner Produce Bootery Books to Be Examined by Accountants.

Continuing his investigation, Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy last night remained silent as to whether he had ascertained how Abe Attell's shoe shop, the Ming Toy Bootery, at 1,656 Broadway, came to be saturated with gasoline early Sunday morning. Brophy said he would resume his inquiry today, and would have nothing to tell the public until the matter was finished.

Attell and his business partner, E. M. Tausend, went down to Brophy's office, accompanied by their attorney, Joseph Shalleck, producing the books of the shoe business and their insurance policies. Mr. Shalleck explained that the former featherweight champion boxer carried $15,000 fire insurance and $2,000 burglary insurance. At Brophy's office it was said that accountants would check over the books to determine whether the Ming Toy was paying or not paying.

Attell said that the same "crowd" that involved him in the baseball scandal had been "trying to put something over on me." He charge dthe same folks with being responsible for his arrest as a ticket speculator.

"The 'plant' was obvious," he said; "they left the oil can, and they saw to it that the leaking cans would be discovered before the fire started. They are bent on ruining me. I might have gone to the Hall of Fame if it wasn't for the baseball scandal. Instead I went into business and tried to live it down. I haven't been to the races or a ball game in more than a year, and I don't go around the cabarets. But these people are still trying to ruin me."

Attell said that he might have sold his "bootery" four weeks ago at a profit of $15,000, but that he had refused because business was so good.

HYLAN COMMENDS O'BRIEN.

Loss of New York Central Suit Inconceivable, Says Mayor.

In a letter yesterday to Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, Mayor Hylan extended congratulations and expressed gratification that the action begun by the city to oust the New York Central Railroad from the Hudson River waterfront between Seventy-second Street and Spuyten Duyvil had reached the Court of Appeals, where it now awaits decision.

"The determination of this action," wrote the Mayor, "will be of particular interest to the people of the city in view of the amazing contention of the railroad company to support its unwarranted seizure of city property. There are really but two methods recognized in law in security property rights—purchase and adverse possession.

"The New York Central, however, has endeavored to adopt a method peculiarly its own. It has set up what has been termed 'estoppel.' This amounts simply to the allegation that it is a railroad and that the City of New York, and everybody else are prevented from questioning its right to the possession of portions of the Hudson River waterfront, no matter how acquired. It is inconceivable that such a theory will be upheld by the Court of Appeals."

BURCH JURY DISAGREES.

Discharge Comes With All Four Women and One Man for Acquittal.

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—A second Burch jury was discharged today without reaching a verdict. Jurors said the final ballot was 7 to 5 for acquittal. This division was unchanged since a shift on Saturday after the first ballot of 6 to 6. The four women voted for acquittal.

The case was placed on the calendar for next Saturday to be set for a third trial.

The defendant, Arthur C. Burch, was charged with slaying J. Belton Kennedy, Los Angeles broker, for whose death Madelynne Obenchain also has been tried with a jury disagreement.

WAITERS TO STRIKE IF THEIR PAY IS CUT

Between 2,000 and 3,000 Ready to Quit June 1, Failing to Reach Agreement.

SAY TIPS HAVE DROPPED

Restaurant Keepers Could Easily Lower Food Prices, Say Workers —Cite Independent Rates.

Refusing to accept a cut in pay, members of Waiters' Union No. 1 at a mass meeting last night in Park View Palace, 110th Street and Fifth Avenue, authorized their officers to call a strike on June 1 if no agreement is reached with the New York Restaurant Keepers' Association.

Raising of a $50,000 defense fund also was ordered to be used in event a strike is called against the restaurant proprietors, who were bitterly assailed as "100 per cent. profiteers."

Declaring that their tips have fallen off 50 per cent. during the last year, Samuel Turkel, President of the union, announced that the proposal of the restaurant proprietors for a 25 to 40 per cent. wage cut at this time could not be considered. He said a final effort to get the employers to sign an agreement continuing the present wage scale and avert a strike would be made at a conference called for next Thursday afternoon at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

Should the strike be called, he said, between 2,000 and 3,000 men and women waiters in lunchrooms and restaurants would walk out in more than 600 eating places. They will have the support of the United Hebrew Trades, the Central Trades and Labor Council and other labor organizations, it was stated.

The employers, according to the union leaders, want a sixty-hour week instead of the present forty-four-hour schedule, and want to reduce full time workers from $20 to $15 a week, and lunch hour workers from $12 to $9 per week. Girls' pay, it was said, would be cut from $15 to $10 for full time and from $10 to $8 per week for lunch hour.

The employers contend that they want to reduce prices on the menus, said President Turkel, "and can only do so by cutting our wages. This is all wrong. They could greatly reduce prices without cutting wages.

"Scores of independent restaurants are paying the union scale and have cut menu prices far below those of the members of the association."

LION LOOSE IN STREET TERRIFIES BIG CROWD

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 22.—Thousands watching a circus performance here tonight were terrified when a big lion escaped from its cage. The beast ran out of the main tent, through another tent and into the street. Pursued by circus employes, it fled three blocks before it was cornered.

Several hundred people followed the animal out of the tent. When he was penned in and roped there was a great crowd encircling the spot. Then came a panic-stricken rush as the lion broke from the ropes and charged directly into the watchers. The mob was too dense for the animal to penetrate easily, however, and it halted, snarling. In the end it was roped securely and lifted into a cage which had been drawn to the scene.

The lion, a male, and one of the biggest with the circus, was being unloaded from its menagerie cage into a steel cage for a performance when the mechanism of the gates failed and the animal dropped to the ground in the centre of the arena.

He hesitated there a moment and then started to run. In great bounds he crossed the main tent and disappeared into the horse tent. Most of the spectators seemed to think it was all part of the act, but when circus employes started running after the beast, the people realised that something was wrong. There was no sign of panic, however, and those who left to join in the chase for the animal did so quietly.

The lion emerged from the horse tent and ran down the street, scattering a crowd of late-comers on their way to the circus. Two women reported later that they had been injured by the lion in his headlong flight. One said she was struck by a paw as the lion bounded past her and that her shoulder was bruised and cut. The other said she was knocked down.

Soon a crowd of several hundred, headed by circus employes, was in pursuit. After a chase of three blocks the lions were cornered in a narrow space between a garage and a wire fence. Wedged there, he was helpless.

While ropes were made fast to his legs, his cage was drawn to the scene by an elephant. Then a horse was hitched to the ropes to drag im out. When the horse pulled the lion leaped out and, slipping loose from the ropes, dashed into the crowd.

A circus cook leaped on the lion's back and tried to hold him away from the crowd. He was dragged for several yards but was uninjured.

Cowboys from the show then lassooed the lion. He was hoisted into the cage and taken back to the menagerie tent.

Property owners in the vicinity crowded the circus office after the capture with claims for damage done by elephants, horses and the crowd which trampled lawns and gardens. One man said his front door was broken in the rush to escape when the lion charged the crowd.

WOMAN WINS FEE FOR RETAINING M'ADOO

Court Orders Verdict in Suit Involving Brother of the Ex-Secretary.

Justice Vernon M. Davis, in the Supreme Court yesterday, directed a jury to bring in a sealed verdict in favor of Miss E. L. Lucke, who sued the Ship Construction and Trading Co., Inc., of 111 Broadway, for $5,000 for services which partly consisted in inducing Malcolm B. McAdoo, brother of William Gibbs McAdoo, to represent the firm before the Shipping Board.

The company contracted in 1917 to build two ships for $500,000 each, but in 1918 found itself in grave difficulties in carrying out the contract. Miss Lucke, who was acquainted with Mr. McAdoo, induced him to take up the case with the Shipping Board. The result was that the contracts were amended, but the Shipping Board later seized the shipyard of the company.

Miss Lucke said that $5,000 was promised to her and that Mr. McAdoo was to be paid from this. Mr. McAdoo testified that he had accepted the engagement, expecting to be paid for it, and had seen Admiral Bowles and others for the purpose of readjusting the contracts.

"I understand," he continued, "that counsel asked Miss Lucke about my relations with William G. McAdoo. We are brothers. We were never in business together. I paddle my own canoe and he paddles his. My business relations in Washington had nothing to do with him, directly or otherwise. Miss Lucke's matter was one which he knew nothing about. I simply want to make this clear."

The defense of the Ship Construction & Trading Company was that it was not obligated to pay the commission, since the Shipping Board had eventually taken over the shipyard, so that they received no benefit from the amended contract. When Justice Page learned that this was the defense, he ordered the jury to find a verdict in favor of Miss Lucke, but left it to the jury to decide the amount of the judgment. Miss Lucke is Treasurer of the A. V. Alexander Company, dealers in [illegible] Battery Place.

CHAPLIN WOULD KEEP ALIEN MOTHER HERE

Affidavit Says He Is a Millionaire —She Is a London Air Raid Victim.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Immigration authorities are investigating the conditions under which Hannah Chaplin, aged and shell-shocked mother of Charles Chaplin, is allowed to remain in the United States. E. J. Henning, Assistant Secretary of Labor, granted a stay today to enable counsel employed by her sons, Charles and Sidney, to present legal ground for permitting Mrs. Chaplin to be a semi-permanent resident.

Mrs. Chaplin, herself an actress, it was explained, with mentality deranged by shock in one of the first German air raids on London. After the war her sons wanted to take her to California to give her environment and treatment to ease her condition and possibly restore her reason. After some difficulty permission was given for her to enter the United States for one year. This time has expired and the question has arisen whether a longer period of residence can be legally allowed.

The Chaplin brothers gave assurance that their mother never would become a charge on public charity. They installed her in a cottage at Santa Monica, Cal., with trained nurses and expert medical attention.

Physicians report, it is said, that Mrs. Chaplin's mental condition has improved steadily, despite her age, and counsel have presented a statement that Charles Chaplin is worth more than $1,000,000, contending that the extraordinary circumstances justify some yielding in the legal barriers against admission of aliens either permanently or temporarily mentally unsound.

A decision is expected shortly from the immigration board of review.

PAPERWORKERS SEEK PEACE

Vote to Negotiate Settlement of International Company Strike.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 22.—Representatives of 8,500 employes of the International Paper Company, in conference here to review facts of the strike of a year's standing in the company mills, voted tonight to make peace overtures to the company toward settlement of the strike.

Philip H. Dodge of New York President of the company, was advised of the decision to negotiate a settlement and requested to confer with the employes' representatives in Albany.

The conference has been in session here since May 19, and includes representatives from thirty-one mills located in five States. It was unofficially predicted tonight that a settlement would be effected soon after the company officials meet the employes' representatives.

DENY THIRD DEGREE DEATH.

Police Reply to Woman Who Heckled Enright.

The charge made by Miss Blanche Watson, when heckling Police Commissioner Enright on the floor of the Church of the Ascension on Sunday night, that Jacob Schwartz, a prisoner, had been murdered at Police Headquarters by third degree methods, was denied yesterday at Police Headquarters.

The records there showed, it was announced, that Schwartz had been arrested, not by the police, but by army intelligence officers, and that he died, not from brutality, but from natural causes. Two months after his arrest, it was asserted, he died of pneumonia in Bellevue Hospital. Miss Watson, who made the charge, said she had obtained her information by reading The New York Call.

Increases the action of the intestines

Doctors are now agreed that proper elimination of waste matter should be brought about by food. One doctor comes right out and states plainly that the indiscriminate use of cathartics is one of the causes of constipation.

Physicians all over the country are recommending Fleischmann's fresh yeast because it is a fresh food, rich in those elements which keep the intestines healthy. In one series of tested cases, normal functions were restored in from 3 days to 5 weeks.

Try it out for yourself. Begin today by adding 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast to your everyday diet. Keep it up and see how normally and regularly your intestines act. Be sure it's Fleischmann's Yeast—the familiar tin-foil package with the yellow label. Place a standing order with your grocer.

WANT PALESTINE BARRIERS LIFTED

PHILADELPHIA, May 22 — Steps to combat intolerance against Jews throughout the world and to preserve Jewish culture and history were urged today in addresses and in resolutions adopted by the American Jewish Congress in session here with 400 delegates from all parts of the United States.

The congress exists, according to keynote speeches, "not to create a state within a state but to unify American Jewry."

A resolution adopted at the session "deprecates the sinister propaganda by irresponsible agitators to sow suspicion and hostility among the Arab population against the Jewish people," and another expresses continual friendship for the Lithunian people. Lithuania, the resolution declares, has guaranteed minority rights to the Jewish people.

A pledge to "safeguard Jewish rights the world over and carry the minority rights principle into action in all those countries where such rights are demanded by the Jewish inhabitants," is taken in another resolution adopted by the congress.

The immediate removal of all restrictions on immigration into Palestine was the basis of a resolution which declared freedom of immigration to be the first condition of the successful realization of the Jewish homeland in Palestine.

"In this land," he said in an address, "it is the bounden duty of Jews to order their affairs in a truly democratic fashion. This is no place for Jewish partisanship and sectarianism."

Referring to American Jews aiding the interests of their fellow Jews the world over, Dr. Wise declared that "nothing that is of interest to the well-being and honor of Israel is outside the range of our collective concern and solicitude as American Jews."

Liberal immigration laws in America to permit those persecuted for religious reasons to find a haven here were urged by the congress. A committee was appointed to study immigration here and abroad with a view to helping Jews who desire to establish homes in Palestine.

The river Jordan will furnish power for the electrification of Palestine under reclamation plans announced to the congress by Dr. George H. Cohen of Hartford, Conn. The plans, he said, were already under way.

The "human test" for the immigrant was suggested by Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia in an address of welcome to the congress.

Give the immigrant the test of whether he is willing to work, knows his religion and aspires to our ideals rather than the literacy test," he said.

Don't Use Grit

This scientific way removes film

Grit cannot keep the teeth free from dingy film. And it scratches the enamel. A soft polishing agent, such as is found in Pepsodent is the ideal agent to polish teeth.

But Pepsodent does more than polish. It combats the film successfully in a unique way. And that's the great essential.

Why teeth grow dingy

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. That film absorbs stains and becomes discolored. Then, if not removed, it forms dingy coats. Film is also the basis of tartar.

Film also causes most tooth troubles. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Old ways don't end it

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. That is why so many well-brushed teeth discolor and decay. Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing, until very few escape.

So dental science has long been seeking a way to fight that film. It has found by research two effective methods. Able authorities have amply proved them. Now leading dentists almost the world over advise their constant use.

A new tooth paste has been perfected, based on five modern requirements. The name is Pepsodent. These two film combatants are embodied in it for daily application. And a ten-day test is offered every home to show the new results.

Old methods wrong

Dental science has made other discoveries. It finds that the starch digestant in the saliva is there to digest starch deposits on teeth. Those deposits, if left, may ferment and form acids.

The alkalinity of saliva is to neutralize mouth acids — the cause of tooth decay.

But old-time tooth pastes, based on soap and chalk, reduced those protective factors. They did an actual harm.

So Pepsodent omits soap and chalk. Instead, it embodies elements which multiply the starch digestant in saliva, and multiply its alkalinity.

Thus every use of Pepsodent gives manifold power to Nature's great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth. That in itself means a new dental era.

Yours for the asking

It will bring to you and yours a new era in teeth cleaning. You will know that in a week. And you will never return to old methods when you see and feel these results.

Used by 40 races

Millions of people of some forty races now employ Pepsodent daily. And largely by dental advice. The use is fast spreading to every part of the earth.

You see the results wherever you look. You see glistening teeth which add so much to beauty. The dingy film is every day combated.

Those beautiful teeth mean safer, cleaner teeth. They mean that all tooth troubles are more effectively warded off. And that people of the future will not suffer like people of the past.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Note how every use leaves a refreshing effect.

When once you watch the delightful effects you will want them every day. And that will mean lifetime benefits which the old ways cannot bring. Cut out the coupon now.

News, Pleasant and Unpleasant

BERNARD SHAW writes plays and labels them either "pleasant" or "unpleasant." If Mr. Shaw were a newspaper editor, he would find it more of a job to separate his news into pleasant and unpleasant editions.

News knows no order in the making. One day it may be all good and the next all bad. It comes in streaks. No newspaper can guarantee pleasant reading on any particular morning.

But any newspaper can (and should) realize that the public's capacity for consuming horrors is limited. Looking on the bright side of life never put any man behind prison walls. In times of stress and bleak despair a newspaper has a hard and fast duty to perform in keeping up the morale of the community.

When the flu epidemic is raging, tell the truth—yes—but it isn't necessary to send the nation into a panic on the doleful accounts of one pessimistic reporter.

When the divorce mills are churning and the criminal courts have full dockets, set down such of the proceedings as present legitimate news values—certainly—but one needn't be too melodramatic about it.

A newspaper must carry the news, both pleasant and unpleasant. There are nights, however, when a little discretion at the hectic hour of rushing to press can turn a million frowns into a million smiles.

Did you ever stop to think how much the way you start the day depends on the kind of news you read at the breakfast table?

SALES MANAGER
Available
for a Food Manufacturer

We are in a position to introduce to some sound, up-to-date food manufacturer, a decidedly high calibered and thoroughly experienced food sales manager.

This man is 42 years old, has learned the business of selling and merchandising of foods from the ground up, having started in a grocery store; has passed through the various steps of jobber's salesman, manufacturer's salesman, then manager of a manufacturer's branch office and later the general sales manager of a large, nationally known food manufacturer.

He is possessed of an exceptionally broad knowledge and experience in the selling of food products, especially trade marked, package goods. He has made very definite and favorable records as a sales manager and has proved his ability to organize, train and handle a large selling organization. He is unusually capable of making men like him and getting them to do their utmost in their jobs.

He has successfully planned and handled the details of specialty work, demonstrations, sampling and advertising, as well as the general selling. He is favorably known among many of the country's leading food brokers, jobbers and chain store houses.

One of his most valuable qualities is the fact that, while he is an active, aggressive man who does things, his training is along the approved, conservative lines. He is a safe man, not merely by reason of character and integrity, but also in his methods of planning sales activities.

He is at present employed as general sales manager—in fact, he has never been out of a job since he left school. He is available only if a genuine opportunity is presented wherein his experience and abilities can be capitalized to the fullest extent, to the mutual advantage of a good food concern and himself.

If interested, we shall be pleased to arrange an introduction.

RADIO SHOW OPENS WITH NOVEL DEVICES

ARMY AND NAVY EXHIBIT

Signal Corps Has Biggest Amplifier in World — Ship-Steering System Portrayed.

A radio show under the auspices of the new National Radio Chamber of Commerce opened last night in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, with manufacturers' exhibits of all kind of wireless apparatus and booths of the army and navy wireless sections. Commissioner Copeland was the speaker.

One of the army exhibits is an amplifier said to be the largest in existence. Officers of the United States Signal Corps, who are in charge of the exhibit, say that the apparatus will throw the incoming message about a mile. Captain N. H. Temple of the Seventy-first Infantry arranged for this exhibit.

The navy's exhibit is a replica of its radio compass system, whereby ships are guided through Ambrose Channel into New York harbor during foggy weather. A model of the apparatus is exhibited, and a miniature of the harbor shows how the vessels are guided through the dangerous Narrows by radio. In this miniature the contours of the land are built up with a paste-like substance, and glass represents the water. A small magnetized ship is guided over the course by electrical apparatus under the table. It attracted hundreds of persons last night.

How to put radio apparatus into the house in conformance with the regulations of the Board of Fire Underwriters also is explained in exhibits. One of these exhibits was put in by the Copper Clad Steel Company. Insurance agents also are giving instruction on the same subject.

Courses of instruction in radio and wireless construction also are offered in the show, one by the radio school of the Y. M. C. A. Private schools also have their booths. Most of the manufacturers also offer instruction to the amateur who wishes to listen in on broadcast programs.

Miniature radio apparatus is exhibited by William H. Ruf of Manasquan, N. J. Some of his masterpieces, which he says are workable, are no larger than the thumb nail.

The show is to be open every day this week from 10:30 o'clock in the morning to 11 o'clock at night. Broadcasted programs are received at 3:30 in the afternoon and 8:45 in the evening.

Lambs' Public Gambol on June 11.

The Lambs Public Gambol will be held this year at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Sunday night, June 11. The program includes a musical act, "Sweethearts of the Fold," arranged and staged by Hassard Short, in which the song hits by well-known Lambs will be incorporated. A new patriotic song by Gene Buck will be sung by a chorus of fifty. Other numbers will be "A Night in Old Paris," by Glen MacDonough; "So This Is Russia," a satire by Mark Swan; "Terrific Traffic," a burlesque, by Joseph Santley. There will be no auction sale of boxes and seats.

Faversham to Tour Long Island.

William Faversham will tour Long Island this Summer with three one-act plays for the benefit of the Professional Children's School, it is announced. He will start about the middle of June, under the business management of George H. Brennan. The plays have not yet been made public.

AMERICAN WOMEN BALK GERMAN OVERCHARGING

BERLIN, May 22.—The story has reached Berlin of how a party of American women turned the tables on the Bavarian Government by conducting probably the first tourists' strike in history, in retaliation for one of the many instances of overcharging so prevalent now throughout Germany. These women, though 5,000 miles from home, were courageous enough in their strike to even do picket duty against a German institution.

Near Oberammergau there is the Schloss Linderhof in which lived the mad King Ludwig II. It is of interest to tourists, and on the day the Passion Play opened the Bavarian Government notified the guards of Castle Linderhof to fleece American sightseers. Although printed signs say the price of admission is 25 marks, Americans were charged 100 marks (about 50 cents). Of course the Americans were not informed, and after paying 600 marks (about $2) for a carriage many of them submitted.

But along came a party of five wives of American diplomatic officials in Berlin and Munich. They saw the sign and argued for "list prices." The guards refused.

"We won't go in," said the Americans.

"You will change your mind," answered the guards.

But they did not. Headed by Mrs. Theodore Hogg, wife of the American Consul in Berlin, and Mrs. Smith, wife of a captain of the United States Military Mission, they took a position in a neighboring teahouse and outlined a campaign. A few minutes later a party of ten Americans appeared whom the guards tried to fleece. Immediately the American pickets appeared and called attention to the extortion, whereupon the ten Americans joined the five picketers. All afternoon groups of two to ten Americans appeared and almost without exception refused to pay the 150 marks, but joined the strikers until the teahouse was full.

Desperation the Bavarian Guards attacked the teahouse keeper, demanding that 150 marks be added to every bill because they had lost that much in patronage. But it did not work. Linderhof remained deserted and the Americans returned to Oberammergau happy despite a sneaking feeling Ludwig's madhouse and Bavarian officialdom continues to smash its teeth over the first American boycott.

HONORS CENTURY-OLD FIRMS

Philadelphia Dinner List Headed by One Founded in 1687.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—Firms that flourished a century ago, when Philadelphia was a city of less than 100,000 population, were honored tonight at a dinner given by the Chamber of Commerce, when representatives of the honored establishments rose in turn as the roll was called.

Representatives of fifty-five firms were present, with Francis Perot's Sons Malting Company leading, having been established in 1687. Applause greeted the modern heads of the old firms and by no means the least was accorded the Robert Smith Brewery, founded in 1774.

One of the features of the dinner was the reading by Mayor J. Hampton Moore of pages from old city directories. In that of the year 1790 appears the name of George Washington, 130 High Street.

Russians Again Sing "Czar's Bride."

"Czar's Bride" by Rimsky-Korsakoff was sung again last night at the New Amsterdam for the opening of the third week of the season of the far-wandering and much-enduring Russian Grand Opera Company. Miss Koshetz with the remarkable unaccompanied song, "As a mother loves her daughter," and Miss Kasanskaya in a Lucia-Ophelia mad scene were much applauded by an audience which in great part understood the Russian words of the text. After repetitions of "The Snow Maiden," "The Demon," and "Eugene Onegin," the Russians will give another novelty this week in Tschaikowsky's "Christmas Eve" on Friday and Saturday nights. A good sized audience testified to the sustained interest in this unusual company of musicians.

WILDE'S "SALOME" REVIVED.

Narraboth	Paul Doucet
Damasco	Harold West
Tigellinus	Horace Mitleron
Naaman	Lyman Grant
Salome	Thelma Harvey
Tamoura	Lilas Ford
Johanaan	Noel Leslie
Herod Antipas	Fred Eric
Manasse	T. Morse Koupal

"Salome," again a bone of contention this season, in view of a vote last February to remove the Metropolitan ban on the opera which became a cause célèbre fifteen years ago when the "lid" was put on, appears to be by way of repeating its former concurrent history as a play for the theatre. At the Klaw last night Wilde's text in English was represented by the Players Forum, the actors being Thelma Harvey, Alma Kruger, Fred Eric, Noel Leslie, Paul Doucet and Harold West. Emphasis was laid on the fact that a dancer enacted the rôle that the English author wrote in French for Bernhardt, who now—heaven save the mark!—has but one leg. Miss Harvey had two good legs to stand on, also, in so far, two good reasons for her dramatic attempt.

Miss Harvey's voice was weak, her declamation lame, and she once had to be prompted on the oft-repeated "I demand the head of Johanaan." Her stage plié lines are in another direction. Though the house laughed at Salome's "I do not desire to dance for thee, Herod," yet when she did dance she gave not only the mad King, but also her mirthful audience, a new one.

The seven veils fell like the drop of a hat. The dance was a little Egypt and a lot more—say the other 97.23 per cent.—honest-to-hootch hula hula from Honolulu, where the music also came from. A wistful wail to ukelele strumming was drowned in the flagellation of lashing fringes with the head on. As a Freudian flapper, the new Salome was all there.

Mr. Eric, who also staged the piece, declaimed Herod well; so did Miss Kruger, the Queen and Mr. Leslie the Prophet. Wilde's measured antiphons were morbid music on the lips of these associated veterans, and the audience felt their spell. The curtain fell only for breathing space for the dancer, and finally for Herod's "Kill that woman!" as she kissed the death's-head far backstage.

"THE ROTTERS" IS NOISY.

	Harry Corson Clarke
Mrs. Clugston	Janet Murdoch
Percy Clugston	Harry McNaughton
Winnie Clugston	Margaret Dale Owen
Estelle Clugston	Kathleen Flynn
Charles Berry	Louis Hector
Phoebe	Selma Hall
Police Inspector Wick	George Baydenham
Emma	Marian Marcus

On the program of "The Rotters," the English play by H. F. Maltby which opened at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre last night, it is stated that the work is "the tale of a respectable family," and, in the next line, that it is "a satirical comedy." All of which may be taken to indicate that "The Rotters" wears its labels where all who run may read. The person who takes his seat in the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre is not to be left in any doubt as to the nature of the entertainment to be offered him. He's not to spend any time in puzzlement, wondering whether the play is a tragedy, a comedy or manners, a serious discussion of some social problem or a musical extravaganza. No, he is told right off that he is a witness "the tale of a respectable family." But this might mislead him. He might take the word respectable literally. So, in effect, it is asterisked. "A satirical comedy" gives him the hint that it is used satirically.

But the play really doesn't need this careful preparation of the audience. From the first line it is its own ballyhoo. It informs all present that it is about an English family—lower middle class, apparently—that the father of this family, Councillor John Clugston, J. P., makes a great to-do about his respectability, that his children are all rotters, nevertheless, and that he is actually the worst rotter of the family.

That's all, except the noise. Every one shouts at every one else, except, at first, Charles Berry, the chauffeur, who begins quietly enough. But he, too, is shouting before the tumult dies. And he is also a rotter.

It is said that Harry Corson Clarke, who is the producer of the play and also plays the leading rôle, has taken it pretty nearly all over the world, through England, India, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Japan and China. And one is inclined to credit the report. It's a typical barnstorming piece.

Alice Brady at Palace Theatre.

Alice Brady in "Cassie Cook of the Yellow Sea," Chic Sale, Bessie Clayton and company in "A Box Party," and Al Herman head the bill at the Palace Theatre this week. Miss Brady's playlet is an abridged version of the play "Drifting," in which she appeared recently on Broadway.

Film "Nero" Opens at the Lyric.

"Nero," a motion picture produced in Italy by the Fox Film Corporation, under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards, opened at the Lyric Theatre last night. It will be reviewed in THE TIMES later in the week.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Archibald Selwyn will leave on Saturday for Berlin to inspect the play "Die Wunderlichen Geschichten des Kapellmeisters Kries-Kreisler," by Carl Meinhard and Rudolf Bernauer, which the Selwyns will produce here next season as "The Mysterious Affair."

Charles Waldron will play the principal rôle in "The Purple Mask," opening at Henry Miller's Theatre a week from Thursday night.

Sam H. Harris will produce a musical comedy with the Duncan Sisters next season.

G. P. Putnam's Sons will soon publish, in a single volume, "The Dover Road," "The Truth About Blayds" and, probably, a third Milne comedy.

"West of Pittsburgh" by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, was produced last night by George C. Tyler in Atlantic City.

S. Hurok is negotiating with Stanislawsky, director of the Moscow Art Theatre and his company to play limited engagements in New York, Boston and Chicago, it is announced.

Charles Dillingham will make arrangements to present "Good Morning, Dearie," in London when he arrives there.

Ramon D'Nell's "Ile" and two other plays will be produced by the Provincetown Players in the Provincetown Theatre on June 2, 3 and 4.

MUSIC NOTES.

Giovanni Guerrieri, tenor, made a first appearance last evening at the Brooklyn Academy, assisted by Marie Axelsen, soprano, and G. Ludovanis, baritone.

RUTH SCORES FIRST HOME RUN OF YEAR

DRIVE IS JUST IN TIME

Babe Ruth hit his first homer yesterday, Bob Meusel got his first single, and between the two the Yankees won. They beat the Browns in thirteen fast and fleeting innings, 4 to 3, and it was the late inmates of the Judge Landis doghouse who started the trouble and then finished it.

It was the Babe himself who laid the foundation for a belated and successful rally. He came up in the eighth, with the Browns ahead by 3 to 0, and slammed the first of Elam Van Gilder's pitches against the ornamental facade of the right field grand stand. There was nobody on base at the time, and only one run came in, but the Yanks bridged the rest of the gap in the ninth when Camp Skinner of Dallas, Texas, jammed the tying run in with a hot single to left.

The ninth passed into the tenth and so on until the thirteenth. After the Brownies had faded out of the picture, the Yanks came in for their turn. The large and familiar figure at the plate was Bob Meusel, the well-known barnstormer. Up to that moment Robert had made not a hit in two games and most of a third. But he swung a hard single to left field and was sacrificed to second. Everett Scott promptly smashed a single to right centre and Meusel scurried around third and over the plate with the big run.

Ruth had a barren afternoon of it up to the eighth inning. In the opening frame he lifted harmlessly to Sisler. In the third he filed out to Tobin. In the fifth he walked, his first pass of the year, but not an intentional gift. And in the eighth—well, in the eighth he produced—a high, hard-driven fly that carried with tremendous force against the wooden facing between the upper tier and the roof. It's one of the Babe's favorite spots.

It was time the Bambino was doing something. The fans got impatient after three more failures, and they were beginning to decorate the big slugger tastefully with wreaths of wild raspberry. In the seventh they cheered derisively when he made a simple catch of a fly. The Babe lifted his cap in a retort courteous. I nthe eighth he got the same greeting for the same kind of a play, and again the Babe doffed his lid in courtly manner. A few minutes later he hit homer, and the tide of popular favor shifted rapidly.

This blow of Ruth started the Yanks on their way. They went into the ninth two runs behind, but with hopes high. Pipp fouled to Ellerbe, a discouraging start for any inning. But Scott singled to centre—the first of his two important hits—and Wally Schang smashed along the first-base line. Tobin got the ball, took a hasty look at the sprinting Mr. Scott and then threw in the general direction of second base. General is right, for the ball sailed past Gerber, past Ellerbe and clear to the third-base stand. Scott scored and Schang ran to second.

Skinner Delivers a Single.

Enter now the modest young hero, Camp Skinner, who would be a colonel if he lived in Kentucky instead of Texas. Camp batted for Bob Shawkey and fouled about a dozen balls into the stand just to keep the fans on the anxious seat. After getting all the batting practice he wanted, Camp very coolly and leisurely rammed a beautiful single between third and short and pulled up at first in a leisured manner, as if he was accustomed to doing this very thing once or twice a day. Schang came in from second, Williams fumbling to make the matter certain, and the score was tied.

At this juncture Colonel Skinner bowed to superior speed and was retired to allow Mike McNally to run for him. There was only one out and the situation had its possibilities. Hubert Pruett, a nice-looking collegian, late of the University of Missouri, was rushed to the mound to succeed the faint Mr. Van Gilder, and in deference to the entrance of a left-hander Miller Huggins yanked Witt in favor of Elmer Miller.

Elmer is supposed to hit left-handers with greater ease than Witt, but the demonstration yesterday was quite unsatisfactory. He raised a fly to Sisler, which was better than he did later on when he struck out. The fly to Sisler made it two out, and McNally was left in first base when Ellerbe picked Ward's singing liner off his shoe laces.

Ruth had another chance in the tenth, but he fanned to start the inning. For that matter, however, the great Sisler also overlooked a chance. With two out and runners on second and first in the eleventh, George grounded to Ward and was chucked out at first. In the twelfth Ruth got his second pass, but went no further than first base.

Bush Succeeds Shawkey.

Bullet Joe Bush was one of the major heroes of the day. After being long absent with a gash in his working hand, he returned to the game in the tenth after Shawkey had been forced into retirement by Pinch Hitter Skinner. Bush pitched four innings and had some trouble, but not too much. Ellerbe started the thirteenth with a single off Baker's glove, and McManus sacrificed him on to second. But Pruett, after a game effort to hit safely, was finally fooled into fanning, and Johnny Tobin had his bat on his shoulder when Umpire Chris Owens called a third strike.

Going back to the beginning, it was a top by Aaron Ward that saved the Yankees. With two out in the third, two runs behind, but with hopes high,

TOLLEY LOSES IN BRITISH TOURNEY

JOHN G. ANDERSON WINS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 22.—The British amateur golf championship opened today under ideal conditions. Rain had been falling steadily all night, but had cleared away when the first couple started. There was a slight wind from the south, which freshened later, but not enough to give an advantage to any competitor.

With a record entry of 289 players, it was found necessary to extend the play for the first round over two days. About two-thirds of the first round was completed today.

Among the American competitors who played were John G. Anderson of Siwanoy, who won by 5 and 4, and George A. Dixon of the National Golf Links, Long Island, who lost by 4 and 3. Anderson, who has probably competed in British championship tourneys more times than any other American player, admits that he is playing at top form.

The interest that the Scots are taking in this year's championship was evidenced by the fact that some twelve thousand spectators were about the course today. There were many surprises in store for them, the chief being the sensational defeat of Cyril Tolley, who beat the American, Robert Gardner, at Muirfield two years ago and was regarded as the most likely Englishman to bring the championship south again.

Tolley Makes Wayward Shots.

Tolley today had to meet Samuel Robinson, an employe of the Gas Department of the Southport Corporation, and a brother of the professional of the Southport municipal golf course. Tolley played many wayward shots and was noticeably feeble on the greens. He was never up on his opponent and was defeated on the seventeenth green by 2 up and 1 to play. Robinson was so painstaking with his putting that the game lasted two and three-quarter hours.

Two other surprises were the defeats of C. V. L. Homan, international player, by M. Walker, and W. A. Murray of Romford by S. H. Fry. Fry, who, besides being amateur billiard champion for some years, was runner-up in the amateur golf championship twenty years ago, was not expected to stand a chance against Murray, who has been in such brilliant form recently that he was regarded as a likely member of the team to visit the United States this Summer.

Although the American invasion this year is not so formidable as last year, British golfers are by no means despising the capabilities of the transatlantic competitors. Anderson is regarded as the biggest threat from overseas and today he had no difficulty in disposing of Walter Wright of Hendon, who, it must be said, was never expected to get far in the championship. Anderson won by 5 up and 4 to play.

Anderson Tops His Drives.

Anderson showed a tendency to top his drives, but as they were straight he did not find the trouble that lay in wait for those who sliced or pulled their long tee shots into the rough. He started badly by losing two out of the first three holes, but from that point he never looked back. He won the next five holes, halved the ninth and turned three up when he won the tenth and at the thirteenth had become dormie 5.

Wright had a four-yard putt for 3 at the fourteenth, but Anderson promptly putted his for a like number to win the match. That Anderson was not playing badly was shown by the fact that he did fourteen holes in 58.

Dixon was unable to hold R. Segar Pugh, the Welsh player, who excels in match play. The American had the better of the opening stages and had a lead of 2 up at the sixth, but Pugh then began to win back holes until Dixon was 1 down at the turn and 2 down at the twelfth. The thirteenth was halved by virtue of a four-yard putt by the American, but he failed with a short putt at the fourteenth and found himself 3 down with four holes to play.

Dixon made a fine attempt to hole a five-yard putt on the fifteenth to keep the game alive, but he just failed, and the Welshman won by 4 and 3. Dixon was doing good work with the mashie, but his putts were often short.

The present holder of the championship, Willie Hunter, is confident of his ability to retain the title. Today he had to meet Viscount Maidstone, a sound player but not good enough to extend his opponent, who won comfortably by 7 to 6.

Alexander Armour, brother of T. D. Armour, was defeated by W. B. Torrance by 6 and 5. Both these players were candidates for the team to go to America. Armour says he is going to visit his brother in America anyway.

Present Champion Victorious.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 22 (Associated Press).—The defeat of Cyril Tolley, former amateur champion, who, with William Hunter, the present titleholder, and Roger H. Wethered, has the prestige of being among Great Britain's finest golfers, was the outstanding feature in the first day's play in the British amateur championship tournament. Tolley was eliminated today by Samuel Robinson of Southport, who, although formerly Lancashire champion, is virtually an unknown. The score was 2 up and 1 to play.

Another former champion to go down in defeat was A. Arvaour, who was beaten by W. B. Torrance of Edinburgh by 4—3.

The present champion, William Hunter, who had an easy victory over Viscount Maidstone by 7 up and 6 to play, while E. F. Carter, a former Irish champion, won from A. F. James by 4 up and 3 to play.

Five Americans are in the record field of 282 men who are seekin gthe championship. John G. Anderson of Siwanoy won handily from William Wright of Hendon, 5 up and 4 to play, but George A. Dixon Jr. of the National Links was eliminated by R. Segar Pugh of Royal St. Andrews.

The three other Americans—Donald Parson of Youngstown, John D. Chapman of Greenwich and G. A. Van Vleck Jr. of Pine Valley—will start tomorrow morning, when the first round will be completed. The second round of play will begin in the afternoon.

E. W. Holderness beat Lord Charles Hope, 6—4; B. Rotherfield won from T. A. Torrance, Sandy Lodge, at the seventeenth hole; J. L. C. Jenkins beat W. D. Charles, 6—3, and Noel Leyton Walton Heath, defeated Captain Hambro, 2—1.

MRS. HURD LOW SCORER.

Turns in Card of 86 in Western Pennsylvania Golf Play.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 22.—The one-day tournament of the Women's Western Pennsylvania Golf Association today developed into a struggle for honors between Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, Mrs. M. S. Sommell and Mrs. J. Raymond Price. Mrs. Hurd and Mrs. Sommell captured the high honors, the former turning in the low gross while Mrs. Sommell made low net in the first group. Mrs. C. I. Wendt, Pittsburgh, had the low net score in the second group.

Mrs. Hurd's score was 86, five strokes better than that of her nearest competitor, Mrs. Price, who turned with 91, while Mrs. Sommell had 92.

Hutchison Says He Has Small Hope of Keeping British Title

CHICAGO, May 22.—Jock Hutchison, Glenview professional, who departs Thursday to defend his title in the British open golf championship, June 19, at Sandwich, said today he had small hopes of repeating his victory of last year. After his final practice round yesterday on this side, he said:

"I'll have to do much better at Sandwich. I can't say that I feel I'm going to win, although I certainly will try my best. They will all be there, and what a bunch of golfers to beat."

WATSON LOW SCORER IN SCHOOLBOY GOLF

GREENWICH, Conn., May 22.—S. N. Watson Jr. of Lawrenceville, President of the Eastern Interscholastic Golf Association, had the honor of leading the field of forty-three schoolboy golfers in the opening day of the annual championship tournament at the Greenwich Country Club today with a score of 81. Willis G. Jones of Tome School, winner of the qualifying round in last year's event, held at the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, was a close second, a stroke behind, while tied for third place, with 85 each, were L. V. Cochran of Hill School and J. A. Jackson of Canterbury.

The team championship was decided simultaneously with the qualifying test and Lawrenceville won a third leg on the St. Luke's trophy with an aggregate score of 350. Nine strokes back came the Hill School representatives, with Tome third, Lawling fourth, Stamford High School fifth and Choate School bringing up the rear.

Watson, who is a junior at Lawrenceville and who, upon his graduation will enter Yale, was second in the 1921 qualifying test with an 86, but failed to survive the first round. Today he played almost perfect golf to the turn, being out in 40, and with four holes in par figures. He had six holes in par on the last nine, but a ball out of bounds at the twelfth cost him a 5 and at the fourteenth he required a 7 after getting into a trap and then finding his way into the brook.

Jones, who is a representative of the metropolitan district, played brilliantly for the greater part of the journey, but two 7's, one at the fourth hole and another at the fourteenth knocked him out of the competition for the medal.

HAMMETT BATTLES WAY TO NET VICTORY

Home Player Defeats Goldman, 11-9, 4-6, 6-4 in North Side Singles Tourney.

Favored by the weather and excellent playing conditions, the good progress in the North Side singles championship tennis tournament, which is being conducted by the University Heights Club, was continued yesterday afternoon, and the second and third rounds were completed save for two or three matches.

Alfred D. Hammett of the home club fought his way to victory in the hardest match of the day. He defeated Manfred Goldman, former champion of the Bahamas, in three exhausting sessions, which required considerably over two hours for completion. The scores were 11—9, 4—6, 6—4. Goldman was a good match for Hammett in steadiness and handled the latter's chop with success.

It was a gruelling endurance test in the third set, with Hammett standing up the better under the strain. Both men did miles of court-covering in the three sets, largely in back court, with Hammett manoeuvering for the openings a trifle more successfully in the first and third chapters.

Ralph M. DeMott created considerable surprise when he took the measure of the hard-hitting and aggressive Paul Martin of the University Heights Club in straight sets. The scores were 6—4, 6—3. Jerry Lang of Columbia University had a good day. He first eliminated L. V. Robinson of the home club by 6—4, 7—5, and continued his good work in the third round, in which he eliminated Leonard W. Knox of Montclair by 6—4, 6—0. In both matches the Columbia youth showed marked improvement over his form of a year ago. He played with greater confidence and his control was better. He stroked with speed as well as assurance off the ground and also handled himself well at the net.

Stephen V. Brulsans of the Hoboken Tennis Club figured in two stiff matches. He won a long and wearing match with Charles A. Anderson by 6—3, 6—7, 7—5, but succumbed later to the aggressive game of Perry E. Hall, who defeated him by 7—5, 6—4.

The summaries:

Second Round—Anton L. Van Beraath defeated Howard A. Christie, 6—2, 6—2; Jerry Lang defeated L. V. Robinson, 6—4, 7—5; Stephen V. Brunas defeated Charles A. Anderson, 6—3, 6—7, 7—5; Edward Rogers defeated Dr. R. F. Drake, 6—4, 6—3, 10—8; Jones W. Mersereau defeated Charles LeMaire, 6—1, 6—0; Alfred Fleharty defeated E. B. Robbins, 6—3, 6—3; Kenneth D. Fisher defeated W. H. Caswell, 6—0, 6—2; Alfred D. Hammett defeated Manfred Goldman, 11—9, 4—6, 6—4; Herbert C. Bowman defeated J. E. Ackland, 6—3, 6—1.

Third Round—Fred Pleasant defeated William T. Miles, 6—7, 6—1; Fred D. Fowers defeated Roscoe Kent, 6—0, 6—2; Lawrence A. Grimes defeated Arthur Dubbs, 6—4, 6—2, 6—0; Philip O. Bodkin defeated H. C. Tremaine, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3; Jerry Lang defeated Leonard W. Knox, 6—4, 6—4; Herbert Bowman defeated Clarence A. Brown, 6—4, 6—3; Ralph M. DeMott defeated Paul Martin, 6—7, 6—3, 6—3; Perry E. Hall defeated Stephen V. Brunsa, 7—5, 6—4; Jones W. Mersereau defeated Ray Neuberger, 6—4, 6—4.

The Early Bird Gets the Worm, Golf Ball Gets the Early Bird

GENEVA, N. Y., May 22.—Getting a worm cost an early bird its life recently on the Geneva Country Club course when a golf ball in a long low drive by F. W. Herendeen caught a robin as it rose from a tussle with a stubborn angle worm. Killing of the bird in this manner is especially unique, as similar incidents in golf annals occurred on balls driven high in the air. The robin was struck in the breast, its feathers scattering for a foot around. A big fat angle worm wriggled speedily to safety as the golfers approached.

MISS HARDIN AND MRS. JACKSON LEAD

MISS STIRLING HAS A 90

Special to The New York Times.

CONVENT, N. J., May 22.—If the signs in the bottom of the tea-cups count for aught, then the championship honor of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association is almost certain to fall to one of the New Jersey representatives, for when the qualifying round of the twenty-second annual W. M. G. A. tournament ended at the Morris County Golf Club today more than half of those who succeeded in passing the strict eligibility test were members of clubs located in the western sector of the metropolitan area. As further indication of the trend of events Jerseyward, a fair young golf Miss from Baltusrol held the place of honor at the head of the field of nearly 100 throughout a considerable portion of the day, although she was later forced to share her niche with another.

Miss Elisabeth Hardin, who two years ago at Greenwich went to the semi-final round in the women's classic only to be expunged by Miss Georgianna Bishop, was the one who led the field in the qualifying round for the greater part of the day, her score of 88 looming up large and lonely on the score-board until Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Greenwich, a former national title-holder, matched it toward the end of the play.

Miss Stirling Has Card of 90.

Two strokes behind and bracketed at 90 each, came Miss Alexa Stirling, the former national and Canadian women's champion, who was making her first appearance in the metropolitan event, and Mrs. Norman K. Toerge of Piping Rock, who was in the first division in the Nassau tournament a year ago. Mrs. C. N. Fowler Jr. of Baltusrol came next on the list, with 92, followed by Mrs. Thomas Hucknall of Morris County, two strokes behind. Following the even-figure sequence, Miss Frances Loew of Piping Rock came in with 96 and Mrs. F. E. Du Bois of Baltusrol was eighth, with a 98.

Six players were tied at 99, Miss Eleanor M. Mellon of Morris County, Mrs. Charles Dulles of Fox Hills, Mrs. J. L. Anderson of Cherry Valley, Mrs. J. E. Davis of Piping Rock, Mrs. W. MacGowan of Glen Ridge and Mrs. Irving Brown of Knickerbocker. The pearly gates of the championship division remained open just long enough to admit two more New Jersey representatives, Mrs. E. C. Koempel of Glen Ridge and Miss Kate Bomann of Plainfield.

Then they snapped shut and left on the outside some for whom it was a new experience. Mrs. A. S. Rosslin of Century and Mrs. J. Grumbach of Hollywood were two of the well-known players who lost a place in the reserved section by just one stroke.

By reason of their standing in the women's golf community the duos that were most closely followed were those in which Miss Stirling, Mrs. J. E. Anderson, Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson and Mrs. Thomas Hucknall figured. But all the while Miss Hardin, a former Vassar College girl, was playing the most consistent golf of any of them, as her card of 45 and 43 testifies.

Miss Mellon Entangled in Rough.

At only two holes during the round was she more than a single stroke away from the par path, one exception being the 435-yard eighth, for which the par calls for five. There, as a result of a slight miscalculation, Miss Mellon got entangled in the rough and before she reached the green she had played five strokes. Previously she had wasted a shot at Big Ben, No. 7, but all of her other figures were either pars or one over and a birdie 4 at the Pond Hole, so far as known the only one of the day, made up for one of the previous errors.

Mrs. Jackson, paired with Mrs. Hucknall, only returned from England a week ago and for the first nine holes indications were that her lack of practice was going to cost her a place in the championship flight. Her card showed an ominous 47, but after the turn she played close to par golf. Three par figures and particularly her 4 at the home hole, brought her into a tie for the medal.

Mrs. Jackson came near penalising herself out of a chance at the medal when, in addressing her ball for her pitch to the final green, her club accidentally touched the ball. She was uncertain as to whether or not the ball had moved, but according to the caddy it had not left its resting place and she was advised that the stroke would not count against her.

The cards of the two leaders with the par figures:

Out—
Par	4	5	3	4	4	4	5	5	5—39
Miss Hardin	5	5	3	5	4	5	7	5	6—45
Mrs. Jackson	5	6	5	6	5	5	4	4	5—47

Mrs. Jackson	6	5	4	4	5	3	5	5	4—41—88

Mrs. Hucknall in First Sixteen.

Mrs. Hucknall, one of the stars of the district, who was runner-up to Mrs. W. A. Gavin in 1917, had a difficult time in finding her game, and with half the distance covered she had a 51. Excellent golf on the inward journey, where her driving came back to normal, enabled her to offset the 51 with a 42, which left her well within the chosen sixteen. She was two over fours for the last seven holes, a successful putt from the edge of the green at the sixteenth aiding not a little.

As for Miss Stirling, her game for the most part was of high order, but a few extra putts here and there left her just short of the medal objective. The former Atlantan's driving was excellent throughout and on many occasions her ability to propel the ball over wide expanses was strikingly in evidence. Her card was a model for consistency, 45 each way, with only one marring figure, a 7 at the pond hole. Here her drive, which she topped, plunged into the water and fortunately skimmed across to safety on the other side. She had to play her second standing among the bulrushes, but, after getting safely out on the fairway, she looked up on a shot and ended it by taking three putts. An out of bounds cost her a stroke on the first nine, but on the way to the last green she still had a chance to tie for the medal by striking a long putt. In the effort to do so, however, she overran the cup and took two more to get down.

Her card:

Out	5	6	4	5	5	4	5	5	5—45
In	5	5	4	5	7	4	5	3	6—45—90

Mrs. Jackson vs. Mrs. Davis; Mrs. Fowler vs. Mrs. MacGowan; Miss Loew vs. Mrs. Koemple; Mrs. Toerge vs. Miss Mellon; Miss Hardin vs. Mrs. Irving Brown; Mrs. Hucknall vs. Mrs. Dulles; Mrs. Du Bois vs. Miss Bomann; Miss Stirling vs. Mrs. Anderson.

WRIGHT AND MYRICK ARE TENNIS VICTORS

Beals C. Wright, former national champion and Davis Cup player, with Julian S. Myrick, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, as his partner, occupied a large share of the limelight in the opening day's play at the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills yesterday afternoon for the metropolitan championship in veterans' doubles. This is the first time this championship has been contested, and the excellence of the play, not only in the match which Wright and Myrick won from H. N. Rawlins and Howard Homans, but in most of the others, could not well have been equaled in the average doubles tournament open to players of all ages.

Wright and Myrick won by scores of 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, but the match was far closer than these figures show. Nearly every game of both sets went to deuce and the rallies were always lively and sometimes exceedingly brilliant. Wright naturally directed the play in large part on his side of the net, but he was stoutly supported by Myrick, who was steadiness itself in his block volleys at the net. Wright's swift driving gave his team the offensive and his finishing shots were executed with his old-time skill. Always a great volleyer, Wright revealed considerably more than a mere reminder of his former ability in that respect.

Samuel Hardy, former Davis Cup Captain, and William A. Campbell likewise distinguished themselves by a noteworthy performance. They won handily from Edward C. Conlin and George W. Case Jr., taking two sets at 6—2 each. Theodore R. Pell and Bernon S. Prentice were another strong and successful combination.

The summaries:

Veterans' Metropolitan Doubles Championship—First Round—Beals C. Wright and Julian S. Myrick defeated H. N. Rawlins and Howard Homans, 6—2, 6—2; Howard Hildt and Charles S. Landers defeated W. D. Bourns and A. R. Saltenberg, 6—4, 6—2; Calhoun Cragin and Fred C. Inman won from A. C. Bragaw and J. Roche Jr. by default; Walter L. Pate and Carroll J. Post Jr. defeated Dr. Linn Emerson and C. J. Echmann, 6—4, 6—1; Thomas Sturges and William J. Galion defeated Elon H. Hooker and E. Frank, 7—5, 2—6, default; A. L. Lindberg and R. A. Boyes defeated W. D. Hadsell and Dr. Guy O. Brewster, 6—3, 6—4; Theodore R. Pell and Bernon S. Prentice defeated Stuart Johnston and C. J. Heplman, 6—2, 6—1.

Second Round—Samuel Hardy and William A. Campbell defeated Edward C. Conlin and George W. Case Jr., 6—2, 6—2; William A. Larned and Harold H. Hackett won from O. H. Gruner and partner by default.

EDGAR DAWSON DEFEATED.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 22.—John Whitback of the Loomis School, Suffield, Conn., this afternoon won the Connecticut interscholastic tennis tournament, defeating in the finals Edgar Dawson of the McBurney School, New York City, in a stubbornly contested four-set match by the scores 6—0, 6—4, 3—6, 6—4.

This morning he won a semi-final match from Charlie Wood of the McBurney School at 6—3, 6—4, and Dawson defeated J. H. Felly of the Fawling School, 6—1, 7—5.

John's brother, Ted Whitback, won the finals in the consolation tournament this afternoon by defeating J. H. Bents of the Choate School in five sets.

HARLOW VICTOR ON LINKS.

Robert E. Harlow of The Herald, a new addition to the ranks of the New York Newspaper Golf Club, had a field day at the expense of the other members of the clan in the regular monthly outing of the organization at St. Albans yesterday. With a score of 76, Harlow captured both the low gross and low net prizes, but was eligible for only one and took the gross, leaving four tied for the low net, John K. Winkler, Lou Paley, Percy Boone and Allan F. Poinsette. The qualifying test for the team which will represent New York in the inter-city match to be held at the Engineers' course, Roslyn, June 13, was held at the same time, the scores of the successful ones being: Harlow, 76, 7—69; Poinsette, 76, 8—72; Richard Welsh, 84; Charles M. Atherton, 86; Boone, 87, 15—72; W. A. Keatley, 95, and Hiram Serine, 93. From these, together with six who have already qualified, John G. Anderson, Grantland Rice, Frank Gould, Jack Kiernan, Frank Pope and Dave Hall, the local team will be selected.

MISS MOORE STARS IN TENNIS TOURNEY

The tournament tennis season for women in the metropolitan district was inaugurated auspiciously yesterday on the courts of the Montclair Athletic Club, where the first and second rounds and part of the third were played during a busy afternoon. The courts were in excellent shape and the general quality of performance was high. Under the direction of Miss Florence Sheldon, Chairman of the Tournament Committee, the program moved speedily and smoothly, with few defaults recorded.

A new tennis star was revealed in the course of the afternoon. She is Miss Edith Moore, the 16-year-old daughter of Robert Moore, the Montclair Club's professional. Though she lost to Miss Clare Cassel in the second round, Miss Moore disclosed a good variety of strokes and gave every evidence of the soundest instruction. For one so youthful she displayed remarkable poise, and evidently possesses a good tournament temperament.

Miss Cassel, who has had numerous seasons of successful tournament experience, beat Miss Moore by scores of 6—0, 7—5. She was steadier and she played better position than her young opponent. Yet she came near losing the second set. Miss Moore led in this session by 5—4, with the points 40—love in her favor in the tenth game, so that the set point was three times at her disposition. But Miss Cassel began drawing her in to the net on short cross-court shots and then lobbing to the base line and, under this treatment, Miss Moore's game collapsed. Yet at several stages of the encounter she demonstrated that she is the possessor of considerable facility in forecourt, volleying gracefully and in good form.

The favorite players came through in most instances without much trouble. Miss Marie Wagner, Miss Ceres Baker and Lillian Scharman in the upper half, and Miss Cassel, Miss Caroma Winn and Miss Florence Ballin in the lower half, all of them among the strongest players on the entry list, won their matches in straight sets. Miss Wagner, Miss Baker, Miss Ballin and Miss Winn all won in the third round. Mrs. J. C. Brush extended Miss Baker to seven games in the second set of their match, but the wouthful Orange star was never in serious danger. Miss Winn and Mrs. E. T. Rice had an interesting duel in the second round, the former winning by 7—5, 6—4. Miss Ballin earned two highly creditable and decisive victories, advancing at the expense of Miss Bessie Holden and Miss Jessie Gott.

Something of a surprise was occastoned by the defeat of Mrs. G. B. Hirsch by Miss Penelope Davies. The latter won by scores of 6—3, 6—4. Miss Davies has improved her game considerably since last season. She has steadied it and augmented the speed of her drives. She covered court at her baseline with much skill. The match was fought out from back court, but contained many interesting and well played rallies.

N. Y. A. C. FENCERS LOSE TO CUBANS

CAPTURE THREE TROPHIES

The first international fencing meet with three weapons to be held in this city was won by a team of Cubans last night at the New York Athletic Club. The N. Y. A. C. furnished the opposition. The teams were composed of four men for each weapon, foils, epee and sabre, no contestant competing with more than one weapon.

The program called for forty-eight bouts, and the Cubans won so overwhelmingly with epee and sabre as to build up a lead that the New York Athletic Club team could not overcome, even though it took the lead in the bouts with foils.

The score in Cuba's favor was 25 to 15. With the epee, the visitors won 11 bouts to 2, with three double touches; with sabre they won by 11 to 5. This gave them so great an advantage that the New York A. C. conceded the match after eleven bouts had been contested with foils. The New Yorkers led with the foils, 8 to 3, but, even by taking the remaining five bouts, the local fencers could not hope to win. Accordingly, these five bouts remained unfenced.

By their success the Cubans won no less than 11 trophies in the shape of cups presented by the President of Cuba, the Mayor of Havana and the New York Athletic Club. The bouts were witnessed by a large crowd, including many Cubans, and with a considerable number of señoritas from Havana to cheer the visitors on.

The Mercury Foot organization would undoubtedly have fared better had it not sent into the field a team weakened in the épée and sable in order to strengthen the foils. Sherman Hall and Leo Nunes are both of them masters with the dueling sword and the broadsword, and, although Nunes is N. Y. A. C. three-weapon champion and Hall former holder for four years of the national foils title, their prowess in foils could well have been sacrificed to bolster up the Mercury Foot team in the two other weapons. The New Yorkers went into the meet expecting to lose in épée, but also expecting to make a good fight with the sabre. Thus, believing an overwhelming victory would be scored by the foils, as proved to be the case, victory in the meet by a narrow margin appeared possible, not to say probable. The stunning defeat in sabres by the islanders, however, added to the defeat with the dueling sword, was too much for the New York foilsmen to redeem.

The visitors will fence their next bouts at Washington tomorrow evening at the Racquet Club of that city with a team from the Washington Fencers' Club.

New York A. C. Team.

Epee—W. L. Bowman, W. H. Russel, Ray W. Dutcher, V. P. Curti, J. C. Schaeffler, Dr. J. E. Gigoux and W. C. Gottshall.

Cuban Team.

M. W. Leake and Edward Moore were the winners in the opening games played last night in the Brooklyn Rational Recreation Academy's fourth annual handicap tournament in three-cushion billiards. Leake, playing for twenty-five points, defeated Robert Bush, playing for twenty, by a score of 25 to 13. The game consumed sixty-one innings and both players had high runs of three. In the second game of the evening, Moore, playing for twenty, beat John Mills, playing for twenty-five, by a score of 20 to 23. This was more sharply contested and required only fifty-four innings for settlement. Runs of three were high for both men.

Marshall Field 3d Pays $25,000 For the Madden Filly Emotion

Marshall Field 3d of Chicago has purchased from John E. Madden for $25,000 the three-year-old filly Emotion. The deal, which is believed to indicate that Mr. Field intends to follow his successes upon the English turf by racing upon this side of the water also, was announced at Jamaica yesterday. George Odom, who closed the deal for Mr. Field, is expected to train for the wealthy Chicagoan later on. Emotion, which after her easy victory over some fleet performers on Tuesday was hailed as one of the best three-year-olds in training, is regally bred. She is by Friar Rock—Affection.

HIGH CLOUD BREAKS AMERICAN RECORD

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, May 22.—In an exciting speed duel down the stretch J. Lowe's High Cloud just lasted this afternoon to capture the Fontaine Ferry Purse, the feature of the card at Churchill Downs, and in so doing established a new American record for the seven and a half furlongs distance. High Cloud, running a sensational race from the moment the barrier was sprung, clipped one and one-fifth seconds off the previous recordsby covering the distance in 1:30 flat. The previous mark of 1:31 1-5 was set at Belmont Park on May 29, 1908, by Restigouche. On this record-breaking trip Restigouche carried but 107 pounds, while High Cloud today was burdened with 118.

Jockey Garner, however, gave the Ultimus-Umbra horse a vigorous ride and got him home just a head in front of Moss Goldblatt's campaigner, Dr. Clark. The latter was a slight favorite over High Cloud in the part-mutuel betting. It took everything the winner had, however, to withstand the persistent challenge of Dr. Clark. The Goldblatt entry was well up all the way and appeared to have a trifle in reserve at the finish. In fact, many present were of the opinion that if the race had been a few strides longer Dr. Clark would have been the victor.

There was another close finish in the sprint for two-year-old fillies. H. H. Hewitt's Kindred, which moved like a good filly, entered the contention with a rush after covering two furlongs and, taking the lead at the head of the stretch, outstayed Montford Jones's Out Out to gain the verdict by a neck.

LORD BRIGHTON IS SPEEDY AT JAMAICA

Son of Ballot Runs Six Furlongs in 1:11 3-5 to Win Empire State Handicap.

Sam Hildreth sent his chestnut racer, Lord Brighton, from the Jamaica paddock yesterday in prime condition and the son of Ballot brought back to the Rancocas Stable the sum of $1,065.83, representing the winner's share of the pelf in the Empire State Handicap. Not a huge sum, but every dollar is helpful in running a racing stable, as Mr. Hildreth remarked later.

That both the horse and the track were about as fast as human care could make them was demonstrated by the time recorded for the six furlongs, which was 1:11 3-5. This is only one-fifth of a second slower than the track record set by Tryster in the Paumonok Handicap on the opening day of this meeting, carrying a pound more than Lord Brighton's burden yesterday.

When the blue pencil ceased scratching away at the field named for the Empire State only seven of the fourteen listed remained. The sharpshooters gave both Lord Brighton and Routledge a volley of backing and the two closed equal favorites at 2 to 1. Elected II. had supporters at a short price, while H. M. Howard's S. Allan was pounded by the votaries of Jockey Lang from 15 to 1 to sixes.

Lord Brighton Away Briskly.

Sande got Lord Brighton away briskly from the barrier and held the lead throughout. It wasn't a very extended lead most of the way, for the nose of Elected II. was at Sande's stirrup clear to the stretch turn. Straightened out for the final dash Lord Brighton drew out to win by a length from Routledge. The latter, which was sluggish at the outset, closed with determination in the last eighth and snatched the place from Elected II.

The followers of favorites fared ilfly, for only one outstanding public choice was successful. This was Captain, winner of the final race on the card.

Max Hirsch's brown colt Nassau turned the trick for his owner in the opening dash for juveniles without being unduly extended. He broke quickly as the barrier went up and cut off the odds-on public choice, J. L. Holland's Rork, as he slanted to the inner rail. Marinelli then took a long lead with Nassau, which was never thereafter threatened, and won galloping by five lengths. Rork, which was again cut off at the turn out of the backstretch, made up enough ground on the way home to land second place by a two-length margin over Reap.

J. F. McCauley saddled the winner of the six-furlong sprint for selling platers, his Peter Quince gelding, Bright Lights, having the speed of a cluster of eleven contestants. Bright Lights followed a fast early pace set by End Man and forged into the lead when the latter quit nearing the stretch turn. From that point onward the leader never had anything to worry about. Quesada, the favorite, and Care Free fought it out for second honors, which the former took in a hard drive.

A large field went the mile and a sixteenth route in the third number, and again the winner was all alone at the close. This time it was George Peterson's three-year-old filly Lady Zeus which capered home far in front in a July prize. She was badly outrun in the early stages, but closed a big gap in the final quarter and came on to win easily. At the end the winner's margin over Buxom, the second horse, was five lengths. Lord Herbert, the favorite, took the show money.

Scratches reduced the field in the Chatham Purse to four, such good ones as Emotion, Hephaistos and Letterman being eliminated by the blue pencil. The talent was in a quandary as a result, each of the surviving quartet being accorded a chance to pilot the others home. The Oak Ridge Stable's Rose Hill was the closing favorite at 2 to 1, but All Over, the Quincy Stable's candidate, proved best, stealing through on the rail in the stretch run after a slow beginning and winning going away by two lengths. Rose Hill, which made the early pace but faltered in the last sixteenth, saved the place from Native Land without difficulty.

Certain Leaves Maiden Class.

Frederick Johnson put a couple of colts into the five-furlong scurry for maiden two-year-olds, which ended the afternoon's sport. He declared to win with the fleet Certain, a son of Ultimus, and the youngster performed as per specifications. His margin at the close over John E. Madden's Pravus was two lengths. Rossate II., from the Applegate barn, finished third, a head in front of Cape Clear, stablemate of the victor. The Johnson pair was favored in the speculation on the race, closing at even money. Max Hirsch's New Hampshire was backed from three down to 2 to 1.

High Taxes May Keep Ryerson From Accepting Austrian Offer

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 22.—Ira Ryerson of Goshen, the noted trainer and driver of trotters, who has had a very flattering offer from Austria to drive and train there during the coming season, is delaying his decision owing to the fact that he has been informed that if he goes he will be compelled to pay a tax on his earnings of from 50 to 60 per cent. If that is true he does not propose to go, and he has taken means to learn the facts. Ryerson has spent several years driving and training there, and will return again if everything is favorable. His offer is $10,000 for the season.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 22.—Conservative estimates by men interested in Maryland race track statistics show that a total of approximately $20,000,000 was bet at the Spring meetings at the Bowie, Havre de Grace and Pimlico tracks. This means, of course, that generally the same money passed through the pari-mutuel machines over and over again.

Of the total amount passing through the machines the tracks take a 5 per cent. commission in addition to the "breakage" charge, which approximates 1 per cent. The commission and "breakage" do not form the entire revenue of the tracks, there being receipts from admission charges, sales of programs, &c.

Inquiry today at the offices of the Racing Commission as to whether figures showing the money bet during the Spring racing will be published met with the reply that such figures would not be published until they were included in the commission's annual report.

The State obtains a fee of $6,000 for each day of racing at each track. In addition it receives 15 per cent. of the track's earnings.

While there are four one-mile tracks in the State, only three of them figure in the Spring business, the fourth, Laurel, taking all its racing days in the Autumn.

Of the three tracks which held Spring meets, Havre de Grace, according to the racing observers, did the most business, so far, at least, as the pari-mutuels are concerned. Pimlico is assigned the second place, with the "show" money going to Bowie.

The 5 per cent. commission on $20,000,000 would mean $1,000,000 from this source to the tracks this Spring. Owing to the semi-public status of the tracks their earnings possess more than an idle interest for taxpayers in Maryland. The tracks are down in the budget as producing an annual revenue of $712,000, and part of the sum that the tracks pay the State fluctuates with their annual net earnings.

THREE-YEAR-OLD STARS IN BELMONT

$50,000 Stake to Be Feature of Racing at Local Course on June 10.

A large and well-matched field of three-year-olds will go to the post in the Belmont Stakes, to be featured on Saturday, June 10, at Belmont Park. Included in the eligibles are practically all of the stars of this division, with the exception of Morvich. The son of Runnymede-Hymir and the winner of the Kentucky Derby was not entered for the Belmont.

The Belmont Stakes will bring together for the second time this season Pillory and Hea, which ran one-two in the Preakness. It will also bring out some of the colts that took part in the Kentucky Derby. It is a race of importance not only to the public but to the breeders as well, for no other event marks the stayer more certainly than does the Belmont Stakes. It is an event that is a furlong further than the Derby and a quarter of a mile longer than the Preakness.

In all the years that the race has been one of the outstanding features of the turf there never has been so many entrants whose merits would warrant their owners starting them for the $50,000 prize. There are four awards, with $5,000 to go to the second horse, $2,000 to the third and $1,000 to the fourth, as well as premiums of $2,500 and $1,000 to the nominators of the first and second horses, respectively. There is also a substantial offering in plate by August Belmont, President of the Westchester Racing Association, son of the sportsman in whose honor the race was named Sixty-five years ago.

While not all of them will go to the post, there are twenty or more three-year-old colts and fillies in active preparation for the Belmont at the present time. At least a dozen of these will start, barring accidents. The vicissitudes of racing and training may have already eliminated two of the most formidable eligibles in Lucky Hour by Hourless and My Play by Fair Play, owned by the Lexington Stable. The former, whose quality is unquestioned, seems to have inherited the bad luck of his family to which he belongs, as he suffered a rupture through a kick by a stable companion recently. This injury may prevent his getting to the post, as it will undoubtedly interfere with his training to a considerable extent. My Play spread a foot in the Derby while showing the quality his breeding warrants, and he, too, may not be ready for the Belmont.

Bunting by Pennant and Whiskaway by Whiskbroom II., which will carry the colors of Harry Payne Whitney, are attracting much attention. The former won the Futurity and is a colt of superb individuality. Mr. Whitney expressed a fear last year that Bunting would not stay. His grandsire, Peter Pan, was a great horse when he was the Brighton Handicap from a fine field, and Bunting ought to get some good qualities from his dam, Friillery by Broomstick. Both the Greentree Stables, Pirate Gold, Galanitman and Letterman are training well, while Sam Hildreth has hopes of Kai Sung by The Finn being over his coughing spell in time to take part in the big race. Kai Sung's breeding in class cannot be ignorant, and he has only to be as good on the day of the race as he was on several occasions last year to have a royal chance.

Sir Harry, also a son of The Finn, is another eligible for the Belmont that has given great promise. He is a half-brother to Sir Barton, and is a better colt than he has shown in public. The form of June Grass, by Short Grass, which will carry the colors of Clifford A. Cochran, is well known. Ray Jay and Relay, sons of Assagai, are being prepared for the prize by the Quincy Stable. The French-bred Snob II., by Prestige, is a three-year-old that showed some form for John Sanford last year. He has had a long and steady campaign of training for this race.

Column and Tolo, sons of Colt, owned by Morton L. Schwartz, are also Belmont Stakes eligibles, which have speed in abundance. Their sire stayed well enough to win a Brooklyn Handicap, and there is stout blood in Pyramid and Wormwood.

Preparations are being made to take care of huge throngs at Belmont Park on the day of the race. Many additional comforts have been installed, and visitors will find the course more attractive than ever when the meeting opens on Thursday with the Metropolitan Handicap at a mile as the feature.

DEMPSEY'S MONOCLE ANNOYS LONDON FANS

LONDON, May 22.—Sport writers are beginning to concentrate their batteries on Jack Dempsey over the proposed return fight with Carpentier—first, because they are peeved at the New York sablegrams saying that the world's champion wore a monocle when he reached America from Europe, and, second, because they believe that Carpentier was no sportsman in hitting Ted Lewis after a clinch when Ted had his hands down.

Boxing editors state that the public would pay good money to see Georges knocked out again, and are admiring the Frenchman to fight Lewis again fairly.

While the boxing editors are criticising Dempsey, the turf writers are boosting the chance of Sally Joel's Pondoland to beat Riddle by Prince O'Neil in the Derby. O'Neil, who rides in Paris for Kingsley MacComber of Los Angeles, has always been regarded in England as a French jockey and has been highly respected since winning the Derby in 1916 with Spearmint.

GARDEN VICTOR MAY BATTLE CARPENTIER

Winner of Tonight's Tunney-Greb Bout Likely to Get Chance at Title.

Whether Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, or Harry Greb, Pittsburgh fast-stepping light-heavyweight, will be the opponent of Georges Carpentier in the Frenchman's next American bout, will be determined tonight in Madison Square Garden. Tunney is scheduled to defend his American title against Greb in a fifteen-round encounter. Matchmaker Frank Flournoy and Promoter Tex Rickard are bending their efforts toward inducing Carpentier to accept terms to meet the winner in an open-air bout later in the season.

Up to yesterday Rickard and Flournoy both declined to admit that they had received Carpentier's positive consent to a match against the winner of the Tunney-Greb battle. It is admitted, however, that terms have been submitted by cable to the French boxer, who holds the world's light-heavyweight title. The Garden officials are awaiting the outcome of the approaching scrap before definitely closing with Carpentier. Rickard professes the utmost confidence in his ability to entice Carpentier to this country for the defense of his world's light-heavyweight crown.

The Tunney-Greb bout has attracted more than average attention. The calibre of the boxers who will fight for the title, and the possibility of its determining an opponent for Carpentier, are responsible for this wide interest. Greb has eliminated Tom Gibbons, St. Paul boxer, from the running as a prospective opponent for Carpentier. The Pittsburgher's easy victory over Gibbons recently disposed of the illusion that Gibbons would be a serious contender for the light-heavyweight crown.

Greb's supporters, and they are legion, are confident he will emerge from the Garden ring with the American title and a first mortgage on a Carpentier match. The victory over Gibbons was proof of Greb's ability and forced the meeting with Tunney to determine the American championship and the man best qualified to face Carpentier in a world's title struggle. Greb and his manager, George Engle, share this confidence in a triumph over Tunney. The Pittsburgher's speed and relentless assault, even in the face of severe fire from a rival, are the qualifications upon which Greb's supporters base their hopes.

Greb, however, will be facing a different man than Gibbons in the ring tonight. Tunney is almost as fast as his prospective foe, is clever, and unquestionably hits harder than Greb. The Greenwich Village idol boasts a destructive right hand and a damaging left paw, either for hooking or jabbing. In addition, Tunney will have advantages in height and reach which will increase the obstacle Greb must overcome if he is to be victorious. Tunney has been training seriously for the last fortnight or more in anticipation of the battle. He is eager to demonstrate to boxing followers that he is a worthy titleholder and qualified to clash with Carpentier for the world's championship. A victory over Greb will establish Tunney in this respect.

Three other bouts will precede the championship contest. A fifteen-round semi-final will furnish action between Pat Hanlon, Belgian middleweight champion, and Moe Herschovitch, Canadian titleholder. Battling Leonard, a stablemate of Tunney's, will engage Harry Martin, Providence bantamweight, in a six-round argument. The opening bout of four rounds will bring together Patsy Scanlon of Pittsburgh and Jack Stark of the Bronx, a former amateur boxer.

BURMAN STOPS BUD DEMPSEY WITH EASE

The first outdoor bouts of the season on Manhattan Island drew a disappointingly small crowd to the opening of the Academy Athletic Club at Dyckman Oval last night. Not more than 3,000 fans, at a liberal estimate, saw Joe Burman of Chicago easily outpoint Bud Dempsey, a local boxer, in the principal bout at ten rounds. Burman weighed 121¾ pounds and Dempsey 123. It was a dull and uninteresting bout, with Dempsey seldom willing to show signs of aggressiveness, even in the early rounds. In the fourth round Burman knocked Dempsey down three times, but the latter, by clinching at every opportunity, managed to last the limit.

A left hook to the stomach sent Dempsey down for the first time in Round 4. Dempsey claimed a foul, but Referee Patsy Haley would not allow it and ordered Dempsey to his feet. The latter stayed down for the count of nine. When he arose Burman pounded him

THE GREAT ELIXIR.

Anti-bonus Senator PEPPER gets a mere 200,000-odd majority in the Pennsylvania Republican primaries. Four pro-bono Pennsylvania Republican Representatives are beaten. Two Illinois pro-bono Republican Representatives were beaten some weeks ago. An Oregon anti-bonus Representative was renominated last week. The great Congressional patent medicine seems as likely to kill as cure. Doubts, and even fears, must be surging in the minds of the four-billion-for-votes patriots at Washington. Was what they thought a master stroke a master blunder? Can the people be not such great fools as the gift-bearers imagined?

SOVIET SECOND THOUGHTS.

Since the close of the Genoa conference a certain rueful air seems to be noticeable in Russian officials. They first acted like men who had scored a great success. They had been received as equals by England and France. They had enjoyed a wonderful opportunity for notoriety and for propaganda, and had made use of it to the full. Yet, after a brief period of congratulating themselves, they appear to have begun to look around to discover what concrete gains they had won. And they evidently find them precious few. This must have been the reason why, following immediately upon their defiant flourishes at Genoa, they proceeded to accept with marked docility the conditions laid down for the subsequent meeting of economic experts at The Hague, although the terms were really more offensive to Soviet pride than anything which had been officially put forward at Genoa.

Moreover, every day's news from Moscow puts the Soviet Government more and more in the posture of vowing that it would never consent, but consenting. The list is already long of Soviet decrees taking step after step in the recognition of private property. Land and houses may now be owned by individuals, and even inheritances, up to a certain extent, are hereafter to be legalized. This whole process of retreat from Communist doctrine is innocently explained at Moscow as being "designed to en- "courage the independent capitalistic "reconstruction of Russia."

There thus appears to be direct conflict between what the Soviets said at Genoa and what they are doing in Moscow. Yet this is, after all, only a natural consequence of the hard facts which have now been definitely put before the Soviet Government. If it sought to intimidate the European Powers into granting Russia Government loans, it now knows that it has completely failed. LLOYD GEORGE bluntly told the Russian delegates that no Government would think of lending money directly to the Soviets. Their hope of getting funds from Germany has also vanished. Germany has neither the "cash" the will nor the power to establish large Russian credits. This is now sorrowfully admitted by the Soviet Commissar of Press and Publicity at Moscow. He confesses that Germany is rather seeking a loan than thinking of granting one. He concludes that there is only one country, namely, the United States, which could possibly furnish Russia the capital of which she stands in desperate need. Consequently he declares that, although he may have said "some "hard things about the American "policy," he is perfectly willing to forget all that and forgive Americans for everything, if only they will now come to the rescue of the Soviets, who are at their wits' end.

This is innocent enough, but it is significant as showing that the truth is finally penetrating even the obdurate Soviet mind. The borrower cannot escape trying to satisfy the sole lender. And that lender's terms have been plainly and with finality laid down by Secretary HUGHES.

THE TRIUMPH OF LADY ASTOR.

First and foremost, the triumph of Lady ASTOR in her American visit has been a triumph of woman's wit and personality. In the story of the feminist advance there has never been anything quite like it. Without for a moment relaxing her sense of the dignity and importance of a Parliamentary career, she somehow made one feel always that the House of Commons is quite as human as any other house, as easily amenable to feminine appeal and sensible, womanly management. If she scolded men, she did so with understanding. If she laughed at their pomposities, poked fun at their foibles, she did it without rancor or bitterness. One was reminded of JOHN RUSKIN in that rare mood in which he went to the British Museum to see the stuffed penguins—because he found them so "sympathetically ridiculous." At times she rose to the height of the Comic Spirit as defined by GEORGE MEREDITH, bringing to whatever she touched the tonic of affectionate satire, the cordial of sympathetic laughter. In her presence no one had any doubt as to the amenity of woman in politics.

This surface of charm and of winsomeness must not blind us to the greater thing beneath it. Time was when the political woman, from the nature of her situation, was considerably more political than womanly. Momentum being subject to the laws of inertia, that time is not yet altogether a thing of the past. For Lady ASTOR the vision of the great end has never been obscured by the nearer means. Her work for human welfare preceded her entrance into politics, and today, at the summit of ambition, her chief thought is for the liberation not so much of women as of womanhood—for the health of the child and the vitality of the nation. On that ground the cause of woman is unassailable, nor has it ever been assailed. Closely related with it and equally vivid in Lady ASTOR'S enthusiasm is the cause of constructive peace, of a League of Nations. Her eloquent championship cannot fail to have a profound effect on voters of both sexes. The visit which ends today has enlivened the reporter, electrified the writer of headlines and afforded us all a topic of conversation; but it has also had a deep influence upon the serious and progressive forces of our life, and in so doing has tended powerfully to bring the two nations into mutual understanding and co-operation.

We may be pardoned, perhaps, if we claim the chief credit for this side of the Atlantic. England afforded the arena, but we furnished the smiling and dauntless aerienne. It is a peculiarly American type, as characteristic in its inerrancy of impulse as in its inspirational nimbleness of wit. In our democracy it does not so easily find a public station, yet it is well remembered in more than one lady of the White House.

STATE AND FEDERAL BANK TAXES.

The Davenport Joint Committee on Taxation holds that "national banks "should be taxed according to their "ability upon their net profits, as "certain other kinds of business are "already being taxed in this State." In so far as they are taxed otherwise, they seem justified in resisting taxation that discriminates against them. Yet the committee gives no consideration to the grievance of the banks due to a muddle of tax laws, but warns them against conduct threatening the whole plan of tax improvement in this State. The committee says that the case is of wide interest, since there is danger that twelve millions may have to be refunded as taxes unlawfully collected, and that substitute taxes must be provided by an additional levy of six millions a year. Even that is an incomplete statement of the inconveniences which may result from a case involving fifty-four national banks in this city, and logically affecting all banks and all dealers in "moneyed capital," including individuals.

When the New York State Income Tax law was enacted in 1919, intangible property was exempted from taxation, but the existing 1 per cent. tax on principal and income of bank shares was retained. In 1921 the United States Supreme Court decided that the States could levy taxes on national bank shares, but that such taxes must not be greater than taxes "on other moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens." Thus in New York there is discrimination against national banks under the State laws, and if the discrimination is removed the Federal laws require a like tax on all capital used in competition with the national banks, although not in the banking business. "Moneyed capital" has not been legally defined in New York. Under Federal decisions it would seem to include bonds, notes, money and similar securities in the hands of individuals who are not in the banking business.

The Legislature this year amended the law regarding the assessment of bank shares, but the income from them still pays an additional tax, although other personal property is exempt. The conflict between the State and Federal laws remains, and New York has joined other States in asking Congress for an amendment distinguishing between capital in the hands of banks and of individuals constructively in competition with them. The requirement of equality of taxation for both sorts of moneyed capital was dropped from the New York laws this year. The city claims that there is no discrimination against national bank shares, because moneyed capital is taxed indiscriminately under the State laws, without reference to bank taxation, and the decision on appeal is awaited. Admittedly, banks competing with national banks ought to be taxed equally under State laws. But if the Federal law requires the equal taxation of all "moneyed capital," then the State income-tax returns of millions of individuals are wrong. If the final decision is that the national banks are unlawfully taxed, then there results discrimination against State banks by the exemption of national banks. The situation is similar in twenty States. The matter is worth the attention of Congress.

THE CONSCIENTIOUS TARIFF.

Senator WILLIS of Ohio is unhappy. Conscienceless men, importers and international bankers, "the same "crowd which tried to jam this coun- "try into the League of Nations," are holding back the conscientious tariff. And the Democrats generally are conscienceless about this beneficent measure, as, indeed, are altogether too many Republicans; but of course Mr. WILLIS doesn't mention those erring brethren. The conscienceless Democrats of the Senate have been harping on the consumer. They tried to camouflage their real policy, which is free trade, by waving the flag of the consumer. If we legislate to take care of producers, no one will be benefited more than the consumer, who is a producer himself unless he is a loafer or a tramp.

How about those "millions of "clerks, teachers, professional and "vocational men and women, those "whose earnings have not increased "on a par with the average earnings "of organized labor," with whose pitiable case Senator MCCUMBER was sympathizing a month ago? They hadn't been able to buy our manufactured products on account of the high prices and increased cost of production. But now the way to prosperity for everybody was opened by the magical tariff if the producers and distributers would only be good. The manufacturer must "be satisfied with a most meagre re- "turn upon his investment for a "while, then let the employes in- "crease their efficiency to the high- "est possible degree. Then, if the "retailer will just follow the manu- "facturer," the goose of "old-time prosperity" will again hang high. A prime object of "the most stringent protective system" is to maintain the American standard of wages. How is decreased cost of production to be brought about?

That troublesome person, the consumer, not the importer nor the international banker, is the enemy for Republican wisdom to fear. Will the manufacturer be content with a "meagre" profit? Will the retailer show an equal altruism? What skills a conscientious tariff if its beneficiaries aren't full of conscience?

EGYPTIAN PROSPECTS.

The dispatch from Cairo published in THE TIMES on Sunday indicated the sound reason for reservation of American capitulatory rights. What degree of success the Egyptians may attain in their newly restored independence, or, for that matter, what degree of independence has actually been restored to them, is yet to be seen. If British control remains as firm in the future as it has up to the present, three months after the nominal recognition of Egyptian independence, there can be no argument against the system by which American rights are left in America's own charge. If the discontent of Egyptians with British concessions continues to grow, it may be found advisable by some future British Government to get out of Egypt altogether. In that case the value of our capitulatory rights will be plain to all. They may be abandoned when Egypt proves her capacity to look after the interest of foreigners.

The State Department's cautious policy is justified by the present state of Egypt. The arrangement proposed by the British Government seems to give the Egyptians as much freedom and responsibility as they can use at present, but nothing like so much as they want. Our correspondent describes Egyptian independence as in reality only "a restricted internal re- "sponsibility," with England still responsible for the protection of the country from outside aggression. Moreover, the British program provides for disposition of the Sudan by independent negotiation between the British and Egyptian Governments. The present condominium is based on the fact that the Sudan was conquered and stabilized by British and Egyptian troops, the latter British trained, and all under British command. Britain has furnished the higher officials of the Sudan, Egypt the minor functionaries and the loans needed for the development of the country. The Sudan is a vital necessity to Egypt, but though the Egyptian Army of today is a much better instrument than in the '80s, it is far from certain that Egypt could hold the Sudan without British help. Lord ALLENBY recently made some remarks which indicate his opinion that the status of the Sudan must remain unchanged for the present—probably a practical necessity, but one which will certainly increase Egyptian discontent.

THE DEFLATION OF SPEECHES.

Nothing has been heard lately of the heroic Member of Parliament who used annually to introduce the motion: "Resolved, That the length of "speeches has increased, is increas- "ing and ought to be diminished." His doctrines have not found favor in the House of Commons nor, alas, in our Senate, but elsewhere they appear to be marching on. The Quebec Board of Trade has just ruled that no speaker at its meetings shall go beyond three minutes. Yet if he proves to the Secretary in advance that he has "something important to talk about," he may speak for ten minutes. But who shall decide, if not the man himself, whether he has great thoughts struggling for utterance? Not all have the grace or self-knowledge of Mr. MARSHALL, long Vice President of the United States, and as such compelled to sit on the bank and see the endless stream of Senatorial oratory flow by. To a pressing interviewer in London Mr. MARSHALL said: "If I cannot say anything useful, I can at least keep silent."

This is too much to ask or hope of most public men; but if they only knew how gratefully even an approach to such a counsel of perfection would be received, they would attempt it oftener. Budget speeches are usually very long, few Chancellors of the Exchequer being willing, with DISRAELI, to "leave something for future exercises of this kind." But the present Chancellor, Sir ROBERT HORNE, consulted a welcome brevity in his recent budget speech. Even Mr. ASQUITH, who rose to attack it, had to begin with a compliment. He said that the Chancellor had resisted the temptation to "indulge in a general discourse," and added: "He has shown, at any "rate in the matter of rhetoric, the "inbred and ineradicable frugality of "his country." This Scottish virtue is worthy of wide imitation by too profuse public speakers of all countries in this loquacious age.

FAIR PLAY FOR TEACHERS.

No one who knows anything about the service of Commissioner GRAVES to public education and especially his part in the training of teachers can have the slightest question of his disposition to be fair to them. His statement as to the motive and purpose of the procedure employed in the teacher inquiry but confirms to the public what is already known to a great body of American teachers. It is most unfortunate, therefore, that the means chosen to give him assistance in arriving at fair conclusions as to the morality and loyalty of teachers should be of such a character as to aggravate the difficulty of the task which the Legislature has imposed upon him. Mr. ARCHIBALD STEVENSON, formerly counsel for the Lusk committee, as spokesman of the advisory committee appointed by the Commissioner, likened it to the admissions committee of a club, and the teachers to candidates for club membership. The analogy was unhappy. Clubs do not usually elect candidates unless recommended by the Committee on Admissions. Moreover, clubs do not designate non-members to sit on admissions committees, even in an advisory capacity. Furthermore, the question is not one of admissions, but virtually of dismissals.

It is an onerous and disagreeable task that has come to Dr. GRAVES—one which he has not sought, but one which he is qualified, as he is obligated, to meet. He has a most competent assistant in his deputy, Judge GILDERSLEEVE, and, with the co-operation of superintendents and principals, it should not be necessary to invoke the further ill-advised aid of such an advisory committee.

AMATEURS AT HENLEY.

Some of our college experts in the metaphysics of amateurism ought to be encouraged by the stand for right principle made by the stewards of the Henley regatta. The champion crew of Australia wants to row in it this year, but its members include a locomotive engineer, a fireman, a carpenter, and other persons who are all amateurs under the A. A. U. rules, but are obnoxious to the regulations of Henley. For an amateur, as defined at Henley, is among other things a person who has never "by trade or "employment for wages been a me- "chanic, artisan or laborer, or en- "gaged in menial duty." The rule is defended as a means of discrimination between manual laborers, presumed to be in good physical condition, and "clerks who sit at their desks all day." But how many crews come to Henley fresh from their offices? The English assume credit for taking their athletics less dismally than we, and on the whole they are right; but the life of the English oarsman is fairly laborious, and involves a training in oarsmanship which is certainly better preparation for rowing a race than is swinging a pick.

The Australians seem to think that the discrimination against manual labor is based on other grounds. At any rate, it goes back to the fundamental difference between the amateur and the professional, the fact that the amateur does not need to use his sport as a means of livelihood, because he has other means. Playing a game for money is not a crime in itself, nor are those who play it for money always so much better at it than the leisured gentlemen whose money came from their fathers. But an effort to keep amateur and professional apart is reasonable enough in a society where professionals are usually, if not always, low, rude persons uncongenial to gentle society; and equally reasonable is it to rule that a laborer must be a professional, where all professionals come from the laboring caste.

What meaning those standards have in America we have yet to learn from the ingenious persons who are trying to apply them to the infinitely varied world of American college life. The hiring of athletes for intercollegiate competition is a vicious practice, but it will never be stopped by reasoning from false premises.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Defenders and Accusers of Hospitals.

In the several letters on hospital methods, conditions and management that have been printed by THE TIMES of late there have been manifested two contrasting tendencies. The writers who criticised the hospitals adversely were inclined to argue from the particular to the general, while the defenders of them were so vehement and enthusiastic as to make it fairly obvious that they were describing hospital ideals rather than hospital realities.

The members of neither class have emphasized sufficiently the fact that no two hospitals are alike—that they range from as bad as the law allows to as good as fallible and imperfect mortals can make them with the resources available. The worst are almost infinitely better than the best hospitals were in the days not very remote when admission to one of them was little different from a sentence to death.

It is the memory, the legend, of those bad and ignorant days that accounts for the fear of hospitals that still lingers, not exclusively among the very poor, though it now is fast waning.

Almost all hospitals are conducted under the handicap of not having enough money to do all the things which their managers would like to do and know should be done. From this results not a few of the stories about overwork, bad food and poor facilities for rest and sleep that are told, quite truly, by so many nurses, and those of negligence told by not a few patients.

But lack of money does not explain all of the criticism that hospitals receive. Into the hospital as into so many other places devoted to the service of the public there enters the evil spirit of "institutionalism"—the confusing of ends and means—the never avowed, but subconsciously held, feeling that the patients are for the hospitals, not the hospitals for the patients. The importance of rules and regulations, while undeniable, can be exaggerated, and often is, by superintendents, boards of visitors, doctors and nurses. This is perhaps the very worst of hospital ills and out of it grows the worst of hospital abuses and most of the few cruelties.

Not All Are "Called" to Service.

Another cause of charges against hospitals is the fact that not all persons, either men or women, can be constantly in contact with suffering not their own without becoming callous to it—without viewing it with something of dislike and irritation. Whether this happens the more often to doctors or to nurses is a question to which no definite answer can be given, nobody's opportunities for observation having been large enough to serve as basis of decision.

Of course, the good doctors and the good nurses escape this misfortune, and they are numerous. They retain and increase the impulses toward tenderness and devotion with which they began their work, and they even are able to ignore ingratitude or unreason on the part of patients when they encounter it, as they sometimes do. It is they alone that really are "called" to their professions. The others have missed their way.

Meetings Made Difficult.

At least once before attention has been called—uselessly, as yet—to the fact that the Pennsylvania Railroad's large, fine and expensive station on Seventh Avenue is ill-arranged for the serving of one important end that should be served by every railroad station. Persons going there to meet arriving passengers always have difficulty in doing it, and not infrequently miss them, because of inability to watch at the same time two rather widely separated exits from the train platforms.

This division of the passengers between two stairways was devised, presumably, to prevent congestion. It probably has that effect, but it is at the cost of frequent inconvenience and occasional real hardship.

For various reasons, some merely sentimental, others practical, and all legitimate, the meeting of arrivals at railroad stations should be made easy and certain. To prevent it may cause merely annoyance, but, on the other hand, it may mean serious trouble for strangers to the city, especially when they are women or children unused to city complexities and confusion.

It is permissible, though perhaps not quite kind, to call to the attention of the Pennsylvania officials the complete absence at the Grand Central Terminal of troubles thus caused. By sending over there for advice it is more than likely that they could learn how to solve this small but not trivial problem.

A Going Back to Nature.

A husband and wife over in England and another similarly assorted pair in the United States have undertaken to prove the possibility of going into the wild woods and living there for a while without any help from anything except the tools and powers provided by what they call "nature." They are not even going to wear clothes!

There is no particular harm in these experiments, but they are foolish folk who undertake to demonstrate abilities possessed by the lowest savages. The thing can be done, probably, particularly in a well-chosen wildwood and at a well-chosen season of the year, by anybody fairly versed in wildwood arts and crafts. But what of it?

The possibility of living that way is undenied, and also the futility of doing it, except in rare cases of actual necessity, is undeniable.

And these experimenters are denying "nature" rather than returning to it—the "nature" of human beings, that is, as distinguished from animals. This sort of "simple life" is simply a return to barbarism—a long step backward instead of one ahead, and the ability to make it is nothing to be proud of.

Our Stock of Gold.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of May 14 appears an editorial on "Our Stock of Gold." This editorial is very timely.

To the writer's mind there is no greater obstacle or menace to the prosperity of our country than the enormous stock of gold lying idle in our vaults. We have accumulated a larger stock of gold than was held by all of the great national banks of Europe combined before the war. It can readily be seen, therefore, that we have drained Europe of its gold supply. They no longer have gold upon which to base their currency, and it follows that their currency is greatly depreciated and that they are unable to do business.

If we look at the matter from a purely selfish standpoint alone, it is apparent that we must find some way of getting the surplus gold which we hold back to those countries from whence it came and into the normal channels of trade.

In the last paragraph of your editorial you quote from the Federal Reserve as follows: "No amount of financial machinery in and of itself will accomplish the result," and then you go on and say: "There are banks enough, and there can be no return to prosperity until the world's factories are producing goods so that gold will circulate through bank credits."

I would like to suggest that the gold and the credits must be provided first (speaking of Europe) before the factories can produce goods.

It seems to me that the problem before us is how we can restore our gold to circulation where it is needed. Until we do so we cannot hope to restore normal business relations with Europe.

Appeal From Rosary Hill Home.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is a very sweet fragrance about burning brush (lighted for fun by little boys), and violets have not more gentle charm; but when we scent it at Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N. Y., we do not fall into rhapsodies—we rush for our old brooms. This is because our pine-board house is filled with cancer cases, who are not strong enough to run from the fingers of flame, and we are in the same predicament as were the Colonial folk when they rushed for their old fire-arms reposing against the wall if they suddenly heard the sweet faint cry of Indians. We Servants of Relief are begging for money to build a fireproof country home for a little crowd of impecunious invalids, scared as we are by the beautiful white smoke and lion-like glare of brush fires. It is only by chance that some one sees the first onset, only by chance that the man employed by us are on the place at the moment and only by chance that the danger is heightened by a high wind, that suddenly takes a favorable turn that saves us. So many fires have burned around us this year (which have brought death and destruction elsewhere), coming within a few feet of our wooden walls, that we long to start our fireproof, for which we have begun to beg. The public has the power to do it all, from the first sod turned to the last roof-tile laid on, but we are powerless in our poverty.

"Monopoly on Hides."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES of May 2, under the caption of the "Farm and Tariff," the statement is made that "It was shown again and again by good Republicans in the House that the main result of the tariff on hides would be to strengthen and complete the monopoly of the packers." There is no such thing as a monopoly of hides by the packers—or by any one else for that matter. No single packer handles enough hides to make him dominant in the market, and the five largest packers together handle less than a third of the hide supply. There are those who will argue that the five great packers together could dominate the market with their third of the supply, but this theory hinges on combination among the five. There is no such combination. The courts have passed upon the matter of the so-called packing house monopoly and have failed to find that any such thing exists.

It is because we recognize the tremendous influence of THE NEW YORK TIMES that we have written you. We would ignore such a statement in a great many publications, but we feel that THE TIMES honestly seeks to present the truth. ARMOUR & CO.

Swiss Hotel Rates.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have noted in reading the New York papers that the Swiss Hotel Association is advertising a reduction of 10 per cent. in its hotel rates. That is quite true, but I wish to say for the benefit of those going to Switzerland that nothing is ever heard of this reduction unless one is armed with this information and claims it. The best possible manner is to obtain the official guide of the Swiss Hotel Keepers' Society, which can be had by writing to the society, the head office being at Basle, Switzerland. The booklet is printed in English and French. The hotel keepers are obliged to stand by the prices and regulations quoted in this book for 1922. The book is also very helpful in other ways. Don't fail to secure one, is the advice of an American living in Switzerland.

THE SPARK.

I am the singing soul of the Night,
Riding the wind like a stallion bold;
We course through Space till the Dawn's pale light,
We burn with a beauty undreamed, untold!

I am the child of that wastrel, Chance,
Luring Life with her laughing eyes;
Sprung from their passion I flutter and dance
Betwixt the Earth and the star-strewn skies.

Thou art Wisdom, discreet and tame,
I am Folly, the Wind's mad way.
But ah, the splendor of my wild flame,
The haunting rapture of each new day!

Thou art Friendship, as calm as Sleep,
I am Love, leaping far and high;
Behold the lightnings that quiver and leap
From thy half-tamed Earth to my tameless sky!

I am the moment when fires burnt low,
And Life is expectant, still like Death!

The naked Truth men have died to see;
The perfect chord that no man may hear,
The age-old myth of Infinity!

I am the spark in the gray small soul
That glows to flame when he laughs at Fate!
The dice he throws and the kiss he blows

HOOVER FOR FREE INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Self-government in American industry in preference to bureaucratic government control was urged today by Secretary Hoover, speaking to representatives of lumber manufacturers' associations from various parts of the country, meeting at the Commerce Department to discuss means of standardising grading of lumber and other economy problems.

Mr. Hoover declared he was opposed to the plan advanced from time to time in the lumber industry for the establishment of a system of government inspection, adding:

"I resent this extension of the arm of Government in every direction."

Such a system, he argued, should be developed within the trade not only because it would extend the sense of self-government within the industry, but would help maintain the sense of self-government in the American people. America, he declared, has developed to the point where self-government, without Government control, is possible to a great degree.

Government control in industry, he continued, meant the establishment of more beaureaucracy with its known tendency to take over more and more functions until its control extends far beyond anticipation. Inefficiency of beaureaucracy was apparent in the character of its work, Mr. Hoover declared, adding, however, that he was constantly amazed at the efficiency of Government activity when the salaries paid are taken into consideration.

Measure Fixing New Basis for Army and Navy Goes to Conference.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Senate passed today, after brief debate, the House bill fixing a new basis of pay for officers and enlisted personnel of the army, navy, marine corps, coast guard, coast and geodetic survey and the public health service. Two amendments were added and the measure now goes to conference.

Chairman Wadsworth of the special committee in charge of the bill declared it was written on a new plan, which was the first effort to put the pay of the services on a scientific basis. Mr. Wadsworth said that the measure would save the Government nearly $16,000,000 in 1923, as compared to the present rates of pay.

The old schedules of allowances for quarters, heat and light are done away with and a single allowance, covering all and adjustable to meet changing living costs, was substituted so that, the Senator said, the personnel of the services "can live as Americans ought to live, modestly yet with self-respect and free from worry about getting into debt."

Senator Wadsworth stated that, while the pay of some men would be cut, others will receive increases and the whole effect on the whole, he said, is believed that on the whole the result will be one that will encourage men to make the services a career with a knowledge that the future holds prospects worth while for them."

FRENCH EXPLAIN ESTIMATES

Embassy Says Army and Navy Figures Are Misleading.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Stating its belief that publication of the budget estimates recently submitted to the French Chamber of Deputies had caused an incorrect impression as to the military and naval programs of France for the next fiscal year the French Embassy today presented an explanation.

The Embassy said that while it was true that the estimates for the army and navy were larger for the next year than the appropriations for the current year, the additions were not real ones. The explanation in the case of the army estimates, the Embassy said, was to be found in that army estimates for the current year took no complete account of the expenses of the army of occupation in the Levant, though this was a proper charge. Only three months' expenses were charged, so that it was necessary to add 200,000,000 francs in this year's budget to meet the expenses for the remainder of that year.

The budget for the next year just presented, the Embassy said, included full estimates for the expenses of this large army of occupation, so that there should be allowed a reduction in the army estimates as presented of 65,000,000 francs.

As for the navy, it was explained that last year no provision was made for construction. In the estimates for 1923, it was decided to undertake the execution of the navy building program previously authorized, so the budget provided for the initiation of the first part of the program, involving an expenditure of 354,000,000 francs.

FOR FARMER IMMIGRANTS.

Steenerson Moves in House to Remove Restrictions on Them.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—An amendment to the Immigration law which would exempt farmer immigrants from the 3 per cent. restriction was proposed today by Representative Steenerson, Republican, of Minnesota.

Under the Steenerson plan aliens experienced in agriculture upon filing on embarkation a sworn statement of their intention to settle upon public lands and farm it, or to cultivate other property, would be admitted without regard to percentage restrictions. Such alien, however, would be required to deposit $200 for himself and each adult member of his family and $50 for each minor child, this money to be returned with interest by the Government upon satisfactory proof that his declaration had been complied with.

PASSES PHILIPPINE CREDITS.

Senate Approves Bill Allowing Increase to $72,000,000.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Philippine credit bill, passed recently by the House, authorizing an increase from $30,000,000 to about $72,000,000 in bonds the insular Government may issue, was passed today by the Senate without amendment and now goes to President Harding. The bill also authorizes an increase in bonded indebtedness of Manila from $6,500,000 to $12,000,000.

Governor General Wood urged the legislation to develop irrigation projects, to repay Government loans and to provide a gold reserve and sinking fund.

CLAIMS LAND FOR AMERICA.

L. A. Thurston Said to Have Discovered Pacific Islands.

HONOLULU, May 22.—Word of the discovery of islands in the South Pacific hitherto unknown and now claimed in the name of the United States was received here today. The islands were reported to have been claimed by Lorrin A. Thurston, a Honolulu publisher, who was cruising in the power boat Palmyra.

He said he found the islands on May 10 in the vicinity of Kingman's Reef. Their location was described at latitude 6.23 north, longitude 162.18 west. The publisher told of an excellent harbor, which in his opinion provided a natural landing suitable for a fuel station.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Officials of the Hydrographic Office were without official advices today concerning the reported discovery of hitherto unknown islands in the South Pacific. They were inclined to believe that the islands reported as discovered might be Washington, Fanning, Christmas or Palmyra Island, all of which are in practically the same location as given in the Honolulu dispatch.

GIVES 126 ORIENTAL RUGS TO MUSEUM

DONOR MADE A BENEFACTOR

Rugs Date From 15th to 18th Century and Were Gathered in 250,000 Miles of Travel.

A munificent gift of 126 Oriental rugs of great rarity and beauty, presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by the famous rug collector, James P. Ballard, of St. Louis, was formally accepted by the Museum at a meeting of the Board of Trustees yesterday afternoon, and Mr. Ballard was made a Benefactor of the Museum. Sixty-nine rugs, the greater number of them included in this gift, were exhibited at the Museum the last three months of 1921 and drew crowds of visitors. With this gift the Museum now has, according to Mr. Ballard, who has an international reputation both for his collection and his knowledge of the subject, the most comprehensive collection in existence.

Mr. Ballard, who has been his own collector, said yesterday that the rugs of his gift represented 250,000 miles of travel. The exact commercial value is said to be $440,950, but its actual value is greater, as it could not now be duplicated. The rugs date from the fifteenth to the eighteenth centuries, the greatest number being of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. All the great centres of rug weaving are represented, and the collection is particularly strong in Turkish carpets. The rugs in the gift, as they are represented in the principal groups, are as follows: Persian, 11; Spanish, 3; Damascus, 7; Asia Minor, 2; Kuba and Armenian Dragon carpets and rugs, 5; Oushak, 9, Ghiordes, 17; Bergama, 7; Koula, 3; Ladik, 5; Melez, 3; Mudjur, 1; Caucasian, 7; Kazak, 4; Cashmere, 3; Turkoman, 12; Asia Minor Khilims, 3; Chinese rugs and mats, 11; Anatolian mats, 6; Saddle Covers, 2.

A group of what Mr. Ballard distinguishes as Damascus rugs, made for court use, he says are the most valuable of that particular type in existence. An Anatolian rug has inscriptions in three languages, Cufic, Arabic and Turkish, with a special "Verse to the Throne." In gathering his rugs he has not only selected the variety of weave, but as a student and lover of beauty, he has sought the finest examples in color and design. It was the great Beauty in color and design of the Oriental with the history, religion, folklore and tradition woven into it which interested him in them in the first place, he said, in his first rug in New York City, he said, and since then he has traveled the world over searching for rugs, finding some in the bazaars in Constantinople, and others came from large European collections.

"I began to collect seventeen years ago," said Mr. Ballard yesterday, "and I think that was about the right time. It is impossible to find many of the old rugs now. They have a beauty of color that we shall have never again and the secret of making some of the dyes is lost."

Asked yesterday why he had selected the Metropolitan Museum as the recipient of his splendid gift, Mr. Ballard said:

"It is because I think it belongs here. Here in New York 5,000 people will see the rugs to one in other cities. I want people to see and understand the great beauty to be found in rugs. Of course, I shall not neglect my home city."

Mr. Ballard is in the drug and chemical business in St. Louis, and is also a banker. He is Ohio born but has lived in St. Louis for the last forty years. His own collection, of which this gift to the Metropolitan is a choice selection, is kept in a brick, stone and steel fireproof building separated from his house. It contains one large room lighted around the sides, and his rugs are not hung but are laid out upon the floor in their proper place when they are exhibited. Others known to have fine rugs are Judge Elbert H. Gary, who has Polish rugs with gold and silver threads; Ex-Senator William A. Clark, who has beautiful Ispahan rugs, and Charles F. Williams, of Norristown, Penn., who has a very fine collection of rugs, some of the most beautiful being on loan at the present time at the Metropolitan Museum.

A Benefactor of the Museum is the highest type of membership it can bestow and is only received by those who bestow upon it the amount of $50,000 in money or gifts.

At the close of the Ballard exhibition of rugs at the Museum last December the collection was sent to the Minneapolis Institute of Arts, and later to Chicago and San Francisco. They are still on exhibition and it will be some months before they will reach their new permanent home. When all the rugs of the gift have been assembled there will be a special exhibition to show the collection as a whole.

FOR BETTER POSTAL WORK.

Dr. Work Tells St. Louis Employes Value of Courtesy.

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—To labor and to serve are two of the greatest legacies bestowed by a wise providence, Postmaster General Work declared tonight in an address before the employes of the Post Office here, adding, "I am glad to belong to an organization of 326,000 men and women whose daily task gives them a chance to combine these two blessings in an intimate way for the benefit of mankind." The postal service, he declared, "is more nearly a personal service than any other performed by the Government."

Dr. Work impressed upon the employes the value of courtesy and application to their duties, explaining that the whole service "may suffer for the lapse of a single individual."

He told of his "open door" policy in Washington where visitors, he said, were received at all hours, and described himself as a "sort of barometer" to sense the feeling existing throughout the service.

One effect of this contact with visitors, Dr. Work said, was the disclosure of "

POPE BY RADIO HAILS COLUMBUS KNIGHTS

TTERS SITE FOR BUILDING

What was believed to be the first use of the radio by the Vatican in transmitting an official communication to America was a message received from Pope Pius XI. through Mgr. F. Borgongini Duca, Papal Pro-Secretary of State for Ecclesiastical Affairs, to James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus. The radio message contains the Pontifical approbation of Pope Pius for the Knights of Columbus $1,000,000 relief and welfare campaign in Italy, now being under the auspices of the Order, and the donation of Pontifical Rome to the Knights for their work. It reads:

James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus and Knight Commander of the Order of St. Gregory the Great.

Following the audience of your Commander, Edward L. Hearn, with the Holy Father, the Supreme Pontiff directed me to notify you of his sovereign interest in the noble sentiments of devotion expressed in the name of the Most Reverend Order of the Knights of Columbus, and especially for what the Knights intend to accomplish according to the desires of his Holiness for the good of the youth of Rome and Italy. More particularly the Holy Father is pleased at the proposal of your Commander to found in the neighborhood of St. Peter's and, indeed, on pontifical territory a work destined for the good of the children of the people whose inhabitants, generally populated and diseased as they are, to his person should receive the best Christian education and advantages. To that end I am directed by His Holiness to send you the topographical map of the ground, notifying you that he gives you full liberty to proceed to the Secretariat of State in order that, for the installation of the project which the Knights of Columbus have so generously planned to establish.

His Holiness invokes from the Lord the abundance of Heavenly favors on the work which the Knights of Columbus are accomplishing for the increment of religion and public morality, and, as a token of his paternal and special benevolence, imparts with all his heart the apostolic blessing to you as well as to the Supreme Council, the supreme officers and directors and to each individual member of the Knights of Columbus and their families.

Elizabeth (N. J.) Minister Draws Stinging Reply to Accusations.

The Knights of Columbus, in its national magazine for June, challenges the statement of the Rev. Robert W. Mark, of Elizabeth, N. J., that the order had established a campaign to send money to Ireland" to break up Protestant meetings in Belfast. It also takes issue with comments from other ministers regarding the Knights with the Ku Klux Klan.

Anybody who asserts that the Knights of Columbus have at any time contributed funds or energy to the promotion of attacks on any religious belief is not only a liar, but a malicious liar. The K. of C. has aided relief work in Ireland. * * * To compare the Ku Klux Klan, a nouveau riche organization devoid of patriotic background or any tradition of public service, with the Knights of Columbus is ludicrous."

FLOWER MART TO OPEN.

Junior League Members to Raise Funds Today for Old St. Paul's.

The Flower Mart to raise funds for St. Paul's Episcopal Church at Broadway and Fulton Street opens at 11 o'clock this morning and will continue until 6 o'clock this evening. Members of the Junior League will sell the plants and flowers and other articles such as garden implements, tools—everything with which to make a garden. Tea will also serve tea under the direction of Miss Lispenard Seabury.

This is the first time in the 156 years of the church's history that it has been necessary to ask assistance for any purpose. The money will go to maintain such clubs for the young men and women of the financial district. Until recently nine clubs were located in St. Paul's Parish House, which was destroyed by fire.

Miss John R. Fields is in charge of the mart, which is to be patterned after that held at St. Martin's in the Fields church in London. Among those assisting are Mrs. William F. Manning, Mrs. Alexander Masterton, Mrs. Joseph P. Morgan, Mrs. Jonett P. Singleton, Miss Helen Watson, Mrs. Henry C. Swords, Miss Gertrude M. Geer, Mrs. Frederick Allexander and a number of other prominent society women.

PRINCETON DAY AIDS WILSON FUND DRIVE

COLLEGE PROFESSORS GIVE

It was Princeton Day yesterday for the Woodrow Wilson Foundation. As a tribute to the man who was President of the university, about fifty graduates subscribed toward the fund of $1,000,000 to be used for the establishment of a series of annual prizes bearing his name, Cleveland H. Dodge, a classmate of Woodrow Wilson at Princeton, is Chairman of the committee.

Among the Princeton contributors was Henry Breckinridge of the class of 1907, who was Assistant Secretary of War during the early part of President Wilson's Administration and later a Lieutenant Colonel of infantry attached to the General Staff of the American Expeditionary Forces. Ernest Poole, '02, the author, also became a founder. Van Santvoord Merle-Smith, '11, sent a check for $100.

Professor William P. Pinney, '83, of Lincoln University sent a contribution for himself and for William P. Finney 3d, "Princeton, 1943." Other college professors who contributed were Professor Henry A. Todd, '76, now of the department of romance languages of Columbia, and Professor J. Ritchie Smith, '72, a member of the faculty of the Princeton Theological Seminary.

Fulton McMahon, '84, in making his contribution, wrote that he was glad to "find our fellows have discriminating intelligence as well as ardent emotions." John G. Buchanan, '00, a lawyer in Pittsburgh, said that he believed Mr. Wilson's introduction of the preceptorial system at Princeton had been a great service to the cause of American education.

The members of the Princeton Graduates' Committee, in addition to Mr. Dodge, are Henry B. Fine, '80; George B. Covington, '90; Roland S. Morris, '96; J. Lionberger Davis, '00; William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, '00; George A. Brakeley, '07; S. S. Tallaferro, '08; Morton Fry, '09, and E. K. Rhoads, '14.

SEEGER BELL PRESENTED.

LANDRICOURT - SOUS - COUCY, France, May 22 (Associated Press).—Impressive ceremonies marked the dedication here yesterday of the new church bell given to this war-torn village in honor of the American soldier-poet, Alan Seeger, by the Poetry Society of America through the American Committee for Devastated France.

The bell is one of thirty given to as many villages by the American committee to replace the bells taken by the Germans, all in memory of soldiers who fell near the villages so honored.

Yesterday's ceremonies were attended by a large group of Americans, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seeger, father and mother of the dead poet, and Mrs. Arthur E. Hamm of the American committee, widow of Captain Hamm, in whose honor the first bell given through the committee was dedicated a year ago.

Yakima Men Call Reclamation Measure the Price of Support.

YAKIMA, Wash., May 22.—Eleven Republican editors of Yakima Valley newspapers at a conference here today decided to telegraph to President Harding and the Washington Congressional delegation that unless the Smith-McNary bill is passed they "will no longer consider themselves, either by reason of past affiliations or the party's future promises, to be bound to continue support of the National Republican Party."

The message declares that the Republican Party pledged itself to "a speeding up and enlarged program of reclamation" and that the Smith-McNary bill was "framed as a fulfillment of that pledge."

CANOE UPSETS, TWO DROWN.

Wife and Baby Lost, Husband Is Saved Just in Time.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 22.—Mrs. John McFarland, and John Jr., her eleven-months-old son, were drowned in Lake Quinsigamond late today and John McFarland was saved when their canoe tipped over. The family had come to the lake to fix their cottage for Summer occupancy and were sailing before supper. They were at the deepest point of the lake when the canoe capsized. McFarland clung to his wife for fifteen minutes. Their plight was not noticed until he had become exhausted and she had fought clear of his grasp. He was barely able to keep himself above water when he was rescued.

SAYS ZICHY HAS NO MONEY.

Count Edward George Zichy, the Hungarian nobleman who recently married Miss Charlotte Gardiner Demarest on the eve of her expected marriage to George Burton, is practically without funds, it was said yesterday during proceedings before Municipal Court Justice Harrison C. Glore in Brooklyn for the vacation of a judgment, for $1,066 obtained against him by Samuel J. Goldberg, a taxicab owner, of 297 Van Sicklen Avenue. According to Mark S. Feiler, his attorney, Count Zichy's income from his Hungarian estates is now only about $25 a week in American money.

JOHN FIELD HOLMES DIES.

John Field Holmes, for the last twelve years a financial writer and stock market analyst on the staff of The Wall Street Journal, died yesterday at his home, 119 Cambridge Place, Brooklyn, of pneumonia following an attack of influenza. Blood transfusion was vainly resorted to in an effort to save his life. He is survived by his wife, Mae Dewey Holmes, and two daughters.

Born in Brooklyn thirty-four years ago, Mr. Holmes became a reporter on The Brooklyn Daily Eagle when nineteen years old, later working for The Standard Union before he joined The Wall Street Journal. He was regarded in Wall Street as an exceptionally shrewd judge of market conditions, was a highly successful trader himself and had amassed a fortune by his operations in the last few years.

The Rev. Dr. Martin J. Hogan.

The Rev. Dr. Martin J. Hogan, assistant at the Church of St. Edward, in Brooklyn, and widely known as an educator on theological subjects, died on Sunday in the rectory of the church. Dr. Hogan was born in Stockport, England, took his theological course in London and was ordained in St. James's Cathedral in that city in 1891. His first assignment was to the Church of St. Mary Star of the Sea in Brooklyn, and thereafter he served at the Church of St. Mary, in Roslyn, L. I., Church of Our Lady of Guadaloupe and the Church of St. Louis, in Brooklyn. Dr. Hogan received the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology at Freiburg University, Germany.

TELEPHONED SOME, HE SAYS

Witness Asserts There Were About Forty Members in Manhattan Group.

Details of the alleged arrangement for the "fixing" of steamfitting bids by means of John T. Hettrick's reputed "code of practice" were given in the Supreme Court yesterday at the trial of Hettrick and four others for conspiracy before Justice Claude Alverson and a jury.

Wallace M. Hyman, a master steamfitter and member of the Manhattan group of "code" steamfitters, testified, on examination by Special Deputy Attorney General Timothy N. Pfeiffer, that he had been invited in 1919 to go to Hettrick's office for an explanation of the "code" plan. There was a shortage of journeymen steamfitters at the time, he said, because of the construction in the city of many large hotels and office buildings.

Hettrick, according to Hyman, explained to him the handling of bids, saying: "No one wants to take business at a loss, which is possible with a great many figuring on a job." Hyman, at Mr. Pfeiffer's request, read from a list names of master steamfitters of Manhattan. There were about forty steamfitters on the list, whom, Hyman said, he had recognized at meetings of the "code" group in Hettrick's office during the Fall of 1920 and the Spring of 1920.

Hyman said that Hettrick had instructed him to file his bids at the "code" office. When it was a rush job, he testified, he would telephone the amount of the bid and would get an authorization by telephone to take the job.

"What was the purpose of telephoning the estimate to Hettrick's office?" the Deputy Attorney General asked.

"To see that the bids were fair and profitable," Hyman replied.

Richard A. Wolff, a master steamfitter, testified that he had joined the "code of practice" at Hettrick's office. He said that on one occasion he had raised a bid almost $1,000 at the suggestion of Harry A. York, a clerk in Hettrick's office. He did not get the job, however.

The prosecution had examined twenty-seven witnesses when an adjournment was taken yesterday. Twelve more would be called, Mr. Pfeiffer said, and he expected that the prosecution would rest late today or tomorrow.

PRESBYTERIANS CUT 13 BOARDS TO 4

"SHORTER BIBLE" OPPOSED

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 23.—After a very stormy debate, during which a dozen commissioners often were on their feet shouting at a time, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church adopted this evening the report of the special committee calling for an entire reorganization of the machinery of the denomination.

Never in its history have so many drastic changes been decided upon at one time. The Assembly merged its thirteen boards and agencies into four new boards. There was a rising vote, and, although there were many opponents until the end, the report went through with a big majority. The report of the committee, which has been at work for two years, was presented by the Rev. Dr. John Timothy Stone, pastor of Fourth Church, Chicago.

The new boards created are: The Board of Foreign Missions, the National Board of Missions, the Board of Christian Education, and the Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustentation.

The boards and agencies merging are: the Board of Foreign Missions, the Women's Board of Home Missions, the Women's Board of Foreign Missions, the Board of Home Missions, the Board of Publication and Sabbath School Work, the General Board of Education, the Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustentation, the Board of the Church Erection Fund, the Board of Missions for Freedmen, the Board of Temperance and Moral Welfare, the Permanent Committee on Men's Work and the Permanent Committee on Sabbath Observance.

The assembly adopted a report considered a vindication of the Board of Foreign Missions, which has been accused in some quarters of sending out foreign missionaries who did not believe in the evangelical faith.

"It is an open secret that for some time an insidious propaganda has been carried on in this country to discredit the work of the Board of Foreign Missions," declared the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Good of Schenectady, N. Y. "Therefore I feel it incumbent upon me to say that there is no reason for such. The members of the Board of Foreign Missions are superman. The charge that they are dictatorial and arbitrary is without foundation. The Board of Foreign Missions is unsurpassed for its efficiency."

Opposes "the Shorter Bible."

The Assembly adopted a deliverance in reference to "the shorter Bible" which has been published at the request of several Presbyteries.

"The Assembly bears earnest testimony to the necessity of the word of God as an entirety," said the deliverance, "believing that its parts are best understood only in their relation to the whole, and that nothing is the Bible, nor is wisely or properly called by that name, except the whole Bible."

The Assembly declined to act on an overture from one of the Presbyteries asking that the word "catholic" in the Apostles' Creed be changed to "Christian," on the ground that no one branch of the Church has a monopoly on the word "catholic."

The sum of $30,000 was voted for next year for support of the Federal Council of Churches, and $1,000 for the World's Conference on Faith and Order to be held in Washington in 1923.

The Assembly affirmed its sympathy with the proposal of the Presbytery of Washington to secure for the Presbyterian denomination "a representation in the capital city which shall worthily express the dignity and power of the denomination," and the conviction that the erection and maintenance of Presbyterian institutions, in the City of Washington were matters in which the whole Church was concerned and "should have a part."

Favors Union With Southern Body.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 22 (Associated Press).—Organic union, instead of further efforts to bring closer relations between Northern and Southern Presbyterians, through new types of federation, is desired by the Northern branch of the Church, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States informed the Southern Presbyterian Assembly in a resolution adopted today.

The text of the resolution follows:

"The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. acknowledges the communication from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, regarding the adoption of the constitution for a united assembly of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches to be operative and effective when approved by the Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. and at least one other Church in the country holding the Presbyterian and Reformed faith.

"We reaffirm our willingness to take any steps in the direction of the actual union of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches. In our judgment, however, the proposed constitution secures no closer union than is already made possible by the constitution of the General Council of Reformed Churches already adopted by the majority of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches and now in operation.

"We therefore believe that for the present we should endeavor to promote that co-operation already made possible through the Council of Reformed Churches and its amended articles of agreement until such time as the Presbyterian Church of the United States is willing to proceed further and adopt measures which will secure organic union."

An overwhelming vote was registered by the commissioners against the Southern proposal.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 22.—The Southern Presbyterian General Assembly adopted today a resolution of comity between its church and the Associated Reformed Presbyterian Church. The recommendation of the joint Committees on Union of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., and the Presbyterian Churches in the United States was accepted.

The assembly took up the report of the Stewardship Committee dealing with its own work and that of the organization, which conducts the "every member canvass for benevolent causes."

The Stewardship Committee recommended that the $5,000,000 equipment fund, authorized last year for foreign and home missions and other church institutions, remain unchanged, except that the time limit for raising the sum be rescinded. It recommended that $500,000 be released for the pressing needs of the Church, and the "every member" goal canvass be placed at $4,750,000.

It was further recommended that the action of the last assembly in permitting special financial campaigns be rescinded, as well as a proposal to extend the work of the laymen's missionary movement.

CONDEMN MOB RULE.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 22 (Associated Press).—The Southern Baptist Convention adjourned today after accepting the report of its Social Service Commission denouncing mob rule, demanding that moving pictures be "cleaned up or destroyed," and making many other recommendations.

The commission expressed hope that Will H. Hays, as head of the picture producers' organization, would "exercise what is supposed to be his great power for a thorough clean-up in the whole picture business." Withdrawal of "Fatty" Arbuckle pictures was approved, and the commission declared "much more is needed."

"We hope Mr. Hays and the producers will keep up the work," continued the report. "Regardless of what they do, we must demand the enactment of laws for strict censorship in each State. The morals of our young people must not continue to be corrupted by the public exhibition of the eternal triangle and other displays of indecency and lust."

The commission reported "some improvements" in what it termed the "dance evil," but declared in this connection that "we must not slacken our efforts."

Immediate removal of prohibition agents and officials who fail to enforce the law was asked in the report, as well as passage by Congress of a pending bill to amend the Constitution so as to make illegal appropriation of public funds for sectarian institutions. President Harding and Secretary Hughes were commended in connection with the armament conference.

In discussing law enforcement, the commission said:

"It cannot help, it can only hurt, for individuals to take the enforcement of law and the administration of justice into their own hands. To do so would be a double crime—a crime against the individual sought to be punished and a crime against society and government as a whole.

"Under the principles of the American Government every man charged with crime is guaranteed a fair trial in open court by a jury of his peers, with the right of calling witnesses to his defense and having all the facts duly and judicially considered. Any other procedure is mob rule, and if adopted generally will ultimately undermine and overthrow everything we hold dear. Public meetings may be called, in many instances ought to be called, and every citizen should stand out openly for fundamental American principles.

"Your commission feels that we cannot too strongly urge upon our pastors and churches the importance of not becoming allied with or giving approval and support to any movement or organization that violates or tends to violate these sacred and fundamental principles."

Announcement was made that three members of the Executive Committee of the Baptist World Alliance will sail for London July 12 to attend a session of the Executive Commission to prepare the program for the meeting of the Alliance at Stockholm in July, 1923. These members are former Governor E. W. Stephens of Missouri, Dr. W. W. Landrum of Russellville, Ky., and Dr. E. H. Pitt of Richmond, Va.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, May 20, on shipments sold out, ranged from 11.50 cents to 15.50 cents per pound, and averaged 13.01 cents per pound.—Adv.

A Woman Acting Mayor Of Atlantic City; Second Time

ATLANTIC CITY, May 22.—Atlantic City was boosed today by a woman for the second time in its history. Miss Bessie M. Townsend, City Controller, became Acting Mayor when Mayor Edward L. Bader and the other Commissioners left on a trip to New York over the new intercity motor bus lines.

Their departure left Miss Townsend next in line, so she was the executive for the day. Miss Townsend enjoyed the same distinction under another administration.

ASSAILS STANDARDS AT FARM INSTITUTE

BARES BILLIARD TABLE BILL

FARMINGDALE, L. I., May 22.—Edward G. Zimmer, Deputy State Controller, recalled Dr. Alan Roberts, dean of the faculty of the State Institute of Applied Agriculture, as a witness when the investigation into the conduct and management of the institute, ordered by Governor Miller, was resumed here today. Dr. Roberts testified that a number of persons, most of them members of the faculty, received part of their salaries out of the contingent fund, and that he knew money was being taken from that fund to pay for repairing a billiard table in the home of Director A. A. Johnson and for repairing a dormitory. Dr. Roberts said he was unable to throw any light on checks alleged to be missing.

Dr. Roberts declared that four students had been sent to the institute "from the Russian Soviet Bureau" who were now taking special courses. He said that in 1920 students were graduated who had not met the faculty requirements. He said members of the faculty, including himself, had objected to this, but that Director Johnson wanted the men graduated.

Mr. Zimmer at that point read into the record a list of people employed at the institute and asked the witness to answer "yes or no" whether they were employed as instructors. In two instances, Dr. Roberts answered "no." The first name was of W. Allen, listed as instructor, but who Dr. Roberts said really is a janitor. The other name was that of Miss Annie Wright, listed as an instructor, but who is a librarian he said.

Dr. Roberts said that in April, 1921, an elementary school was established by the trustees because Director Johnson did not want to send his son to the Melville School, about two miles from here. Dr. Roberts said the teacher in charge of the nine pupils in the elementary school was paid out of the contingent fund.

The witness was then examined by counsel for Director Johnson. Dr. Roberts became confused and Johnson's counsel referred to the printed record of testimony taken before a legislative committee in February, 1920, when Dr. Roberts appeared as a witness.

At that time, Dr. Roberts had said he had no criticism to make of the institute or the discipline, which, he said, were as good as any he had found at other institutes. The witness said he did not recall his testimony, but pointed out that at that time he was trying to help the directors.

"You know now, do you not, that the Board of Trustees is looking for your successor?" asked counsel for Director Johnson. "Yes" replied Dr. Roberts, "but I do not think that prejudices my testimony."

It then developed that the "Russian Soviet Bureau" referred to by Roberts was in reality the Russian Bureau of Applied Botany and the Russian Famine Relief Committee. Dr. Roberts declared he did not intend to imply that Director Johnson had any connection in any way with the Russian Soviet Government.

FAILS TO AID BLIZZARD.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., May 22 (Associated Press).—Brigadier General H. H. Bandholtz, heralded as chief alibi witness by the defense in the trial of William Blizzard for treason, failed today to recollect some of the things the attorneys are said to have hoped he would substantiate. The defense, however, expressed satisfaction over other evidence brought into the record.

Announcing that they considered Blizzard's presence with the armed men in Logan County had become an important factor in the case, his attorneys said they would refute testimony that their client was leading some of the marchers Aug. 27, by showing he was with General Bandholtz that day, and that he went to Logan County "after after the General had called upon mine union officials to aid in stopping the fighting when the Federal troops went into restore order.

General Bandholtz testified that Blizzard went with him to Racine on Aug. 27, but he did not recall seeing him after they talked with some of the armed men there. He could not recall conversations with the Vice President of District 17, United Mine Workers, on Sept. 3, as a result of which the defense contends Blizzard was sent to Blair and other Logan County towns, not to assist the miners in their attacks on State and county forces but to get them to go home.

At Racine, the General said, they saw about 300 armed men and talked with some of them. They did not seem to have any organization. When the party left Blizzard was not in the automobile with him, but he gave orders for a second car to take in the union officials. He did not recollect seeing Blizzard get into the car, but it followed his own on the return. He did not recollect seeing Blizzard again.

Ed Reynolds, in testifying for the State, said he and Blizzard led some of the marchers from Madison to Jeffrey on Aug. 27, while several defense witnesses told of seeing Blizzard in Charleston after General Bandholtz returned from his inspection trip to Racine.

COLLEGES DRINKING LESS.

Unitarians Told Good Results Have Followed Prohibition.

BOSTON, May 22.—Unitarian anniversary week was in full swing tonight after a day devoted to meetings of several organizations affiliated with the Unitarian Church. Prominent among these were the Unitarian Temperance Society and the Unitarian Laymen's League.

At the temperance Society's meeting a report presented by President Franklin C. Southworth of the Meadville Theological School on a canvass made of several hundred colleges said that prohibition had brought about a material diminution of drinking among college students and that drinking had practically disappeared in the majority of the colleges canvassed, but that the drink problem would continue in some of the metropolitan colleges "until the law is more successfully enforced in the cities themselves."

Twenty delegates from chapters of the laymen's league in various parts of the country were sent to the anniversary meetings at the expense of the league as a reward for going to church regularly all last Winter. Reports showed that of all cities in which there are Unitarian churches, Washington had the greatest numerical gain in attendance and the largest average attendance.

The membership of the league was reported as 12,421 in 272 chapters in the United States and Canada.

Exploding Still Kills a Woman.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 22.—A still made from an ice cream freezer exploded and killed Mrs. Rosa Langfelder today. The explosion wrecked a room in which she was alone. The woman's son, Alexander Langfelder, arrested on a charge of violating liquor laws, said that the apparatus was used only to distill alcohol to cure rheumatism.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 22.—Governor Miller will establish the Summer capital at Lake George about June 15, he announced tonight. He has leased the Edward M. Shepard home, two miles above the village of Lake George. With Mrs. Miller and their children he will go there to remain until after the State Convention.

The estate which the Governor has selected is known as "Earlwist", and is one of the show places on the lake. It is always pointed out to tourists from the lake steamers. It can be reached by motor boat and also by the good State road which starts on the west side of the lake.

Governor Miller left tonight for Chicago to debate with Governor Allen of Kansas the merits of the St. Lawrence River ship canal, which is opposed by New York State authorities. The Governor is expected to tell what the barge canal already has accomplished for this State. debate takes place before the Illinois Manufacturers' Association. The Governors of many Western States have been invited.

The Governor expects to return to Albany on next Friday night. Then he will clean up the work that remains before going to Lake George.

Governor Miller said today that he probably would not ask the Legislature to return to act on the complaint by the Ridgewood Community Council of Queens against William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission. The power to remove a public service commissioner rests with the Legislature, which cannot convene in extra session without the call of the Governor.

PHYSICIANS ENDORSE WHISKY AS MEDICINE

American Medical Association Report Calls Alcohol a Necessary Therapeutic Agent.

PROTEST ON RESTRICTIONS

Resolution Asks Government Relief and Says Use Is Problem Not to Be Solved by Law.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 22.—A resolution asking relief from "present unsatisfactory conditions" of control over the prescribing and dispensing of whisky was introduced by Dr. J. P. Brooks of Michigan in the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association, the seventy-third annual convention of which opened at the St. Louis Medical Society headquarters today.

"Fifty-one per cent. of the physicians of the country consider the use of whisky necessary in the practice of medicine and agree that its use is a problem of scientific therapeutics which is not to be solved by any legal or arbitrary dictum," Dr. Brooks said.

The resolution recommended appealing to the Secretary of the Treasury for provision for the Government to supply whisky in sealed packages of prescribed standard and at a fixed price as a means of reducing the illegal use of whisky. The proposal was referred to a committee.

It was suggested that the Medical Association establish a bureau at Washington to watch legislation with regard to liquor and other matters relating to the practice of medicine.

F. C. Warnshuis of Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice President and Acting Speaker, called the meeting to order. Dwight H. Murray of Syracuse, N. Y., the speaker, died on Oct. 21.

The first official act was the preliminary report of the Committee on Credentials. This was followed by reports of the officers and addresses by Dr. Warnshuis and Postmaster General Hubert Work, retiring President of the association, and President-elect Dr. George Edmund de Schweinitz of Philadelphia.

One of the subjects touched upon in the report of the Board of Trustees submitted to the House of Delegates was the therapeutic use of alcohol. It was said alcohol is a necessary therapeutic agent. This and other reports were referred to a special reference committee, which will later report back to the house. The house then will adopt a definite policy on the subjects taken up.

The trustees called attention to the referendum conducted by The Association Journal last December and January on the use of alcohol as medicine. They stated that some of the comments made by physicians in replying to the questionnaire sent out by the association were of special importance, being of even greater value than the statistical matter obtained, the report stated, as they reflected the extreme dissatisfaction of the profession with the conditions which have resulted from the regulations for the prescribing of alcoholic preparations."

The report then pointed out that an analysis of the replies indicated that the physicians were satisfied with the control of narcotics as regulated under the Harrison act. A large number suggested that the Government take over all whisky and supply it in sealed packages to druggists, so that when a physician prescribes whisky he will be sure of obtaining a drug of dependable quality. Many physicians complained that good whisky was not obtainable.

MISSING HEIRESS TO RETURN

Trustee Says Mrs. Davies May Be Dodging Fourth Husband.

Special to The New York Times.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., May 22.—Mrs. Julia Woods Davies, heiress to the $5,000,000 estate of the late Dr. W. S. Woods, of this place and Kansas City, is expected home early in June. She has cabled to executors of the Woods estate here that she would sail from London, May 27.

In the meantime, her fourth husband, George W. Davies, a St. Louis musician, has cabled to the Woods trustees saying that he has been unable to find his wife in Europe and asking aid in learning her whereabouts.

"She had been hearing things about her husband that might influence her," said Hugh Willitte, one of the trustees, "and may be dodging her husband purposely."

Excelsior Springs, having in mind the many matrimonial ventures of the Woods estate heiress was interested in this new turn of her affairs.

Mrs. Davies is about 50 years old. Her husband is 40. She married him in Stamford, Conn., last year. Her three former husbands were divorced by her.

Dr. Woods's will tied up the $5,000,000 estate until 1927, and named Hugh Willitte, W. N. Pittman and H. L. Moore, of this place, as trustees. Under the will, the daughter was to receive $1,000 a month until 1927.

Mr. Willitte said today that the sum named had been sent to Mrs. Davies each month since the death of her father. Rome dispatches saying that Mrs. Davis's income had been held up were denied by the trustees.

NO NEW TRIAL FOR FEVROLA.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 22.—Justice Tompkins, in the Supreme Court today, denied a motion for a new trial made in behalf of Frank Fevrola, now in the death house at Sing Sing awaiting execution for the murder of General Nazzare in Yonkers on March 15, 1917. The motion was based on affidavits of Tessie Bonaguer, known as Fevrola's wife, recanting her testimony which assisted in convicting Fevrola, and charging that she had been forced to testify falsely by former District Attorney L. F. Davis.

In his decision Justice Tompkins said: "I am satisfied that the witness Tessie Bonaguer told the truth as a witness in the trial.

Prohibition Agents John Kerrigan, William Stafford and Edward Potter, accompanied by a woman agent, were returning uptown from Greenwich Village yesterday morning after several raids along Broadway and in the "Village," when their automobile was hailed by a patrolman in Hudson Street.

"Sure," said the agents, who slowed down and took the officer aboard. The latter thanked the members of the party and wished he could do something for them.

"Sure," said the policeman, and he told the chauffeur to drive to John Kirbey's Café, 621 Hudson Street. The four men lined up at the bar after Bartholomew O'Donohue, the waiter, and the policeman exchanged greetings.

The waiter served whisky, the agents said. Stafford poured his drink into a little "evidence" bottle.

"What's the idea?" asked Kirbey.

"We are United States prohibition enforcement agents," said Stafford.

Policeman Fled.

There was a scuffle of feet and a flash of blue and brass. Kerrigan ran to the street after the policeman, but he was running as fast as he could and did not turn when Kerrigan called after him. Summonses were served on Kirbey and O'Donohue.

In the early morning the raiders, posing as actors, visited Durand's, 107 West Forty-third Street. They obtained four drinks, for which they paid $4.50, and left summonses for the owners, Gus Wise and Eugene Durand.

John Coleman, a waiter, is alleged to have tried to hit Kerrigan with a chair but Stafford grabbed his arm. Coleman was locked up in the West Thirtieth Street Station charged with selling whisky.

The agents then visited Benny's Restaurant at 250 West Forty-fifth Street where they whispered the password "Paul," and Richard Carle, a waiter, served them with whisky, Kerrigan said. Carle and Benny Rosso, the owner, were arrested.

Court Restrains Police.

Vice Chancellor Griffin in Jersey City yesterday made permanent an injunction restraining the police from interfering with the operation of the saloon of Walter Kosr, 669 Grove Street, Jersey City. On the disposition of the Kosr case hinged thirty-two other cases involving the question whether the police can close a saloon for alleged liquor law violation without express authority from the courts.

The Vice Chancellor held that the closing of the saloon was a judicial function and not be usurped by the police. He said that the police had the right to arrest violators of the law, but not to halt their business.

Agents served summonses last night calling for the appearance before United States Commissioner Samuel Hitchcock today of owners and waiters in the following places:

Elisabeth Marbury of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment announced last night that an honorary committee of widely known New York women, under the direction of Alice Carpenter, would aid in the city campaign of the association. The women include Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mrs. George Haven Putnam, Mrs. Dunn Barbour, Mrs. Frederick Nathan, Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, Mrs. Francis Durrall Hoffman and Mrs. John H. Iselin.

BACK WOMEN'S CLUBHOUSE.

The proposed $2,500,000 business women's clubhouse sponsored by the American Woman's Association, formerly the Vacation Association, received the unanimous endorsement of 400 women at the Hotel Pennsylvania last evening. Nearly 300 of them signed up as members of a "committee of 1,000" to finance the project.

The site for the twelve-story clubhouse, with its 800 rooms, has not yet been acquired, but attempts are being made to secure a location somewhere between Thirty-eighth and Forty-fifth Streets, on the east side. Contingent upon the completion of the committee of 1,000, according to Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, President of the association, definite financial plans will be formulated by June 19.

The club will be democratic, non-political, non-partisan and non-sectarian, said Miss Smith. Others who spoke in support of the undertaking were Louise Closser Hale, the actress, and Miss Emma MacAlarney. Mrs. Grace Crawley Oakley, Chairman of the Organization Committee, presided.

NAMES MAIER CONTROLLER.

ALBANY, May 22.—William J. Maier of Seneca Falls, First Deputy Controller, was appointed Controller today by Governor Miller, succeeding the late James A. Wendell of Fort Plain.

Mr. Maier has served several terms in the Assembly and was at one time Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. He has been connected with the Controller's office for five years.

HEARST SAILS TODAY BUT 'BOOM' GOES ON

SILENT ON EVE OF VOYAGE

Refuses to Amplify Statement of a Week Ago as He Starts for Europe.

With a constantly rising tide of opposition against his candidacy among Democrats up-State, friends of William R. Hearst, on the eve of his departure for a two months' stay in Europe, said last night that in his absence the work of "organizing" the Hearst sentiment in all parts of the State would continue just as if he were here.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst will sail for Europe today on the Aquitania of the Cunard Line. Arthur Brisbane had a reservation on the same ship, but according to information obtained last night this has been canceled, so it is expected that he will remain on this side during Mr. Hearst's absence to see that the work of nursing the incipient Hearst boom goes on without interruption in his absence.

No statement was forthcoming from Mr. Hearst last night to indicate that the opposition manifest among Democratic leaders in two scores of up-State counties, including those in which there are large cities which Mr. Hearst looks upon as favorable battleground in his campaign, had made any impression on him. Attempts to reach Mr. Hearst at his home by telephone were met by his English butler with the statement that Mr. Hearst is out and is not expected home until quite late." An aid of Mr. Hearst said later that no statement from him of political purport would be forthcoming earlier than after his return from abroad, if then.

Receptive in Latest Statement.

The last word from Mr. Hearst direct was to the effect that he was not very keen about becoming a candidate for Governor or any other office, but that he would do "whatever the situation demands" after he had learned what it really required. That was a week ago Saturday. In the same interview he suggested that Mayor Hylan would make a strong candidate for Governor.

In the view of a statement from a friend said last night, it would appear as though Mr. Hearst's disavowal of any ambition to obtain the Democratic nomination for Governor was merely a political gesture. For all that there appears to be an inclination in Tammany circles to take Mr. Hearst at his word.

A veteran Tammanyite, who undoubtedly is in a position to reflect the feeling in inner circles of the organization, said yesterday that while the nomination of Hearst, aside from spelling certain defeat, would cause all sorts of embarrassment to the Democratic Party in this State and especially to Tammany Hall, the nomination of Mayor Hylan might mean victory, and certainly would be the best possible way out of a very difficult and disagreeable situation.

"While I think all Smith would make a stronger appeal among the voters up-State than any other candidate we could name, a danger lurks behind his nomination—he almost certainly would be opposed by Hearst in his newspapers," said the veteran, "so the latter could not consistently oppose Hylan. He would have to support him.

Urges Hylan As Vote-Getter.

"Hylan would get more votes in this city than Hearst possibly could, and in my opinion the would run much better up-State than Hearst. From a vote-getting point of view he would be strong with the same elements that Hearst appeals to and he would not be handicapped by the opposition on personal grounds that Mr. Hearst would have to overcome.

"There is another thing, too. 'Al' Smith, whose name should be on the ticket already has made it clear, as I understand it, that he would not run on a ticket headed by Hearst. He could not possibly have any good reason for declining to become the running mate of Mayor Hylan. He was elected Aldermanic President on the Hylan ticket in 1917 and renomination of Hylan would save trouble all around and I do not know that we could do much better than picking him, inasmuch as ex-Governor Smith appears to have made up his mind not to run for Governor again."

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier sent a letter yesterday to Herbert C. Pell Jr. announcing that he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General.

Word came from Syracuse last night that the Democrats had taken the Arena—the largest auditorium in that city—for Sept. 26, which, it is understood, will be the date fixed for the Democratic State Convention when the Democratic State Committee meets to determine the time and place and issue the formal call for the convention.

COURT NOT GAMING ARBITER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 22.—Holding that the courts are not required to sit as arbiters of the gambling table or to determine the issue in every losing gambler's case, whether the play was fair or foul, United States District Judge Arthur L. Brown today sustained demurrers of the defendants in suits brought by Edward T. Bannon, New Bedford lawyer, against Frank L. Murray and James E. Moran, both of East Greenwich, R. I., and John F. Hennessey of East Providence, R. I.

Bannon sought $100,000 damages from Murray and Hennessey and $75,000 from Moran, alleging that he lost great sums on roulette wheels said to have been mechanically controlled by the defendants to the point where it was impossible for him to win. Murray, Hennessey and Moran, through their counsel, demurred on the grounds that gambling debts could not be collected.

UPMANN & CO. ATTACHMENTS

Several attachments against the Cuban banking house of H. Upmann & Co., now in receivership, were put into the hands of Sheriff Nagle yesterday by creditors who hope to discover property of the Upmanns here which can be seized to apply on the claims against them. Sheriff Nagle served fifty copies of the attachments on corporations and individuals alleged to hold property belonging to the concern. It was learned that in most cases the property here is held as collateral on claims against the Upmanns, and that there is little equity.

Among the attachments were $532,980 for the National Park Bank on two notes; $15,519 by Francis J. Hughes on a check to the Vulcan Iron Works, which was unpaid, and two claims for $88,000 and $3,000 by the Zinwill Company for breach of contract.

To Deport Smuggled Jews to Cuba.

KEY WEST, Fla., May 22.—Immigration officers here today announced the arrest of fourteen Jewish aliens who are said to have admitted they were smuggled into the country, arriving here on Saturday. They will be deported to Cuba.

Huge Quantities of War Stores Destroyed by the Germans

BERLIN, May 22 (Associated Press).—Up to March 1 Germany had destroyed 5,855,000 rifles and carbines, 104,000 machine guns, 35,700,000 loaded shells and mines, 14,800,000 grenades, 13,383 airplanes and 24,045 airplane engines, according to official figures made public today.

DENOUNCES O'BRIEN IN QUEENS GAS CASE

SAYS FACTS ARE FALSIFIED

Charges O'Brien's Assistants With Stupidity and Declares Hearings Finally Closed.

Recent statements by John P. O'Brien, Corporation Counsel, that the Public Service Commission in its gas rate hearings had favored the companies against the city and the consumers, and that it had been especially lax in permitting the New York and Queens Gas Company to ignore a subpoena to produce its books, were answered yesterday by William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the commission.

In a scathing letter, Mr. Prendergast accused Mr. O'Brien of playing politics, charged attaches of the Corporation Counsel's office with stupidity, and asserted the city did not want the gas cases settled because that left "no opportunity for the exercise of your noisy and futile but sometimes baneful activities."

Concerning Mr. O'Brien's complaint that the Queens gas rate was closed April 14 without any attempt by the commission to enforce its subpoena so the city might examine the books and records of the company, Mr. Prendergast wrote:

"Your letter is another attempt to distort and falsify the facts concerning matters affecting this commission. There was nothing secret about the close of the case on April 14. You were represented at that hearing and the case was closed with the full knowledge of your representative, about the last statement upon the record having been a request from him (Mr. Jackson) that you be permitted to file a brief, which it has neglected to do up to this time.

"There was not even the suggestion of a protest by your representative that anything further remained to be done in the matter of the subpoena or in any other phase of the case. It was your duty, if you felt that the public interest required, to insist that the matters of the enforcement of the subpoena and the examination of the company's books and plant by your office be fully cleared away before the hearing was closed. After the expiration of practically a month from the closing of the hearing you send in your belated protest.

"It is well understood by all people who have the slightest knowledge of the operations of your department that your purpose in writing your letter of May 11 was an entirely political one, as the record in the case shows that you have no valid grievance or ground of complaint."

Mr. Prendergast said the subpoena was issued at the request of the Corporation Counsel and that through the blundering of your office the subpoena was not properly served. Finally, when the company's secretary did appear, he refused to answer questions asked by the city's representative. Here, says Mr. Prendergast, was an opening for the presentation of contempt charges, but the city made no move in this direction.

To prove his statement that the city itself, and not the commission, closed the hearing in the Queens Gas case, Mr. Prendergast quotes this extract from the record:

"Mr. Prendergast—I think I will have to arrange the date of the next hearing in this case after conference with the counsel on both sides, and I would like to get an idea just how much more you intend to put in.

"Assistant Corporation Counsel Fertig—That is all. We are through.

"Mr. Prendergast—You are quite through?

Concluding his letter, Mr. Prendergast wrote:

"This case is closed and it will remain closed. I have just finished reviewing the 3,500 pages of testimony and am working upon the figures submitted with the hope of the commission's being able to make an early decision. It is perfectly clear that you do not want this case, or any other case, settled. The reason is that when the cases are settled there is no opportunity for the exercise of your noisy and futile, but sometimes baneful activities."

2 BOLD HOLD-UPS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 22.—Three automobile bandits today held up James Hanley, assistant cashier of the Sinclair Oil Refining Company, and robbed him of $11,463.87 which he had collected at filling stations and was taking to the bank to deposit.

Hanley was driving with Eugene Quillinan from the city sales office of the Sinclair Company to the Lawndale State Bank when the three bandits drove alongside and forced the other car into the curb. Hanley reached for his revolver. "Don't try that, or we'll blow your head off," one of the bandits warned. Then while one bandit guarded Hanley and Quillinan, another grabbed the satchel containing the money. He then took the switch key from the victim's car and the trio sped away.

Two well dressed bandits who posed as vacuum cleaner salesmen today entered the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Gerts in Winnemac Avenue, and fled with Mrs. Gerts and the maid and loot jewelry valued at from $7,500 to $10,000. A neighbor saw one of the bandits pointing a gun at Mrs. Gerts and called the Summerdale police, but when the police arrived the bandits had escaped in a touring car.

The story of a wild ride from Detroit with two men in five different automobiles stolen along the way was told to the police today by Regina and Margaret Wendland, 15 and 17 years old respectively. The men are Elmer Spencer, 24, and Cornelius Phillips, 19, said to be wanted in Michigan as automobile thieves. The trip from Detroit to Chicago made in automobiles stolen in Detroit, Jackson, Michigan City, Charleston and Gary. The quartet was arrested here today.

CRAIG LOSES APPEAL FROM JAIL SENTENCE

JUDGE MAYER IS UPHELD

Decision Says He Filed "a Full and Comprehensive Opinion" in Contempt Case.

CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Another chapter in the contempt proceedings instituted against Comptroller Charles L. Craig was closed yesterday when the Circuit Court of Appeals, by a vote of two to one, decided that Judge Manton of the Circuit Court was without jurisdiction to issue the writ of habeas corpus that saved Mr. Craig from serving the sixty days' sentence imposed by Judge Julius M. Mayer. As soon as the decision was filed Edmund L. Mooney, counsel for Mr. Craig, obtained from Judge Rogers a temporary stay pending argument today for a stay to run until the United States Supreme Court could decide an application for a writ of certiorari.

If such a stay is obtained, which is fairly certain, the case will not move again until October. A writ for the review of the case is the only barrier still standing between Mr. Craig and jail. Failure of Mr. Craig's attorneys to appeal within six months from the sentence inflicted by Judge Mayer has left Judge Mayer entirely out of the controversy, which has narrowed down to a question of whether Judge Manton, as a Circuit Court Judge, has power to issue a writ of habeas corpus. There remains no longer any question in the proceedings as to the power of Judge Mayer or any other Federal Judge to punish for contempt.

Contempt Contained in Letter.

The contempt for which Mr. Craig was sentenced was contained in a letter written in October, 1919, to Lewis Nixon, then Public Service Commissioner, in reply to an invitation to attend a conference on the city's transportation systems. This was after Judge Mayer had named a receiver for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, following a refusal to name Controller Craig as a co-receiver. Among other things, Mr. Craig wrote that this refusal was "hostile to every interest of the city" and that it denied to the municipal authorities "an opportunity to ascertain the truth." Mr. Craig's trial before Judge Mayer began on May 10, 1920, and ran for one month. Sentence was not pronounced until Feb. 14, 1921.

The decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals denying that Judge Manton had jurisdiction to issue a writ of habeas corpus, was written by Judge Rogers and concurred in by Judge Hough. Judge Learned Hand dissented. The majority opinion, referring to the lapse of time between the trial and the imposition of sentence, said Judge Mayer, "appears to have given great consideration to the matter involved, and filed a full and comprehensive opinion." It also states that Mr. Craig received full opportunity to make a retraction of what the court found to be false charges and that he did not avail himself of it.

Questions of Jurisdiction Discussed.

The question whether Judge Mayer had jurisdiction in the case is answered in the affirmative and then follows this comment: "The fact that the person involved happens to be an official of a great municipality, and as such charged with heavy responsibilities, does not affect the question." As an indication that Mr. Craig may have the benefit of a review of the proceedings the opinion states: "If this court is in error in the conclusion the majority of the court has arrived at, it is by no means impossible that the Supreme Court can correct any mistakes we have made."

Concerning the jurisdiction of Judge Manton the opinion reads: "As Judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals is, in our opinion, without power to grant or issue the writ of habeas corpus. The court is created by statute and is without

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Largely under speculative buying orders from outside of Wall Street, yesterday's stock market scored a rapid advance in the earlier trading, gains of 2 and 3 points being numerous. At the high prices, which were reached comparatively early, selling by Wall Street was so heavy as to reverse the market's movement and to end the day in great irregularity and with a mixture of advances and declines, after transactions of 1,500,000 shares. Rise of call money on the Stock Exchange in the final hour to 5 per cent., a rate not touched since the second day of the month, may have had some effect on speculation. But it did not reflect the general money situation; rates for all other kinds of loans remaining motionless.

Taken as a whole, the day's swing of prices was upward and some industrial shares scored substantial net advances. Railway stocks, which advanced with the rest in the early business, mostly ended the day at fractional losses; reflecting perhaps the relative unpopularity which with imaginative speculators surrounds the shares of companies whose profits are largely limited by the Railway law. The bond market was active and in the main stronger.

Other speculative markets did not move uniformly yesterday. Wheat for the May delivery declined 3¾ cents, reaching a price 15½ cents a bushel below last week's high figure of $1.47¾. Apparently the continuous prevalence of high prices has drawn to the market more actual wheat than had been thought to be available for delivery. Cotton, on the other hand, advanced again violently, the spot price reaching 21.80 cents a pound, as against last year's highest of 21.55. Comparison with other years, in this period of generally readjusted values, is interesting. Yesterday's price was low, no doubt, when compared with the 43¾-cent level attained in the ill-fated forestalling experiment of July, 1920; but nothing like the present valuation was ever reached during the period between the Autumn of 1872 and the first month of our war with Germany.

On the foreign exchange market, which in general moved very little, the French franc and the German mark were distinctly weak. The reason appeared to be that the Reparations subcommittee meets tomorrow at Paris to consider the possibility of a German foreign loan, and that we are now hardly a week away from the date, May 31, when the German Government must accept or reject the terms of payment at present laid down for it. Yesterday's weakness of exchange on the markets principally concerned would appear to indicate uneasiness among speculators, but it is not entirely easy to see good ground for it. Nobody seriously expects a French "march into the Ruhr," and all experience since 1919 gives reason to expect that Germany, while obstinate and shifty in her policy of negotiation, will take an altogether conciliatory stand at the eleventh hour.

In the foreign loan discussion, moreover, there is now at least as much ground for hopefulness as for despondency; for the bankers who have the matter to consider must be aware that, in some way and on some terms, such a loan is a wholly inevitable solution of the reparations problem. The essential preliminary to solution on such lines, however, is the fixing of the limit of reparations payment, and that may turn out to be the crux of the deliberations. Meantime, so far as regards the rate of exchange on France, judicious observers of international values will not ignore the 220,000,000 francs surplus of exports shown in the statement just made of French foreign trade for April, raising the export excess to 322,000,000 for the year to date—perhaps the largest achievement of the kind in the country's commercial history.

Investor in Island Oil Proposes That a Committee Be Formed.

James Foley of 15 Whitehall Street has sent a letter to stockholders of the Island Oil & Transport Corporation urging the formation of an independent stockholders' committee to protect their rights in the company, which is in the hands of a receiver.

Mr. Foley, himself a stockholder, reviews the history of the corporation and says: "I am advised by counsel that if the management of the company, that is the Board of Directors, officers and trustees, should prove to be merely dummies of the financiers formerly in control of your company and that they have not been faithful to their stewardship, there may be a legal liability on their part to account to the stockholders and creditors for said stock, gold notes and the proceeds from the sale of oil, and if that is so, a large sum of money might be thereby made available in the treasury of your company."

MUNICIPAL ISSUES FEATURE NEW BONDS

NORFOLK TO OPEN BIDS

$3,957,000 of 4¼ and 5 Per Cent. Bonds to Be Awarded Tomorrow—Other Offerings.

Municipal offerings feature the new bonds introduced to investors by banking syndicates today. Blodget & Co., Eldredge & Co., the Old Colony Trust Co., of Boston, and Edmunds Bros., of Boston, are offering a new issue of $575,000 City of Woonsocket, R. I., 4¼ per cent bonds at par and interest, to yield 4¼ per cent.

Watkins & Co. and F. L. Carlisle & Co., Inc., are offering $375,000 City of Watertown, N. Y., 4¼ per cent school bonds, dated June 1, 1922, and due $15,000 each June 1, 1925 to 1945, inclusive, at prices to yield 4.05 per cent for all maturities.

C. W. McNear & Co. are offering $109,000 Radford, Va., thirty-year direct obligation 5 per cent general improvement bonds, dated January 1, 1922, and due January 1, 1952, at a price to yield 5 per cent.

Bids will be opened tomorrow on $3,957,000 Norfolk, Va., 4½ and 5 per cent bonds, of which the average maturity is thirty years. The issue is divided as to purpose as follows: Dock bonds, $1,000,000; refunding public improvement, $792,000; water bonds, $1,000,000, and water refundings, $1,065,000.

Winston-Salem N. C., will award $2,051,000 4½, 5 and 5½ per cent bonds of thirteen and one-third years average maturity, on Thursday, May 25.

Dominick & Dominick are offering $600,000 Phillips Petroleum Co. ten year 7½ per cent gold debenture bonds at 103, to yield about 7.05 per cent. The bonds are dated Oct. 1, 1921, and are due Oct. 1, 1931. A sinking fund of 10 per cent per annum for the redemption of the bonds by purchase or call is operative beginning July 1, 1922.

White, Weld & Co. head a syndicate which is planning the offering of 40,000,000 guilders of the Anton Jurgens United Works twenty-five year 6 per cent secured sinking fund bonds, in this market. The 10,000,000 guilder portion will be offered by the Rotterdamsche Bankvereeniging and Hope & Co., of Amsterdam. The offering prices have not been announced.

The Lawyers Mortgage Co. is offering $225,000 guaranteed first mortgage certificates, paying 5½ per cent, due in from one to five years. The certificates are secured by a six-story apartment house at Morningside Drive and West 120th Street.

OFFERS BANK STOCK AT $267

A syndicate composed of Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co., Lazard Frères, Lehman Bros., Hallgarten & Co., Goldman, Sachs & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Salomon Bros. & Hutzler, is offering 40,994 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Commerce in New York at $267 a share, yielding, on the basis of last year's dividend, approximately 6 per cent. A sale of 300 shares was made on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday at the same price.

The stock was acquired by the banking group from the Equitable Life Assurance Society and the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, representing their entire holdings.

James S. Alexander, President of the Bank of Commerce, in a letter to the banking group which purchased the stock, said:

"The bank in the last ten years has, in round figures, increased its net deposits from $104,259,000 to $302,190,000. The capital during these years has remained unchanged at $25,000,000. Its surplus and undivided profits, which stood at $16,257,000 ten years ago, now amount to $36,206,000.

"In 1921, in addition to the regular dividend of 12 per cent, an extra dividend of 4 per cent was paid."

American Smelting Meeting June 27

The annual meeting of the American Smelting and Refining Company will be held June 27. Transfer books will close June 6. It is expected that there will be three tickets up for election—one presented by the management, one by the committee which signed the majority report of investigation, and the ticket of Karl Eilers, who led the opposition at the annual meeting held last year.

Two Hudson Motor Car Dividends.

Directors of the Hudson Motor Car Company have declared an initial dividend of 50 cents a share on the capital stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 20. A dividend of $2.50 was also declared on 100 shares of stock of $10 a share par value issued to comply with the laws of Michigan.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

There was a deal more activity in the European exchanges yesterday than has characterized recent sessions, heavy selling of French and German remittances accounting for most of the business. Paris and Berlin checks both moved to new lows on this movement, francs to 3.95 cents and marks to 31¼-100 of a cent.

Sterling and guilders continued firm, while lire and pesetas made slight gains. Eastern moved up on higher prices for silver, South Americans irregular.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

With regard to the activities and growth of the Bank, its President, Mr. James S. Alexander, has written us as follows:

"Referring to your advice that you have purchased a block of stock of this Bank and to your request for information respecting its history, growth and condition, I beg to advise you as follows:

The Bank of Commerce in New York was organized in 1839 and entered the National Banking System in 1865. From the outset it has been essentially a commercial bank and its development and growth have coincided with the development and growth of the business and commerce of the United States. Its present business is national and international in scope.

The Bank in the last ten years has, in round figures, increased its net deposits from $104,259,000 to $302,190,000. The capital during these years has remained unchanged at $25,000,000. Its surplus and undivided profits, which stood at $16,257,000 ten years ago, now amount to $36,206,000. The assets of the Bank are conservatively valued and the figures of its capital, surplus and undivided profits are, therefore, not subject to reduction.

The Bank has had an unbroken dividend record. For thirty-eight years prior to 1916, the dividend rate was 8% per annum. Its capital during that period was several times increased. In each of the years 1916 and 1917, extra dividends of 2% were paid. In 1918 the regular dividend rate was increased to 10%. In 1919, in addition to the regular dividend of 10%, an extra dividend of 2% was paid. During 1920 the regular dividend rate was increased to 12% and an extra dividend of 3% was paid. In 1921, in addition to the regular dividend of 12%, an extra dividend of 4% was paid."

Dec. 31st	Capital	Surplus and Undiv. Profits	Dividends Including Extras	Net Earnings after providing for Taxes and Contingencies	Earnings Per Share

When You Can No Longer Get 8%

Will you be among those who vainly regret the loss of an opportunity?

When we say that we will be compelled before long to offer a lower rate on Miller First Mortgage Bonds than the present 8%, we are making an assertion which is backed by past experience, common sense and every reliable indication which is now visible. The fall in interest rates, the rise in Government bonds and other securities, the eagerness of investors to buy our bonds while 8% is still obtainable, all indicate clearly that Southern builders, whom we are now financing through the issue of Miller Bonds on an 8% basis, will soon be able to borrow for less.

When the 8% rate is a thing of the past, will you regretfully admit that you have missed an opportunity, or will you number yourself among those who bought when rates were at their highest levels? Mail the coupon at once, satisfy yourself of the high investment qualities of Miller First Mortgage Bonds, and invest at 8% while you can.

DOUBT DE LA HUERTA WILL CONFER HERE

NEW DELAY LAID TO ILLNESS

MEXICO CITY, May 22 (Associated Press).—The several postponements by Adolfo de la Huerta of his trip to New York for a conference with financiers have given rise to persistent but unconfirmed rumors that he has abandoned the idea of meeting with the International Bankers' Committee, and that the question of Mexico's foreign debt will be held in abeyance until other arrangements have been made.

Señor de la Huerta was to have started northward last night, but it was announced in Mexico City that he did not intend to leave until the middle of the week, as he was suffering from an attack of influenza.

Efforts made today to obtain an official expression from him were unavailing. He answered all queries with a refusal to commit himself on any phase of the proposed conferences in the United States.

In view of the repeated official declarations that the trip of the Secretary is to be made, there is much interest here as to what pretext will be given by Señor de la Huerta should he decide to call off the conferences. Although such a decision is not generally expected, it was pointed out today that there had been almost unanimity on the part of the newspapers in opposing the journey. In numerous editorials they have asserted that de la Huerta in a foreign land would face a much more difficult task than any he had previously had, and that a breakdown or a failure in the negotiations in New York would be a serious blow to the national prestige.

El Universal, in an editorial this morning, under the caption of "A Pleasant Trip and Good Luck to Señor de la Huerta," says that Mexico is little interested in the Washington arms conference or Genoa or The Hague, but upon the result of the New York meeting the life or death of Mexico depends. The article compares de la Huerta to David meeting Goliath, and says that, although El Universal has opposed the trip from the beginning, it can only wish for the Secretary the best of luck.

"If Señor de la Huerta is successful in New York," the editorial says, "he will achieve one of the greatest victories in the history of Mexico, and, although we have not changed our objections to the trip, we will applaud without reserve his triumph."

"For the purpose of accommodating the citizens of the State"
From the Charter of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, 1822.

AMONG all human relationships there is perhaps none which entails greater need for sympathetic appreciation of the position of another, than that of an executor to the legatees of an estate. The importance of the spirit of accommodation can hardly be exaggerated.

COTTON PRICES GAIN ON WEATHER REPORT

Cotton was higher yesterday, as a result of general rains again in several States. Last week's summary complained that some of the Oklahoma crop was getting in the grass. Sunday brought two to three inches of rainfall over the entire State. This started a resumption of general buying in the contract market, blocks of cotton being taken a quarter and half a cent higher than Saturday. A decidedly irregular tone developed on the advance, followed by erratic price changes. Selling of about 25,000 bales of July failed to weaken near positions, July showing a gain of 36 points for the day, compared with only 16 points in January. There are now over 200,000 bales of cotton in New York.

For the fourth successive Monday business began with an excited wave of buying. Rains appeared over Sunday throughout Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, with scattered showers in Texas. While Liverpool made a full response to the decline in new crop positions here, near months abroad showed decided resistance. This started a rush of covering and buying by many who had taken profits last week. Prices advanced 20 to 30 points on the call.

After halting for a few moments the upward movement gained force, rushing October half a cent over Saturday's closing. Failure of New Orleans to follow New York halted the advance, and later in the morning pressure on July became a feature. One house with Japanese connections poured out 15,000 bales of July, selling the block around 20.20. This furnished so many contracts that early buyers resold, running October below 20 cents around midday. Under the even figures, cotton seemed to be wanted. May ruling particularly strong under belated hedge covering.

A great deal of the early covering was attributed to interests that sold on the advance last week. Evidently, the unexpectedly high condition figures that appeared on Saturday had been used as a factor likely to induce liquidation. After the figures had been circulated, this cotton was bought back.

In addition to this inside buying yesterday, trade interests took cotton during the morning. Much of the cotton sold below 20 cents last week passed into trade channels, a fact that prevented development of any open break, though the reaction amounted to about ¾ of a cent. This setback was similar to that of the previous week, from a level of 19¾ around 19 cents. Last week's reaction carried prices from 20½ back to 19¾.

Details of rainfall started a sharp recovery during the afternoon, a 26-point upturn being attended with extreme nervousness and irregularity. Action of the market seemed to indicate steady buying by certain interests, while others were selling on the advance. Trading continued heavy, a large volume of cotton changing hands throughout the last hour. Aggressive demand for July developed, running that month 200 points over October, compared with 10 points early in the day. Toward the close late months came under pressure, leaving those positions easier when compared with May and July.

Receipts of over 10,000 bales increased the New York running stock to 201,000 bales. Cotton is still coming here for delivery on May contracts. Trading in May will cease at noon on Wednesday, so that outstanding accounts in that position must be terminated before that time. Interest is now centred in the question of what is to become of this stock, now the largest since 1016.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Sharply Divergent Movements in Cotton and Wheat, Former Up, Latter Down.

Sharply divergent price movements in two cash staples were the outstanding features of the dealings in the local markets yesterday. Spot cotton, middling, advanced 35 points to 21.60 cents, a new high record for the year, while No. 2 red wheat dropped 7 cents the bushel. Other variations showed fractional losses in coffee, lard and tin, while other grains, dairy products and metals were firm and unchanged.

MYSTERY DEEPENS ABOUT MAY WHEAT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The mystery surrounding May wheat remains unsolved, and, while there was scattered liquidation by longs today with some stop loss orders uncovered, there was nothing to suggest that the leading bulls had let go a bushel during the day, and, according to a rumor, very quietly circulated, they are still confident of their position and look for it to sell between $1.55 and $1.60 before the end of the month.

The trade today was only moderate. A local professional pressed the selling side on the way down, but he covered whenever stop loss orders were caught. It is said that some of the houses, long May wheat, do not know the name of the man it is held for. The business has been done through New York houses.

At the inside today, May was $1.32, off nearly four cents from Saturday's finish and 15½ cents under the high of last week, the finish being two cents lower for the day.

Deferred deliveries dropped 16@1⅝ cents, in sympathy, but rallied sharply toward the last and closed with July unchanged and September ⅝ cents higher. While local sentiment is decidedly bearish, the September has been showing remarkable resistance to pressure and, at the inside, was off only 4½ cents from the high point on the crop.

In some quarters the belief is expressed that today witnessed the lowest prices that are to be seen for several days, unless there is a marked change in the character of the news over night. The short interests have been materially increased, and, with a light outside trade, it would not take any material buying to bring about an advance.

More than 500,000 bushels of wheat were loaded out over Sunday and 750,000 bushels more will load for the East this week, some delay being occasioned by the inability of the private elevators to get the grain out of cars sufficiently fast to permit rapid shipments. A cargo of 55,000 bushels No. 2 red from Toledo was unloaded Sunday and will be delivered.

With the exception of excessive rain and high winds in parts of the Southwest, the general run of crop reports was favorable. Export demand was slow with sales of 300,000 bushels Canadian and a like quantity American.

Corn closed ¼@⅜ cents and oats ⅛@¾ cents lower with scattered liquidation in evidence on the way down, the finish being on a strong rally in corn, with final trades ⅜@1 cent above the low. A leading elevator interest sold July oats freely at 39 cents, with considerable exchanging of futures under way for cash grain, although no sales were said to have been made to the seaboard.

The trade ignored the decrease of 1,633,000 bushels in the visible supply of wheat and 1,196,000 bushels in corn. Total stocks at present are 26,353,000 bushels, against 27,986,000 bushels the previous week and 9,465,000 bushels last year. Corn stocks are 30,660,000 bushels, against 31,856,000 the previous week and 15,224,000 bushels last year.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,955,000 bushels; week ago, 1,364,000; last year, 1,426,000. Shipments were 951,000 bushels; week ago, 783,000; last year, 755,000.

Corn receipts were 990,000 bushels; week ago, 1,304,000; last year, 973,000, and shipments 828,000 bushels; week ago, 1,175,000; last year, 455,000.

DELAY STEEL MERGER FOR FEDERAL INQUIRY

Representatives of Companies Give Assurances in Conference With Daugherty.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Representatives of the Bethlehem and Lackawanna Steel Companies at a conference today with Attorney General Daugherty gave assurances that the merger of the two companies would not be consummated until the Department of Justice completes its investigation into the case, Mr. Daugherty announced at the conclusion of the meeting. The conference, arranged at the request of the steel men, was a prelude to the conference the Attorney General will have with representatives of the Bethlehem and other independent steel companies named in the recent Senate resolution ordering an inquiry by the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission into the proposed merger.

"The Attorney General this morning held a conference with representatives of the Bethlehem Steel Company and the Lackawanna Steel Company regarding the proposed merger. Participating with the Attorney General were: Colonel Goff, assistant to the Attorney General; Mr. Ritter, Assistant Attorney General, and Mr. Herron of the department. The entire proposition was discussed and the transaction presented in full by the companies. Reports of the different companies were furnished.

"The investigation will be continued and completed as soon as possible. Inasmuch as the Federal Trade Commission has been called upon to make an investigation of the same matter, there may be a consolidation of the hearing.

"The representatives of the two companies named gave assurances to the Attorney General that the transaction would not be consummated

MIDVALE NOW A FEATURE

Makes a Net Gain of 2 Points on Sales of 100,000 Shares—Five-Company Parleys Continue.

Rumors of the independent steel companies concerned in the proposed "five company" merger continue to fluctuate widely as a result of the many rumors in Wall Street following the dropping out of the negotiations by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and the calling over of Lackawanna by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Midvale Steel and Ordnance was the feature in yesterday's trading and on sales of approximately 100,000 shares rose 2 points net. Republic Iron and Steel also was prominent in the early dealings, but lost all of its gain and ended the day unchanged.

The strength in Midvale was caused by two rumors. One was that the company would be taken over by Bethlehem, and the other was that Youngstown Sheet and Tube would head a new combination which would include Midvale Steel and Ordnance and Brier Hill Steel. Both of these rumors were denied officially, but Wall Street paid little attention to the denial, calling attention to the fact that the Bethlehem-Lackawanna combination was denied even on the day that the official announcement of the combination was made.

Other rumors afloat yesterday were that Republic Iron and Steel would combine with Midvale Steel and Tube of America and Brier Hill and that Inland would be left to shift for itself.

Irving T. Chadbourne, spokesman for steel men and bankers, yesterday said that negotiations were still being carried on for the purpose of merging the five remaining companies of the original seven. These are Republic, Midvale, Brier Hill, Steel and Tube and Inland. He reiterated his statement of Saturday that the "outlook is hopeful." He denied that Midvale had withdrawn from the conferences.

RAIL VALUATIONS REDUCED.

I. C. C. Cuts Figures Given by Virginian and Other Roads.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Interstate Commerce Commission tentatively fixed today the valuation of the property of the Virginian Railroad at $52,784,814. The Virginian's own property account listed total assets at $61,230,581, and its capital account showed stocks and bonds against the property totaling a par value of $89,653,800.

For the Oregon Trunk Railroad the commission found a valuation of $18,-[illegible]. The books of the railroad showed assets of $16,558,228.

For the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railroad the commission fixed a value of $3,507,300, as compared with $[illegible] of total assets listed by the company.

For the Puget Sound & Cascade Railroad in Washington State, the commission found a tentative valuation of $429,-[illegible] compared with total assets given by the corporation itself of $469,954.

The valuations in each case, if finally approved by the commission after hearings, will be used to govern the making of rates.

POWER PLANTS FOR ITALY.

Announcement Expected Soon of Syndicate's Financing Plans.

It is expected that formal announcement of plans for the development of water power and electric companies operating in Northern Italy will be made before 30 days by J. E. Aldred, 42 Wall Street, who has returned from Europe after negotiating the purchase of the properties for banking interests here.

A public offering of bonds of the corporation by a group of prominent investment bankers is declared a part of the plan. The properties acquired, in the vicinity of Milan, Venice and Turin, are among the most important centers in the industrial situation in Italy. They supply electric light and power to these cities and adjoining towns, and through development of large water power facilities, command a vast store of electric energy.

TERMS OF SUGAR MERGER.

Each Share of National Worth Two of Cuban-American.

A letter giving the terms of the proposal to merge the Cuban-American Sugar Refining Company is expected to be sent to stockholders of both companies before the end of the week. According to information obtained in Wall Street yesterday, stockholders of the National Sugar Refining Company will receive one share of common and one of preferred of the United stock of the Cuban-American Sugar Company in exchange for each share of National.

Negotiations leading to the merger of these two companies have been under way for some time. Under the basis of exchange it is calculated that the National Sugar Refining Company will receive stock valued at about $116 a share based on the closing price of Cuban-American common and preferred yesterday. National Sugar Refining is quoted around 140 in the open market.

HUMPHREYS OIL DIVIDEND.

Company Ends First Year With Current Assets of $3,000,000.

Directors of the Humphreys Oil Company have declared an initial dividend of 5 per cent., payable June 15 to stock of record May 31.

E. G. Dawes, President of the Pure Oil Company; I. W. McIlvain, Vice President, and W. D. Fairbanks, a Director, were elected Directors of the Humphreys Oil Company, representing the Pure Oil Company's 40 per cent. interest. Net surplus of the company for the first year of operations, according to preliminary figures, was $3,800,000 and net current assets about $3,000,000.

MARCH ZINC EXPORTS GAIN.

Totaled 7,452,000 Pounds, Against 1,854,000 in February.

A large increase in zinc exports for March is reported by the Department of Commerce. The monthly figures for the first quarter of the current year are: January, 700,000 pounds; February, 1,854,000 pounds, and March, 7,452,000 pounds. The total for the quarter was 9,908,357 pounds, which compares with 8,500,833 pounds exported during the last six months of the preceding year.

The increase in exports has been an important factor in the resumption of mining operations by all corporations engaged in the industry.

TUBE EARNINGS INCREASE.

Surplus $223,834 Better Than for First Four Months of 1921.

The Hudson & Manhattan Tube, in its April, 1922, report, shows gross income of $468,278, an increase of $46,362 compared with April, 1921. Net, after taxes, was $220,220, an increase of $77,624, and surplus, after charges and full interest on the adjustment income $2, stood at $223,834, or $18,414 more than April, 1921.

For the first four months of the year gross was $1,850,817, an increase of $220,-[illegible] compared with the corresponding period of 1921, and surplus after charges and interest payments was $223,834, or $[illegible]4 more than for the first four months of 1921.

SEE FIRST STEP FOR LOWERED RAIL RATES

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Seven railroad executives, representing the group of nineteen which participated on Saturday night in the White House dinner conference, at which President Harding asked voluntary action by the railroads in certain rate reductions, today held a two-hour session with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Although a formal announcement made by Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio, one of the conferees, merely said the meting was "for the purpose of discussing the rate situation," the session generally was regarded as the first step by the roads toward possible compliance with the President's request and toward carrying out the agreement made at the White House meeting.

The statement by Mr. Willard was the only one coming from a participant. It said that another meeting would be held on Thursday, and read:

"The committee of railroad Presidents, consisting of Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio; Fairfax Harrison, President of the Southern; Hale Holden, President of the Burlington; E. B. Bryam, President of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; Charles Donnelly, President of the Northern Pacific; William H. Finley, President of the Chicago & Northwestern, and Edward Chambers, Vice President of the Santa Fe, met with the Interstate Commerce Commission in conference this morning by appointment, for the purpose of discussing the rate situation.

"Discussion continued for about two hours. The conference then adjourned, to meet again at 2 o'clock P. M. Thursday, the 25th, for the purpose of then giving the subject further consideration. The appointment of the above-named committee followed the dinner given at the White House last Saturday evening."

Cotton Exchange Seat $18,250.

CITY ANSWERS B. R. T. IN $30,000,000 SUIT

Declares Every Effort Has Been Made to Press Dual Subway Construction.

WANTS CASE DISMISSED

City Counsel Contends the Company Has Not Complied With the Agreement.

Charges that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company failed to live up to all of its agreements in the dual subway contracts were made in the city's answer to the suit for $30,000,000 for damages for alleged breach of the contracts by its failure to complete various lines brought by Receiver Lindley M. Garrison, which was filed yesterday in the United States District Court by Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien. The Transit Commission, a codefendant, has not filed its answer and has obtained an extension of time until May 31.

Among the counter-charges made by the Corporation Counsel was that the company agreed to contribute $13,500,000 to subway construction, but had actually contributed only $12,700,000. The answer declared that the city had made every effort to press construction work with "reasonable diligence," but that many things had prevented completion. It pointed out that the terms of the contract had been modified from time to time and that the company knew in advance of the impossibility of the completion of certain lines at the dates specified in the contracts.

Specific denial was made that the city had been responsible for delay in the construction of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line, on account of which Governor Miller virtually threatened the removal of Mayor Hylan and other members of the Board of Estimate if they persisted in "obstructive tactics." The answer said that no contracts for work on this line were let until 1916 and that no contracts at all had been let for the Nassau Street line, which was provided for in the contracts.

The answer asked that the complaint be dismissed, and recited several legal contentions in support of this request. It declared that the company had not complied with the City Charter in not filing a formal claim with the Controller and giving thirty days' notice of its contemplated action, and asserted that the United States Court had no jurisdiction.

SEES EUROPE GAIN IN BUYING POWER

Banker Describes Business Conditions in United States—Valuation Plan is Assailed.

A general improvement in the purchasing power of European countries as customers of the United States, was described by Dr. Julius Klein, Director of the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce last night at the dinner of the National Council of American Importers and Traders at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The business outlook in this country was described as decidedly more promising than at the first of the year by Francis H. Sisson, a Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company. N. E. Franklin of the Kay Schoerer Company was re-elected President of the organization.

"The various European countries," said Dr. Klein, "are gradually returning to a saner political outlook and to a more complete recognition of their own economic situation. France is gradually realizing that her budget must be balanced out of current revenues and that she cannot rely on German reparations. Italy has been able to effect cuts in Government expenditures. Germany is coming to the end of her artificial boom. In Great Britain labor shows signs of increasing output per man.

"In general, it may be noted that the process of normalizing the industrial situation is proceeding slowly but steadily. This recovery has meant a gradual improvement in the purchasing power of countries which have long been our best customers—a most encouraging sign from the point of view of American foreign trade, even though it may also be accompanied by a stimulating competition with our trade in certain markets in the Orient and South America."

The increase in the value of cotton, grains and other agricultural products was cited by Mr. Sisson as an example of what had been done to restore the balance between the buying power of the farmers and that of other elements of the business community. He predicted that business improvement which had remained spotty foreshadowed a period of intense competition, both domestic and international.

"Among the potent negative factors in the business situation," said Mr. Sisson, "which are retarding general recovery, are the anthracite coal miners' strike, the New England textile mill workers' strike, the efforts to enact a high protective tariff, the endeavor to saddle a soldiers' bonus upon the taxpayers, who are already too heavily burdened, and the greatly increased productive capacity in certain lines of industry, which is not balanced by a corresponding demand for goods."

"Foreign trade never was of more consequence than today," asserted Colonel Myron W. Robinson, President of the American Manufacturers' Export Association. "Import trade was never more necessary. To check our imports would mean the end of our export trade."

Philip Le Boutillier, General Manager of Best & Co., said at the afternoon session that the stand taken by the National Council of American Importers and Traders made the Republican Party fear to press the American valuation plan and brought about the elimination of that scheme from the tariff bill passed last Summer.

DRY GOODS DEMAND STILL SUBNORMAL

Wholesalers Are Told This to Be the Case Except in Few Isolated Instances.

Excepting in a few isolated cases, the May market service letter of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association shows the demand for merchandise, on the part of both the jobber and the retailer, still to be subnormal. The weather is held to have quite a little to do with this condition, especially in the case of seasonable merchandise.

"The continuance of slow sales," says the letter in discussing cotton piece goods, "has impressed upon the wholesaler the thought of the inventory loss which he might have suffered had the New England strike not occurred and had the market been burdened with this immense yardage of goods. Some wholesalers concede that the effect of this lost production may be apparent later on, despite the importation of cotton piece goods from Europe, but satisfaction is expressed that another inventory loss has been averted."

The letter further says that cancellation of gingham orders by several important producers has been satisfactory to the wholesaler, because of the persistent consumer demand for ginghams and the large supply in many wholesalers' hands. It adds that the wholesaler has continued to find retailers unwilling to pay the increased prices for Fall ginghams. Several selling agents have reprieced their lines back to the Spring basis, declaring that they regretted having taken part in the advance.

Napped goods, from the viewpoint of wholesale buying, are shown by the letter to be one of the "brightest spots" of the entire market. Of them it says, in part: "Investigation would tend to prove that the sellers have had a tremendous trade on 36-inch napped goods, in fact almost the biggest year they have ever known. Wholesalers have, in a number of cases, duplicated their original orders for 4-4 goods, and the mills are well sold into the Fall months. While 27-inch goods were very slow at the start, buyers who have delayed placing their orders have decided that they must be covered, both on account of the reduced production in New England and the advance in raw cotton prices."

Converters of wash goods are said by the letter to have been quite disappointed by slow business and the lack of prospect of a profitable trade during this year. Wholesalers' orders to printers of percales are found to run from three to twenty cases, and unwillingness to increase these orders is expressed. Large orders are infrequent.

The woolen dress goods market is still quiet, reflecting, however, some strength through the higher cost of raw material and the advanced prices asked by leading manufacturers of men's wear fabrics. Curtailment in broad silk manufacture continues, due in part to the high cost of raw silks and the oversupply of merchandise in primary markets and, also, in some second hands. Wholesalers are buying carefully in view of the statements of some of the manufacturers that lack of orders has caused curtailment and that it would be unsafe to increase inventories of finished goods.

The letter asserts that Fall underwear selling by the wholesaler has increased momentum, and awaiting the movement of Spring merchandise to bring the retailer to a decision to provide for his need of heavy goods for Fall. Wholesalers in some cases have been told by retailers that this decision might be deferred until after the Fourth of July, in the hosiery and of the market novelties continue to sell well, with the manufacturers actively engaged in production. Staple hosiery finds a small market, but conditions are somewhat improved over those of a month ago.

Offers New Bathing Suit Bags.

Something new in bathing suit bags, which are made somewhat on the order of brief cases, has been put on the market here. The new bags are made of imitation leather, lined with an attractive flowered material, and are guaranteed waterproof. They include space for the suit, as well as a large pocket in which towels and other accessories of a "dip" may be carried. They come in two styles, one having two snaps to hold the bag closed and the other having only one. The latter is priced at $11 a dozen, less 15 per cent., while the two-snap bag costs $13 a dozen, with the same discount.

Chinese Parasol for the Beaches.

Following the success of the imported Chinese parasol as a fad during the Winter seasons at Havana, Daytona and Palm Beach, it is now being introduced to the Eastern beaches. It is believed that it will prove as popular there during the coming Summer as was the case at the Winter resorts. The parasol is intended for beach use and is sun and rainproof. It is decorated in high Oriental colors both inside and out. The more costly ones are attractively handpainted. The framework and handle are of bamboo. When opened, the parasol has a spread of from 22 to 44 inches. Wholesale prices range from $10 to $27 per dozen.

Details of the Garment Show.

From Aug. 7 to 11 the exhibits at the Garment Show, conducted by the National Garment Retailers' Association as a division of the Merchandise Fair at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, will be given over to coats, suits, dresses and furs. These will give way during Aug. 14 to 18 to waists, blouses, skirts, sweaters, bathing suits, house dresses and children's wear. The third week will be open to the public, and the plans regarding exhibits than have not been definitely formulated. The style show will be the feature of the exhibit, with more than 200 garments being displayed by the mannequins on a runway extending through the centre of the armory.

Color Contrast in Bathing Suits.

Taking the current demand for clothing novelties as their inspiration, manufacturers of women's bathing suits have brought distinctly bizarre effects in the models for the current season. A noteworthy tendency is for a color contrast in the higher priced bathing costumes, the upper garment being of a different hue than the trunks. In one model the skirt was gray, with a fantastic design worked out on its front, while the trunks were orange colored and fringed with gray at the knees. Another model was of yellow satin with black trunks. The color contrast between the upper and lower garments has not been used on the more staple lines.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

A fair amount of trading was done in the local gray goods market yesterday, but the volume of merchandise moved was not large. Some limited business was done by second hands on 38½-inch 64-60s and 39-inch 68-72s at 8¼ and 9¼ cents, respectively, but, later in the day, sales of both constructions were made by first hands at an eighth higher. Sheetings were more active than printcloths, at unchanged prices. them included 37-inch 48-square 4-yard cloths at 9¼ to 9½ cents, 40-inch 5 yards at 8 cents, 36-inch 5 yards at 7⅞ cents, 5.50s at 7¼ cents and 6.15s at 6¾ cents. Trading in the fine-yarn cloths was light, with prices based on 7½ cents for 88-80s and 17½ cents for 96-100s.

Burlaps Very Firm Here.

The local burlap market opened the week rather quietly yesterday, in contrast with the recent buying activity in that field, but with prices high and very firm. The asking price for spot 8-ounce 40-inch burlaps was 6.40 cents, while 10½-ounce 40-inch goods of standard construction were quoted at 9¼ cents. Still higher prices are in prospect here, from all accounts, due to the position of the market at Calcutta. Over there May-time shipments of light-weights are quoted at 6.75 cents, with the heavier cloths held on the basis of 9.50 cents for 10½-ounce "40s." The lull in local business is attributed both to the high prices and the desires of the buyers to find out just where they stand.

Little Chance for High Shoes.

Men experienced in the women's shoe business see little prospect of a general return of high shoes to vogue this Fall and Winter. The prediction has been made that, because of the way novelties in low shoes have been pushed for the last several seasons, high shoes would be welcomed by the average woman by way of change. The men in question, however, do not see it that way. Excepting in the case of women whose ankles are weak enough to require support, they say, every advantage lies with the low shoe as against the high one. Orthopedic experts were said yesterday strongly to favor low shoes and, in addition to this, shoes of this type lend themselves so much more readily to the novel treatments women seek that they are expected to remain in vogue for a long time to come.

Black Leghorns Strong Here.

Despite the use of bright colors in all lines of women's apparel, especially sports wear, some of the most active sellers in the local millinery trade at the moment consist of combinations of black felt crowns with black Leghorn brims. Huge chous of taffeta are sometimes chosen to trim these hats, but flowers and hand-made appliques of black flowers are also used more or less. The demand for them is particularly strong for town wear, and the medium-sized mushroom and the black felt visor-brim turban are wanted most. They can be used for mourning wear as well as for dress purposes. Sometimes they are varied by the use of a satin crown with the leghorn brim, but the felt crown is much more frequently seen.

Outlook for Laces.

If style tendencies on the Continent have the effect anticipated, there will be a large increase in the Fall demand for laces. According to a prominent importer the use of lace in Europe as costume decorations is extensive. Embroideries are also expected to benefit by the reported style indications. Meanwhile, the only business passing in both laces and embroideries is confined to staples. The retailer is buying very lightly and is apparently waiting to see how the situation will shape up. Because of the great preference of women for silk underwear, the use of embroideries has fallen off greatly. Metal laces are expected to be featured for Fall evening gowns. Filet art laces for table covers, window panels, bedspreads and scarfs are popular.

Call for Cut Glass Sets.

While the turnover is still comparatively light, cut glass manufacturers report somewhat of an increase in the demand as compared with two or three months ago. Present sales in heavy and light cut glassware are largely confined to ice water and tea sets, although there is a steady call for punch bowls, vases and fruit bowls. Colored and decorated glassware is said to be growing in popularity, with orange green or yellow console sets, comprising a pair of candlesticks and a fruit bowl, being the best sellers. Such items in colored glass as marmalade jars, candy boxes, vases and flower bowls are also moving well. In the more expensive lines, there is a fair demand for gold and silver encrusted glassware for hotels, cabarets and pretentious dwellings.

Big Cigar Machine Contract.

Announcement was made yesterday by the International Cigar Machinery Company that it had signed a contract for the sale of fifty cigarmaking machines at $6,000 each. The machines are sold on a sale and rent basis, an additional $700 per year going to the corporation for each machine in service. The corporation is controlled by the American Machine and Foundry Company which owns more than 60 per cent. of the stock.

Merchants in the textile trade have confidence in announcements inserted in the Buyers' Wants and Offerings to Buyers columns of The New York Times because of the careful censorship exercised over all advertisements.

TRY 6 FOR ALLEGED FUR SALE TAX FRAUD

FIFTEEN FURRIERS INVOLVED

Government Says Accused Forged Receipts and Pocketed Collections —Loss Put at $1,000,000.

Morris Rosenblum, former Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue; Melville G. Newmark, Herman Schuss, Benjamin Weiss, William Sherman and Joseph Schuss were put on trial before Judge Augustus N. Hand, in the United States District Court, yesterday, charged with defrauding the Government in connection with fur sales taxes and of forging Internal Revenue Bureau receipts. Both morning and afternoon sessions were taken up with the selection of a jury.

Ben A. Matthews, former head of the Criminal Bureau at the United States Attorney's office here; William J. Fallon, Frank Aranow and Charles Griffiths represented the defendants. Mr. Fallon was unable to be present yesterday, but Judge Hand directed that selection of the jury proceed, inasmuch as the other counsel were in court.

Rosenblum and Herman Schuss, according to the Government, headed the band. Newmark, an actuary in the employ of a fur dealers' association, is alleged to have been the go-between, the others playing minor parts.

The method alleged to have been employed, according to the indictment, was for Rosenblum, no longer in the Internal Revenue Service, to meet fur manufacturers through Newmak and represent to them that he could save them 80 per cent. of the taxes due if the manufacturers paid through him. Many of the manufacturers who paid their taxes to the bogus collectors are alleged to have done so with full knowledge of the scheme to defraud the Government. The manufacturers received forged receipts, it is charged, which they displayed to bona fide representatives of the Collector's office as evidence that they had paid their taxes.

About fifteen furriers were alleged to have been involved in the plan. In five cases alone the Government is said to have been defrauded of $188,000. The total amount involved in the frauds is said to exceed $1,000,000.

CANADA'S COTTON PLAINT.

Her Mills Feeling the Competition of Those in the South.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, May 22.—That cotton companies of the Southern States are competing keenly in the Canadian market with the article manufactured in the Dominion's domestic mills, is a statement made by A. O. Dawson, Vice President of the Canadian Cottons, Limited, at the annual meeting here.

Mr. Dawson said that the competition was serious in the heavier grades of cotton, and it was hoped that something might be done in the tariff to equalize the situation. The Minister of Finance hands down his budget on May 28 and new tariff recommendations would be included in that.

Mr. Dawson regretted that the South is enabled to employ cheap labor with long hours, while many mills in the South were selling their goods below actual cost of production.

The matter, he said, would be covered by the existent Canadian "dumping act," but that it is difficult to get this into operation.

New Considine Martin Oil Co.

The Considine-Martin Oil Company has organized a new corporation under the laws of California to be known as the Texas Consolidated Oil Company, in order to obtain funds for a drilling campaign in Stephens County, Texas. The new company intends to issue 600,000 shares of stock of $10 a share par value, which will be exchanged share for share for the 400,000 shares of Considine-Martin stock outstanding. The stock not taken by stockholders has been underwritten by Sutro & Co. of San Francisco at $2 a share.

SIX FURRIERS DEFRAUDED.

Will Face Man Held on Charge of Passing Bad Checks.

With the arrest recently of Joseph Mendelsohn, who says he lives at 74 Columbia Street, and who will be arraigned in Jefferson Market Court today, John C. Stott, manager of the Furriers' Security Alliance, 366 Fifth Avenue, believes that $25,000 in worthless checks passed in the fur trade will be accounted for.

At least six furriers who have accepted the bad checks for merchandise will face the prisoner in court.

On May 16 Charles Liebenberg of 125 West 119th Street notified Mr. Stott he had received a check for $180 from the Garfield National Bank, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, drawn by a man named Mendelsohn and marked "Fraud, no account."

The same night Mr. Stott sent a bulletin to the association members, urging them to beware of fraudulent checks. Three days later Aakenes & Mintzowitz, furriers, at 180 West Twenty-fifth Street, reported that they were about to accept a check from a suspect, but remembering Mr. Stott's warning, the police were notified and detectives of the West Thirtieth Street Station arrested the man.

"The man usually presents a card to the furrier which says he is from the Williams Cloak and Suit Store, 814 Market Street, Newark, N. J.," Mr. Stott said. Mr. Stott said he went to the Newark address and found it to be a barber shop, where Mendelsohn was unknown.

AGAINST RAIL RATE CUT NOW

L. W. Baldwin Wants More Economic Operation Effected First.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Rates should not be reduced until more economic operation of the railroads has been effected, L. W. Baldwin, Vice President of the Illinois Central Railway, said today in an address before the International Railway Fuel Association. He urged more conservation of coal.

"The public has the right to demand of the railroads, as public servants, that they exhaust their best efforts to furnish the most economical service possible," he said. "That does not mean that they should neglect the properties in order to reduce rates, but it does mean that they should be constantly on the alert to stop all waste and leaks in the business of performing transportation service.

"For some time there has been agitation for reduction of rates. It is important that rates should not be reduced until the spread between operation revenue and operation expense is reduced.

"We are seeking to do that by operating economically. We must take the public into our confidence and tell them what we are doing to conserve in an effort to reduce rates.

"We are passing through a test period. The future of the railroads for a long time will be determined by the actions of the next few months."

FEWER WORKERS EMPLOYED

Eight Industries Show Decrease and Four Increase in April.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Reports from representative establishments in twelve manufacturing industries show a decrease in the number of employed in eight industries and an increase in four in April, as compared with the preceding month, according to figures announced today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor.

The four industries showing an increase were iron and steel, 6.8 per cent.; automobiles, 6.3 per cent.; car building and repairing, 0.2 per cent., and hosiery and underwear, 0.1 per cent. Those showing the heaviest decreases were cotton finishing, 15 per cent., and men's clothing, 10 per cent.

As compared with April of last year, seven of the industries showed an increase and five a decrease in the number of employed. Increases included iron and steel, 11.2 per cent.; automobiles, 1 per cent.; car building and repairing, 13.7 per cent.; hosiery and underwear, 94 per cent., and boots and shoes, 14.9 per cent. The greatest reductions were shown in cotton manufacturing, 25.7 per cent.; cotton finishing, 11.9 per cent., and silk, 9.4 per cent.

A. C. TOWNLEY INDICTED.

Six Charges Against Him Develop From Bank Inquiry.

FARGO, N. D., May 22.—A. C. Townley, former President of the National Non-Partisan League, gave bonds of $12,000 today in connection with six indictments against him, returned by a Grand Jury which investigated the defunct Scandinavian-American Bank of Fargo.

Five of the indictments charge embezzlement in connection with money transferred between the Fargo bank and the Bank of North Dakota. The other alleges a false entry in connection with relations between the Fargo institution and the Consumers United States Company, which operated a number of league-controlled stores.

The voluntary appearance of Townley to give bonds was the first public knowledge that he had been indicted. It was announced last week that thirteen persons had been indicted. So far nine have been arrested or have surrendered.

Cass County officials also made public indictments in the Scandinavian-American Bank investigation against three men who have not been arrested, but will appear voluntarily. They are F. W. Cathro, former Director General of the Bank of North Dakota; M. J. Hagen, former President of the Scandinavian-American Bank, and H. D. Ellis, former cashier of the People's State Bank of Casselton, N. D.

Deal on Ninth Avenue.

The four-story building 368 Ninth Avenue, 18.6 by 100, adjoining the corner of Thirty-first Street and opposite the Pennsylvania Railroad land, has been purchased by an investor. It was sold by a client of William A. White & Sons to Patrick Berry, represented by the Durose Company. Plans for a new building are now being prepared by Charles Dieterlen, architect.

Church Adds to Holdings.

St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church purchased from Henrietta B. Cane the five-story building at 221 West Sixty-seventh Street, on lot 25 by 100.5, thereby gaining control of a plot 350 by 100.5 at this point.

The church is at 215 and 217, and St. Matthew's Hall at 219 by 225. The same interests acquired 219 some years ago.

Advertising Club Contract.

Contracts for the building of the Advertising Club's new $1,800,000 clubhouse have been signed by Frank E. Fehiman. Oliver B. Merrill and George Lippincott Brown of the club. Work will be rushed forward so that the clubhouse can be opened in a year.

Operators Sell Heights Houses.

Ennis & Sinnott sold to Dr. Henry Schwamm 512 to 522 West 145th Street, three five-story apartment houses with stores, on a plot 100 by 100 feet, near Broadway. J. Hoffman & Son were the brokers.

Building, 200 Years Old, Sold.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

Sale of Large Plot in Columbus Circle District, With a Re-sale Pending.

BIG BUILDING PLANNED

Active Trading Continues in Apartment and Tenement Properties by Operators and Investors.

An important deal involving a large plot in the Columbus Circle section was closed yesterday, and there is every prospect of an immediate resale of the same parcel to a firm of builders, who have plans under way for an eleven-story commercial structure to meet the demands of the automobile trade.

The property sold consists of six old houses at 27 to 37 West Sixtieth Street, on a plot 109 by 100 feet, which were sold by clients of Hirsch, Sherman & Linsburg to the John Alden Realty Corporation.

The property is located between Broadway and Columbus Avenue, and negotiations are under way for the resale of the property to a firm of large builders who have plans for the erection of an eleven-story business building designed to provide large floor space units of 10,000 square feet each for the automobile trade, which is so much in demand.

The property was held at $800,000 and is the first sale of any of the buildings in twelve years. Close to $1,000,000 will be involved in land and building.

On the same block and adjoining the property just sold, the American Beach Magneto Company has just completed a ten-story office building. On the Broadway corner there is now under construction an eight-story building by Felix Isman, while to the rear of the property is the twelve-story building used by the Locomobile Company. Opposite are also the Laidlaw Company, the Hood Tire Company and the Madison Tire Company.

The brokers in the transaction were Hoggstrom-Callen & Co. and H. B. Cutner.

Coll-Claire Apartment House Resold.

The Coll-Claire, a twelve-story apartment house, with two four-story dwellings, known as 785 to 789 West End Avenue, southwest corner of Ninety-ninth Street, have been resold by Winter & Wilkes, Inc., Benjamin Winter, President. The properties have a combined valuation of $950,000.

The buildings, which were resold through Henry I. Cooper of M. Cohn & Co., show a yearly rental of $145,000. They measure 148.10 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on the cross street. The structure, whose light facilities are protected by the smaller houses, contains two elevators, with suites of from five to seven rooms. It was acquired by Mr. Winter last month from the Coll-Claire Realty Company, Ralph A. Gushee, President. Meldorrow Bros. erected the building about eight years ago.

Mr. Winter recently purchased from the Morewood Realty Holding Company the northwest corner of Broadway and Eighty-ninth Street and the southeast corner of West End Avenue and Ninetieth Street, both improved with twelve-story apartment houses. He subsequently resold the latter to J. C. & M. G. Mayer.

The five-story new-law apartment house, on a plot 50 by 100 feet, at 710 West 179th Street, has been sold by Nathan Bruner to an investor.

The property has a yearly rental of $15,000, and was held at $85,000. It was sold for all cash over a mortgage of $43,000. Jules Nehring, Inc., in conjunction with Walter E. Brown, were the brokers.

Fred Oppenheimer purchased the five-story seventy-family tenement, with stores, at 203 East 102d Street, near Third Avenue, on a lot 25 by 100, from Harry Karger. The purchaser some time ago sold the building on the west, 207, which he had acquired from the Boyd estate.

Values in office buildings is relative. Every building has windows, elevators, service, equipment and all other requisites.

More windows, perhaps, and therefore more light; one or two more elevators than are absolutely necessary to handle the traffic; location a little more convenient; the equipment, the staff and the willingness to give a little better service—and, by virtue of these things, tenants of a higher character.

OPPORTUNITY

Have you confidence in your ability to write an advertisement?

I WILL PAY ANY PERSON $1,500 IN CASH, plus the cost of the advertisement, if it will sell one of the best $75,000 Real Estate investments ever offered.

Here are the particulars—

Fire-Proof Elevator Apartment, tax exempt, properly financed, located near Amsterdam Ave and 79th Street, less risk than many of the 1st Mortgage Bonds now being sold to the public, and the income more than double.

My advertising man doesn't think that the people reading this paper have this amount of money. Don't you think him silly?

He wants me to advertise this "Matcoca" in a Hebrew paper. Not me! My friend Conway, the Builder, advertised for 7 hod carriers in some "Yiddish" paper, and never got an Answer.

"The Trip Abroad"

in your own United States

BY AN EASTERNER

MILLIONS want to "go abroad," vaguely imagining enchanted lands and "different" scenes. And they think of taking ocean liners—and then of the expense.

But scores of thousands now have found a "trip abroad" in the United States, and they go every summer comfortably and economically by train.

Rainless Yet Cool

That trip is to Southern California—where the U. S. Weather Bureau has found these average summer temperatures over a 44-year period:

Temperature

The average mean temperature in Southern California for the past 44 years (U. S. Weather Bureau Records) is as follows: June, 66—July, 70—August, 71—September, 69.

The same records show that a great city in the center of this section has on the average only one day in June, two days in July, three in August and three in September when the thermometer touches or exceeds 90 degrees.

Southern California averages 309 days of sunshine. Summer is the rainless season so you can plan on perfect weather for your fun.

So there is in Southern California for your enjoyment a delightful summer climate to add to the grandeur and the beauty of this favored land.

Different Everywhere

"A world in itself," a traveler who has seen the world has said. "Resembles the Holy Land in general topographical aspects," comments another. "Like Italy" a third remarks. "Like Spain," asserts a fourth. "It's Egypt," thinks a fifth globe trotter, seeing California's great Mojave Desert.

The fact is, each picks out the likeness that he likes, as moving picture men select there the foreign atmosphere they need.

You see it all, by motor if you wish, traveling over four thousand miles of roads as smooth as those of France.

You visit great estates like England's, climb mountain peaks, visit the old Spanish missions, bathe at a famous sea shore, rest at a wilderness retreat, or take part in the life of a great city, only a few hours' ride from all these unique attractions. You go anywhere by motor, train or trolley.

That Vital Change

If you seek real diversion for your family and yourself, a complete change of environment, and refreshment of the body and the mind, you have a wonderland within your reach that will satisfy a myriad requirements.

The greater the change the better value in vacation—say most doctors. But don't go for healthfulness alone.

There your favorite summer sports, no matter what they may be, are at their best. You simply make your choice of what you'll do today, tomorrow, or a month hence, and Dame Nature seems to wave a magic wand.

Go Now

Summer? An amazing summerland! You'll never spend a more delightful, restful, interesting summer anywhere. That I—an easterner who has traveled widely—can assure you.

The thing to do is go this summer while you may. Ask any railroad ticket agent for further information, or mail the coupon below.

You too will acclaim it the best trip of your life.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Pressure was high Monday night from Hudson Bay southward over the Lake region and North Atlantic States from the North Pacific Coast eastward to the Dakotas and off the South Atlantic Coast, while low pressure prevailed over the Lower Missouri Valley, the Southern Plains States, the West Gulf States, the Far Southwest and in the vicinity of Newfoundland.

This pressure distribution has been attended by local thunder showers within the last twenty-four hours in the Plains States, the Middle Mississippi Valley, the interior of the West Gulf States and at scattered points in the Atlantic States from Virginia southward.

The temperature was somewhat lower Monday in the Missouri Valley, Montana and the Canadian Northwest, and it was higher in the Pacific States and the Southern plateau region. There was little change in temperature over the Eastern half of the country.

PEPPER ARRAIGNS SENATE METHODS

Says Time May Come When Members Will Be Required to Speak to the Point.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—Chiding the Senate for "conforming to a diplomatic rather than a legislative procedure," Senator George Wharton Pepper in an address today before the City Business Club, said that perhaps the time would come when Senators would be required to speak to the point and would be permitted to speak only for a limited time.

"The Senate presents the curious spectacle," he said, "of men trained in modern business methods who, because of the nature of the body of which they have become members, actually do their business in ways which in many respects American business fails to approve."

The House of Representatives, however, functions in as businesslike a way as any other legislative body, Senator Pepper said.

"I believe the business men of America would take a lively interest in any proposal which would result in the early passage of legislation required by the country," he declared, "even if this involved the curtailment of some ambassadorial privileges of the Senate."

REWARD FOR FLOGGERS.

Beating of Health Officer Is Laid to His Law Enforcement.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 22.—Federal, State, county and city authorities today continued to investigate the flogging of Dr. J. D. Dowling, City and County Health Officer, by a band of men last Wednesday night. Dowling reported that he was lured from home, taken to an isolated spot in the country, severely whipped and then abandoned.

Rewards of approximately $3,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Dr. Dowling's assailants have been offered by the State, the Ku Klux Klan, the International Civilian Club and the Dowling family.

Officials said arrests were expected soon. They attributed the attack to enmity incurred by Dr. Dowling in enforcing health laws.

WON'T HELP VALENTINO.

First Wife Denies She Will Aid Him When Bigamy Hearing Starts.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 22.—Preparations for the preliminary hearing on June 1 of Rodolph Valentino, motion picture actor, charged with bigamy, were under way today at the District Attorney's office. A long legal battle is expected before it will be possible to establish whether the actor's marriage on May 13 to Miss Winifred Hudnut, at Mexicali, Lower California, came within the meaning of California statutes covering bigamy.

Miss Jean Acker, Valentino's first wife, today denied published reports that she had said she would aid him in the case.

ESTIMATES STOKES REALTY.

When the hearing of the application by Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes for $75,000 a year alimony under her separation decree was continued before Supreme Court Justice Finch yesterday Robert Huntley, a realty expert, testified that he had inspected forty-nine houses owned by Mr. Stokes, other than the Ansonia property, and fixed the value of the property, with improvements, at $2,395,950. The general condition of the property was "fair," he said.

After an accountant in the courtroom had told Isidor Gelnsburg, attorney for Mr. Stokes, that it would take two weeks to go over Mr. Stokes's books and determine the value of his property, Justice Finch granted an adjournment until June 6.

27 PROFESSORS ASK LUSK LAW REPEAL

SAY IT HAMPERS TEACHING

A group of twenty-seven prominent professors, teaching in Columbia University, Union Theological Seminary and the College of the City of New York, yesterday addressed a letter to Frank P. Graves, State Commissioner of Education, appealing to him to eliminate the atmosphere of suspicion that has been developed in the public schools by the appointment of the Advisory Council on the Qualifications of Teachers, headed by Archibald Stevenson, formerly a member of the Lusk committee.

Hon. Frank P. Graves,
Commissioner of Education,
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Sir—We, the undersigned, citizens interested in education and in the proper administration of the law, wish to call your attention to the plight into which the educational system of this State is drifting by reason of the vagueness of the provision of the State Education law (Chapter 566, Section 555A, Paragraphs 1 and 4, commonly known as the Lusk law). We appeal to you to use your official power in the administration of the law to remove the uncertainty as to the fundamental rights of the teacher and to eliminate the atmosphere of suspicion that has developed, so that teachers may be free to devote themselves to their duties without being hampered by fears, fear which has been promoted not only by the present law but also by the secret proceedings of the Advisory Council, which meets behind closed doors and does not confront the accused with the name of his accuser.

Section 555A of the Education law makes it possible to revoke the license of any teacher who " while a citizen of the United States has advocated either by word of mouth or in writing a form of government other than the Government of the United States." Presumably this is not intended to abrogate altogether the teacher's right and duty as a citizen to advocate improvements in the law for the public good. But what legal changes amount to a change in the form of government is difficult for any one to say with certainty. Legal decisions on this point are by no means decisively clear, because courts have rightly been inclined to view this as a political question rather than as a judicial question. The effect of this is to leave the teacher under the fear that an utterance of his might be construed as "advocating a form of government other than that of this State or of the United States. Such fear cannot but hinder the teacher's effectiveness by restraining the freedom of utterance which is essential to honest and effective teaching.

To remove this incubus from free and sound teaching we think it is essential not only that the offending clause quoted above be removed from the law but that steps be taken which, in your best judgment, will lead to the total repeal of the Lusk law. The educational law of the State, which provides that teachers may be removed "for cause," makes possible the dismissal of disloyal teachers or of those who advocate a form of government by other than legal means. However, so long as the Lusk law is on the statute books we urge you to enforce it, but to define it so that teachers may know their rights under it. And we further urge that the machinery for trying teachers be in accordance with the traditions of American and English procedure in matters of justice.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 22.—Payne Whitney, Director of the Northern Pacific, Trustee of the United States Trust Company, and noted as a sportsman and society leader, forfeited $50 today by failing to appear in court here to answer to a charge of speeding. He was arrested by a policeman Saturday night while returning from the intercollegiate boat races at Derby, and furnished a $50 cash bond.

"I'll not bother to return to Bridgeport to save the $50," he said, adding that he was hurrying to New York to attend an important meeting.

About the time Mr. Whitney was arrested another Yale man, returning from the boat race, was taken into custody for speeding. He gave his name as "Stanton W. Mead."

"I had been to the boat race with a young lady. We were hungry and were hurrying to get something to eat." Mead explained in City Court today, and the case was settled on payment of $10.

SIFTS COASTER ACCIDENT.

Two employes of Starlight Park, 177th Street and the Bronx River, where a roller-coaster accident early Sunday morning resulted in the death of one person and injury to six others, are being sought by District Attorney Edward J. Glennon of the Bronx. The employes Assistant District Attorney William Quigley said, were believed to possess information which would determine the cause of the accident.

"The men we are seeking have been missing from their usual haunts," said Mr. Quigley. "My investigation is not yet completed, and until these employes are found and other persons are questioned I am not ready to say just where the blame for the accident lies."

Officers of the company and several employes were questioned yesterday. An inspection of the roller-coaster apparatus is being made by experts. Mr. Quigley said that all roller-coasters in the Bronx would also be inspected.
